GENERAL NOTES AND NEWS.

Little dogs bark the most, because that is all they can do.

The Lanes and Streets

OF a city are like the veins and arteries of the body; if foul or impure, disease results. Cleanse the blood from the foul humors by using Burdock Blood Bitters, the best blood medicine ever devised to cure all blood disorders from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

There were 625 more deaths than births in New York last week.

Prevailing Sickness.

THE most prevalent complaints at this season are rheumatism, neuralgia, sore throat, inflammations and congestions. For all these and other painful troubles Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the best internal and external remedy.

It is no longer in good form to speak of either "the influenza" or "la grippe"; it is "the inevitable."

Worn out and run Down.

BY disease and debility the human system becomes worn out and run down before its time. Keep the head clear, the bowels regular, the blood pure, the kidneys and liver active by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, nature's great tonic and regulator, and disease cannot exist.

Irregularities in the old accounts of the City of Cleveland to the amount of $3,000,000 have been discovered.

If you have a Cough

DO NOT neglect it. It should be loosened as soon as possible, and to do this nothing excels Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Obstinate coughs yield at once to its expectorant, soothing and healing properties, while colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, asthma, etc., are promptly relieved by its perfect action on the throat and bronchial tubes.

One hundred Brazilian soldiers favorable to the Monarchy are reported to have been killed while resisting arrest.

Sudden Change.

MRS. GEORGE FLEWELLING, St. John, N. B. writes:—"I suffered from weakness and costiveness, so I bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and before I finished it, noticed a change. After using three bottles I am now entirely cured, and recommend B. B. B. as a positive cure for costiveness."

Dr. T. E. Smith, of Cincinnati, had his whole right side paralysed by a ten-grain dose of anti-pyrine. The dose is an ordinary one. This powerful drug is much resorted to by grippe victims.

A little tot saying her prayers was asked by her mother why she had not asked God's forgiveness for some special act of disobedience. "Why, mamma, I didn't s'pose you wanted it mentioned outside the family."

Well Pleased.

DEAR SIRS,—I can recommend Hagyard's Yellow Oil as a sure cure for rheumatism. I had it for some time and was cured by two bottles, and I must say it is the best thing I can get for general use as a pain reliever.
J. MUSTARD, Strathavon, Ont.

The Montreal Witness says it is now bad form to offer wine on New Year's Day, and adds, that to escape the wine question many have given up the old custom of receiving visits on that anniversary altogether. It is probable that the whole custom is dying out, but what is really satisfactory is that it is certain there has been of late years a great increase of that voluntary spirit of propriety, which is quite sure to effect in the long run all that is desired by the advocates of arbitrary legislation on moral questions.

A Wonderful flesh Producer.

This is the title given to Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil by many thousands who have taken it. It not only gives flesh and strength by virtue of its own nutritious properties, but creates an appetite for food. Use it, and try your weight. Scott's Emulsion is perfectly palatable. Sold by all Druggists, at 50c. and $1.00.

THE DIAMOND BUTTON

FROM THE DIARY OF A LAWYER AND THE NOTE BOOK OF A REPORTER.

By BARCLAY NORTH.

"Subsequently I had inquiries made as to my child in Plainfield, whom I had left with her aunt.

"She had just married, at the time of my inquiries, a man by the name of Templeton—married well and was happy, so I did not disturb her.

"During my life in New York I married a young girl under the name of Fountain. She thought she had married me. It was another mock marriage. A scamp of a lawyer, named Parker, acted the part of a clergyman.

"He had me in his power for years, and bled me freely, until I caught him in a scrape and held the state prison over him. Then I was independent.

"I lived with this woman three years in Putnam county under the name of Fountain. Then tiring of her, I disabused her mind as to the marriage and left her, after giving her enough property to make her independent. I had a son by her named Harry Fountain.

"I married another woman under the same circumstances, forcing Parker to perform the marriage ceremony.

"He was my slave now. My name in this marriage was Simpson. The woman lives in New Rochelle, and has a daughter now about 12 years old. I made her independent when I left her, which was only a year ago.

"I have a villain of a brother who disappeared when he was sixteen from Red Bank, and we all thought him dead. He turned up five years ago—a terrible drunkard—and recognized me. I denied the relationship, but have given him money to keep him quiet. He wants rum, that's all.

"Parker believes my proper name is Pierson—that is, he does not know to the contrary. If he does, he has never shown it to me.

"Now——

"When I am dead I want Judge Harkner to establish the fact that my daughter, now Mrs. Templeton, is my heir. He will find papers establishing that fact in a safe in the Chemical bank, in a box in the charge of the president, marked 'To be delivered only on the order of the surrogate.'

"I request Judge Harkner to advise Mrs. Templeton that it is my wish that $50,000 be given to Mrs. Wessing, of Philadelphia, if alive at the time of my death.

"That $250,000 be given Mrs. Fountain if alive at my death, and if not then to her son Harry Fountain if he be alive, but if not of age to then be held in trust for him by Judge Harkner. If he be dead, then the sum to be divided equally among Mrs. Templeton's children.

"That $250,000 be given to Mrs. Simpson under the same circumstances and conditions as the gift to the Fountain woman.

"I desire also that Mrs. Templeton shall pay weekly to my scamp and jailbird of a brother, James Preston, $50, in the hope that he will soon drink himself to death.

"I am quite conscious that this is not a will, but if Mrs. Templeton is as good a woman as her mother was she will obey these instructions.

"CHARLES PIERSON.

"New York, April 10, 1874."

Holbrook laid the paper down, overwhelmed.

CHAPTER XXVII.

TOM EXPERIENCES A SENSATION AKIN TO A SHOCK.

IT WAS in no enviable frame of mind that Tom turned out of bed on the morning following the night he had endeavored to find Fountain. He had been unsuccessful, and his Shadow had been unable to assist him through Fountain's man.

Tom was in fact discouraged, and he made up his mind that if Holbrook had not succeeded in eliciting anything of value from Flora, he would give up the whole matter and confess himself beaten.

The first ten minutes after a tired man wakes in the morning and faces the fresh difficulties of the day are the bluest of the twenty-four hours, and on this particular morning Tom answered with emphasis the old German philosopher's famous question. Life was not worth living. He broke a hair brush in endeavoring to give the answer additional emphasis.

But by the time that he had disposed of his matutinal cup of coffee and lit his cigar the mental horizon cleared somewhat and the vapors began to disappear.

By the time he had walked a half dozen blocks and felt the joy of exercise, he began to pluck up some hope and to manifest a curiosity as to what Holbrook might have to tell him.

He by no means anticipated such a sensation as he was to experience.

When Tom entered Holbrook's office the lawyer was staring out of the window.

The only return he made to Tom's salutation was to hand him the document which had overwhelmed him without a word.

Tom took it, turned the paper over and read the signature and date.

"The deuce!" he exclaimed, and devoured it rapidly.

"Holy jumping Jehosaphat!" he cried. "What an old scamp! How unblushingly he writes of his villainy!"

"And yet tries to make amends at the close of a long and evil life," commented Holbrook.

"Well," said Tom, hardly recovered from his astonishment, "the motive lying at the bottom of the murder is clear enough."

"But who is the murderer?"

"There lies the information," replied Tom, striking the paper he had laid upon Holbrook's desk. "But which? It was not Templeton, for he didn't kill himself for his own benefit. It was not Fountain, for we know he didn't do it. It is either Wessing, the woman Simpson or Preston."

"Preston. What Preston?"

"Why, James Preston—the old drunkard."

"Yes, but where is he? Who ever heard of him?"

"Who ever heard—why—hold hard—I say, didn't I?—why, bless my soul! but I did tell you, didn't I?"

"You are particularly lucid and intelligent this morning, not to say ejaculatory,"

"But I say, didn't I ever tell you?"

"In the course of our somewhat extended and frequent intimacy you have told me many things and left untold many others, I suppose. But which particular piece of information you are referring to in your usual perspicuous manner, I am unable to ascertain without a little more light."

"Oh, stow that gibing! you are never so uninteresting as when you think you are sarcastic. But I say, didn't I ever tell you what the Shadow reported to me about an old man Preston and Parker?"

"Never, my royal youth."

Tom, who was too seriously intent over the discovery of the paper to fall into the vein of Holbrook, told with brevity the scene in the old house in Varick street.

The recital soon won Holbrook's close attention.

"If you had told me this," he said at its conclusion, "we would have been well along in the quest without the aid of this document."

"I cannot for the life of me tell how I came to neglect it, but you see, on my side I never knew, for you never told me, that the name of Mrs. Templeton's father was Carroll Preston."

"However, we have the connecting link now, and the question as to who is the person is narrowed to a very few."

"True. It must be either Wessing, the woman Simpson, or Preston."

"Or Parker."

"Ah, by George, he comes into the game, too, doesn't he?"

"Yes, by reason of his connection and conspiracy with Preston."

"Holbrook," said Tom, after a moment's thought, "I do not believe that either Preston or Parker are in this part of the job."

"Why—equally so with the others."

"Listen to me a moment. In this paper, Pierson is at pains to state that Parker had no knowledge of his previous life—that he never knew that he bore another name previous to that of Pierson."

"Yes, I remember; I see what your line of reasoning will be."

"Well. Now he did know about the Fountain and Simpson marriages. In my interview with him he was only disturbed when I talked of Fountain. He was lawyer enough to know that if there was no prior marriage, the Fountain ceremony, whether mock or not, would be binding if the supposed Fountain could be identified with the dead Pierson. Hence his disturbance at my knowledge of the matter—a knowledge which at that time I did not have, but most recklessly assumed to have."

"Well, but you forget Preston, the drunkard."

"No, I don't. This paper is dated 1874, ten years ago, and in it is distinctly stated that old Preston, the drunkard, turned up five years previously. The old sot, you will remember, wanted to argue with Parker that he certainly was a brother, because for fifteen years Pierson had paid him money, and you must give full weight to the answer of Parker, that it made little difference whether money was paid him because he was a brother or whether it was because he possessed a secret which induced old Pierson to give hush money—he was brother enough for their purposes. Now this argues that Parker was not fully acquainted with this relation, and that he really entertained doubts of the verity of the brothership between the two—that the relation, if not the acquaintanceship, between Preston and Parker had sprung up since Pierson's death."

"I see, I see. Yes, your reasoning is close."

"Now," continued Tom, "whatever else we may think of Parker, it won't do to take him for a fool. And fool he would have been to open up this propertyship question, by his own motion, right on the heels of the murder, if he had been guilty of it, or implicated in it. The fact that he and his client would have been benefited by it would have been too patent, and if he knew the relation Templeton bore to the property, he had every reason to believe others would know it; and with a guilty conscience would think that that fact would be the first to be pitched on."

"I am disposed to believe with you, Tom."

"You will, the more you turn over in your mind that scene in Varick street and my conversation with Parker. I'll send for the Shadow, and together we'll go over the conversation again, and I'll write down both for you to study at your leisure. It is quite as important to get those out of the case who did not do it, as to get those in who possibly could have done it."

"That is shrewdly put, Tom," replied Holbrook. "But you do not forget Parker's call on me?"

"No, I do not. That call, in my judgment, was to find if possible whether or not Pierson had been engaged in mock matrimonial scrapes prior to the Fountain episode, and of which he had no knowledge. Now, take fast hold of this fact: Fountain could only be a disturbing claimant in the event of there having been no previous marriage. If Parker had known of the marriage of Carroll Preston, the issue of which was Mrs. Templeton, he would not have been at all disturbed by my precipitation of the Fountain name. He was visibly disturbed when I falsely assumed to know, what I didn't then know, that Pierson had once passed as Fountain. As for the driveling old idiot of a brother, he is too far gone in rum to have ever conceived or executed the murder."

"I think you have made out a case, Tom. At all events, if the other lines of inquiry fail, we have the precious pair to fall back on."

"Now, if you agree with me, as you seem to, then it follows that there are only two left—the Simpson woman and Wessing."

"Well, then, let's consider these two. About Simpson we know no more than this document tells us."

"As to that, I'll have to send the Shadow to New Rochelle to make inquiries. But I want to note a fact. There are only left now under our process Simpson and Wessing"——

"And Wessing was at the place of murder when the deed was done."

"Precisely. There's our first line of work."

Holbrook did not reply. He was intent on his thoughts, and was nervously tearing paper into long shreds, a habit when he was profoundly thinking. Finally he said:

"Tom, some very singular things in the way of omissions present themselves. You never told me of that Varick street interview, and I never told you that Mrs. Templeton's family name was Preston. Here were two broken links that we might have joined without the aid of this paper. Now, here is another omission."

"What?" said Tom, with an air of annoyance. "Are you going to make us out a pair of blunderers?"

"Yes, apparently. We never attempted to find out whether Wessing knew any-
