was made at their own risk. He asserted that capitalists had refused to invest their money on such slender titles as car under the new arrangement was that the French would be able to import all articles free of duty. One of the effects would be an increase of smuggling. At present there is over a million dollars' worth smuggled each year from the Island of St. Pierre, and if other St. Pierres are built on the Newfoundland coast, it would be greatly to the detriment of the St. Johns, Halifax and other Maritime merchants. He contended that the his fellow delegates, and to assist them in presenting the case to the English people.

Mr. Bowers said he had found in the archives at Ottawa a Latin text of the Treaty of Utrecht, which showed that the French had no territorial or maritime rights in Newfoundland. The French claim was that they had maritime rights

He was burned to death.

FISHING:-There is a small showing of salmon so far in the river, if one were to judge by the catch of the down river-nets, although there has evidently been a good run up river. The fishermen up river have been prevented by the freshet from getting their nets out generally. Mr. Jared Tozer put his out on the Northwest on Monday last and caught five that evening, one being a 21-pounder. The trout-fishing is a fortnight later than usual this season, owing to the snow water freshet.

MR. ANDREW CURRIE, who was a participant in an upset in the harbor the other day, left his shipmate the whole of the boat to himself, while he swam for the shore-a distance of about a hundred yards.
