CHATHAM, N. B. - FEBRUARY 27, 1890. GENERAL NOTES AND NEWS. Lord Tennyson is seriously ill.

Mr. Gladstone is ill with catarrh. A Life Record. I HAD been troubled for about 35 years with biliousness and liver complaint, and after using about three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I feel entirely relieved, and have not had an attack for two years.

The cholera is spreading in Mesopotamia. The Socialists have made tremendous gains in Germany. Trust an Old Friend. Old friends are best, and if ever sufferers had a friend, Hagar's Yellow Oil can justly claim the distinction. Pain never stays long where it is used, while for cramp it is a specific.

The Turkish Government has determined to construct shipyards and arsenals at Jeddah. The Montana Legislature has adjourned after sitting ninety days, and not passing a single bill.

Remarkable cure of an Ulcer. QUIT.—Two years ago I had an ulcer on my ankle. Knowing Burdock Blood Bitters to be a good blood purifier, I got a bottle and a box of Burdock Healing Ointment, and after using three bottles Ulcerant and after using three bottles and three boxes I was completely cured, and recommend B. B. B. everywhere.

The Paris Temps says the Russian loan was seven times covered by subscription in Paris alone.

Is our Climate Changing. The past two seasons have been so peculiar that thousands are attacked by coughs, colds, hoarseness, influenza, asthma, bronchitis, etc.

The Club National, of Montreal, passed a resolution on Friday last favoring Canadian independence.

Dizziness Caused by Dyspepsia. DIZZINESS is a symptom of dyspepsia. "I have used Burdock Blood Bitters for dizziness, which came over me in spells, so that I had to quit work for a while. The B. B. B. entirely cured me."

Across the Continent. In thousands of households all over Canada the merits of Yellow Oil, the great family medicine are well known.

A Wonderful flesh Producer. This is the title given to Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil by many thousands who have taken it. It not only gives flesh and strength by virtue of its own nutritious properties, but creates an appetite for food.

A SOUTHERN HOUSE.

Design and Plans of a Home for Winter Use in Florida.

While this plan was designed for a winter home in Florida, it is in mind that conditions might exist that it would be occupied during warm weather. I have often thought in connection with the planning of southern houses that the problem was not so different from that which belongs to a northern house as is generally supposed.

The conditions of comfort and convenience apply alike under any circumstances, and a house that will be comfortable in the south during warm weather will also be comfortable in the north under the same conditions. It is true that the temperature is quite often as high in some of our northern cities as it is in the south, though the continuance of the heated period is not usually so great. It is also true that a house planned with reference to being cool in summer will be warm in winter—that is, the walls should be thick, papered and weather boarded in the case of a frame house; in a southern home the same as for one in the north.

This house may have a cellar and is provided with two full stories and an attic. The plan combines the features of two houses which have been recently built in the north. The key to this plan is the reception hall. It is the feature of the house. It is open from front to rear. There is the front door and the window to the right of it. On one side is an arched window in the winter the prospect from the vestibule into the reception hall is a little over eight feet from the floor, is a large window divided by mullions, which is nearly the full width of the hall. Thus during the heated period this hall can be open from front to rear at proper times, and thus a draft of air secured.

During the periods of ordinary temperature this feature would add to the comfort of living in this building. It makes a very attractive feature architecturally. A hall which is open from end to end, and which at the same time affords the conditions of utility which belong to a house of moderate cost, cannot but be delightful. At one end near the stairway is a corner fireplace. During a chilly day in the winter the prospect from the vestibule into the reception hall would be pleasing indeed. The vestibule, which would afford a place in which wraps could be hung, and the fireplace at the end of the hall, would change this hall from a mere passage space to one which would be regularly occupied.

Up over the fireplace, and extending the full width of the hall, is a gallery from which one may look down into the room. Under it is a china room, lighted by a window at one side. Next to this china room is a lavatory in which may be placed a washstand and water closet. It may be entered either from the sitting room or reception hall. The water closet would be placed in the space directly under the steps. This room would be well lighted and ventilated by means of the window shown. The china room forms a passage from the kitchen to the dining room. There are double swing doors connecting this room, and in this way the kitchen is sufficiently isolated.

The kitchen is arranged with due regard for convenience and ease in the movement of housekeeping. There is the sink and arrangement of tables on each side of it. Convenient closet off each chamber; bathroom, 6x8; two rooms finished in attic. Estimated cost of building, $5,000.

A Suggestion for Picture Hanging.

What to do with the large space over the mantelpiece where all the good sized pictures are needed elsewhere is a puzzle to housekeepers. It was solved very nicely by one lady who had three small pictures, uniform in size and resembling each other in subject. She hung them like steps, the one at the left being placed lower, the one next it a little higher, and the third higher still. It is a new way to treat pictures, and affords a relief from the time honored plan of hanging two or three pictures at the same distance from the molding and the third a little higher than them.

"Let 'er Rip." "George," she said, as she lay quivering in his tightly clasped arms, "what was the noise I heard?" "Nothing of importance, Gladys, darling," he answered. "A slight rip in my coat, that was all."

"And then as the sound of two beating hearts slowly filled the room and booted through the back door, she murmured softly, "George, dear, you couldn't make that coat rip a little more, could you?"—Clothing and Furnishings.
