A Great Bazzar.

The absence of our reporter from town, until the hour for going to press, prevents our giving such a notice of the Hotel Dieu bazaar, now being held in the Chatham Skating Rink, as its merits deserve. We can only say that is a very attractive one and those who fail to attend will fail in their duty and miss something worth steing. There is fine music, a fine dis play of articles on the sales tables, courteons attendants, first-class refreshments, and last, but not least, a most unique feature representing the genius and handiwork of Mr. Brian Moran, which, of itself, is worth going far to see.

The Steamer "Nelson" runs in connection with the bazaar, leaving Nelson at 7.30 each evening, calling at Newcastle and returning with excursionists at the close of the bazaar. The return fare is 25 cents.

The Behring Sea Difficulty.

BLAINE AND SALISBURY CORRESPOND ON

WASHINGTON, July 23.- The corres pondence from August 24th, 1889, to July 19th, 1890, in the Behring sea matter was laid before congress to-day. The correspondence is still in progress. The first documents were of a skirmishing nature, and the correspondence did not come down to a definite character until Sir Julian Pauncefoote arrived in person MR. BLAINE'S FIRST NOTE.

Mr. Blaine wrote Sir Julian, January 23rd, 1890, defending the acts complained of the British government. He claims that the seized vessels were engaged in a pursuit in itself contra bonos mores, a pursuit involving injury to the rights of the United States. Also, that the claim of the United States was the same as that maintained by Russia when she possessed Alaska, and which was then acquie-ced in by other nations. Also, that the taking of seals in the open sea leads to the extinction of the species, and the law of the sea does not justify acts against the welfare of mankind.

SALISBURY'S REPLY. The Marquis of Salisbury, under date of May 22, 1890, replies to the letter and discusses the question of contra bona mores, and whether, if the acts were such, this would justify seizure on the high seas in time of peace of the private vessels of a friendly nation. It is an axiom of international marine law, he says, that such action is only admissible in the cases of piracy, or in pursuance of special international agreement, This principle has been universally admitted by jurists and was very distinctly laid down by President Tyler in his special message to congress dated 27th February, 1843, when, after acknowledging the right to detain Mr. Henry Baithwaite, so well and and search a vessel on suspicion of peace, any authority to detain the ships in the open sea, under whatever circumstances, has never hitherto been considered as piracy by any civilized state. Nor, even if the United States had gone so far as to make the killing of fur seals piracy by their municipal law, would this have justified them in punishing offences against such law, committed by any person other than their own citizens outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United practice which the civilized world has agreed to look upon with abhorrence, the right of arresting the vessels of another country is exercised only by special international agreement, and no government has been allowed that general control of morals in this respect which Mr, Blaine claims in behalf of the United States in regard to seal hunting. But her majesty's government must question whether this pursuit for special reasons can be declared unlawful even if it has been agreed by international arrangement to forbid it. Fur seals are indisputably wild animals, ferae naturae and these have universally been regarded by res nullius, until they are caught. No person, therefore, can have property in them until he has actually reduced them into possession by capture. MUST HAVE BETTER EVIDENCE. It requires something more than a declaration that the government or citizens of the United States, or even other countries interested in the seal trade, are losers by a certain course of proceed ing, to render that course an immoral

Her majesty's government would deeply regret that the pursuit of fur seals on the high seas should involve the slightest injury to the people of the United States. the 43rd Batt., Ottawa. THE RUSSIAN CLAIMS ARGUMENT.

The second argument advanced by Mr. Blaine is that the "fur seal fisheries of John, $30; capt. Busteed, 3rd Victorias, Behring sea had been exclusively controlled by the government of Russia, without interference and without question, from the original discovery until the cession of Alaska to the United States," and that "from 1867 to 1886 the possession which Russia had been undisturbed was enjoyed by the United States government also without interruption or intrusion from any source."

the following month of February (1888), between Lord Salisbury and the American minister, accompanied by the Russian ambassador. In answer to Lord Salisbury's request, Mr. Phelps sub mitted the "regulations" which the government of the United States desired, and in a despatch of February 25th, Mr. Phelps communicated the following to Mr. Bayard, secretary of state:-"Lord Salisbury assents to your proposition to establish by mutual arrangements between the government interested, a close time for fur seals between April 15 and November 1, and between 160 degrees of longitude east in the Behring sea, and he will cause an act to be introduced in parliament effecting this arrangement so ion there is no doubt the act will be passed. You will observe, Secretary Blaine says, then that from the 11th of November, 1887, to the 23rd of April, 1883, Lord Salisbury had in every form of speech assented to the necessity of a close season for the protection of the seals. Speaking the same language, there has been no room for misunderstanding between the two governments as may easily have nappened between those of di ferent tongues.

For several weeks following April 28th. Mr. Blaine says, there are many calls by the American minister at the foreign office to learn whether "Canada has been heard from." He called alone and called company with the Russian minister Finally, on the 20th June, Lord Salisbury told him that an urgent telegram had been sent to Canada, a week ago, in re spect to the delay in its expedition "That a reply had been" received by the secretary of the state for the colonies saying that the matter will be taken up immedi-

Mr. White, relying entirely upon these assurances, ventured to "hope that shortly after Mr. Phelps' return the British government will be in a condition to agree upon the terms of the proposed conven.

It was thus acknowledged, Mr. Blain says, that the negotiation into which Lord Salisbury had cordially entered, and to which he had readily agreed, even himself suggesting some of its most valuable details, was entirely subordinated to the judgment and desire of the Canadian gov. ernment. This government cannot but feel, Secretary Blaine continues, that Lord Salisbury would have dealt more frankly if in the beginning he had informed Minister Phelps that no arrangement could be made unless Canada concurred in it, and that all negotiations with the British government direct was but a loss of time.
