The Parnell Question.

[Continued from 2nd page ] pass to my own expressions of opinion upon these communications, whic's represent my views then and now; and, first, with regard to the retention of the Irish members, the position which I have always adopted, and which I then represented, is that with the concession of fall powers to an Irish Legislature, equivalent to those enjoyed by a State of the American Union, the number and position of the members so retained would become a question of imperial concern and not of pressing or immediate importance will not the interests of Ireland; but that with land, the important and all engrossing subjects of agrarian reform, constabulary control and judiciary appointments, left either under imperial control or totally unprovided for, it would be the height of madness for any Irish leader to imitate Grattan's example and consent to disband an army which had cleared the way to victory. I further under took to use every legitimate influence to reconcile Irish public opinion to the gradual coming into force of new privileges and to "A Member of Parliament" has an article the postponements necessary for Euglish opinion with regard to constabulary control and judicial appointments, but I strongly dissented from the proposed reduction of the number of members during the interval of probation, and I pointed to the absence of any suitable prospect of land settlement by either parliament as a constitutional and overwhelming drag upon the prospects of permanent peace and prosperity in Ireland.
At the conclusion of the interview I was informed that Mr. Gladstone and all his colleagues were entirely agreed that pending a general election silence should be absolute. ly preserved with regard to any points of ference on the question of the retention of the Irish members. I have dwelt at some length upon these subjects, but not I think, disproportionately to their importance. Let ideal is reached it is your duty and mine to hold fast to every safeguard. I need not say that the question-the vital and important question of the retention of the Irish members on one hand, and indefinite delay in granting full powers to an Irish Legis Ex-M. P. P. The editor of the Times who simply to have a political fling, maliciously published a had been assuaged, that the hopeless struggle against the principle of the measure should not be maintained and that we should direct our sole efforts, on the second reading of the bill, to the assertion of the principle of local control. In this, I am bound to say, Mr. Morley entirely agreed with me, but he was at the same time much hampered and expressed his sense of his position in that direction by the attitude of the ex-treme section of his party, led by Mr. Labouchere, and in a subsequent interview he impressed upon me the necessity of meeting the second reading of the bill with a direct negative and asked me to undertake mild dose of criticism with many wry faces. the motion. I agreed to this, but only on condition that I was not to attack the principle of the measure, but to confine myself to criticism of its details. I think his was Winter began business on time. HOW ABOUT THE CHIEF SECRETARYSHIP? Just before the commencement of this session I was again favored with another interview with Mr. Morley. I impressed upon him the policy of an oblique method of procedure with reference to land purchase and the necessity and importance of and of limitation in the application of funds. He agreed with me and I offered to move that if this were rejected it might be left to the radicals on the second reading to oppose the principle of the measure. This appeared to be a proper course, and this would fall to my duty, but in addition he made me a remarkable proposal. Referring to the probable approaching victory of the liberal party at the polls he suggested some considerations as to the future of the Irish party, and he asked me whether I would be willing to assume the office of Chief Secretary for Ireland or whether I me the desirability of filling one of the law offices of the Crown in Ireland by a legal member of my party. I told him, amazed as I was at the proposal, that I could not agree to forfeit in any way the independence of the party or any of its members; that the Irish people had trusted me in this movement because they believed that the declaration I had made to them in Cork in 1880 was a true and represented my conviction, and that I would on no account depart from it. considered that after the declaration we had repeatedly made the proposal of Mr. Morley that we should allow ourselves to be absorbed into English politics was one based upon an entire misconception of our position with regard to our Irish constituencies and of the pledges we had given.

THE QUESTION OF EVICTED TENANTS. In conclusion, he directed my attention to the plan of campaign estates. He said that it would be impossible for the liberal party when it attained power to do anything for these evic ed tenants by direct action and that it would also be impossible for the Irish Parliament, under the powers conferred, to do anything for them; and, flinging up his hands with a gesture of despair, he exclaimed ;-"Having been in Tipperary, 1 do not know what to propose in regard to the matter." I told him this question was a limited one; that I did not see that he need allow himself to be hampered by its future consideration; that funds would be available from America and elsewhere for the support of those tenants as long as it might be necessary; that of course I understood that it was a difficulty, but that it was a limited one and should not be allowed to in-

I aliude to this matter only because with in the last few days a strong argument in many minds for my expulsion has been that unless the liberals come into power at the next general election the plan of campaign tenants will suffer. As I have shown, the liberals propose to do nothing for the plan of campaign tenants by direct action when they come into power, but I am entitled to ask that the existence of these tenants, whom I have supported in every way in the past and whom I shall continue to support n the future, shall not constitute a reason for my expulsion from Irish politics. I have repeatedly pledged myself to stand by these evicted tenants and that they shall not be allowed to suffer, and I believe that the Irish people throughout the world will support me in this policy. S:xteen years ago conceived the idea of an Irish parliamentary dependent frish parliamentary party. During these ten years this party has remained independent, and because of its independence it has forced upon the English people the necessity of granting home rule to Ireland. I believe that the party will obtain home rule-only provided that it remains independent of any English party. I do not believe that any action of the Irish people in supporting me will endanger the home rule cause or postpone the establish-ment of an Irish Parliament. But even if the danger with which we are threatened by the liberal party of to day were to be realized, I believe that the Irish people throughout the world would agree with me that postponement would be preferable to a compromise of our national rights by the acceptance of a measure which would not realize the aspirations of our race,

I have the honor to remain your faithful servant, CHARLES STEWART PARNELL. Commenting upon the Parnell manifesto the Standard believes it will deal a fatal blow to the prospects of the home rule party in England. "A Member of Barliament" has an article in the European edition of the Herald this morning in which he says that events are still farther shaping themselves toward a reunion of the Gladstonian party on the understanding that home rule be dropped out of the programme. Porcupine, the apostle asserts that the new Christ is already on earth, and thus describes him. He was dressed in a white coat, with stripes. The rest of his dress was a white man's except that he had moccasins. Then he commenced our dance, everybody joining in, the Christ singing while we danced. We danged till late in the night, when he told us we had danced enough. The next morning he told us he was going away that day but would be back the next morning and talk to me. I heard that Christ had been crucified and I looked to see, and I saw a scar on his wrist and one on his cou'd not see his feet. He would talk to us all day. That evening we all assembled to see him depart. When we were assembled he began to sing and he commenced to tremble all over violently for a while and then sat down. We denced all that night, the Christ lying down beside us, apparently dead. The following morning the Christ was back with us and wanted to talk to us. He said ; "I am the man who made everything you see aroued you. I am not lying to you, my children. I made this earth and everything on it. I have been to Heaven and seen your dead friends, and have seen my own father and mother." He spoke to us about fighting and said that it was bad and that we must keep from it; the earth was to be all good hereafter; that we must be frierds with que another. He said if any man disobeyed what he ordered, his tribe would be wiped from the face of

THE INNOCENT CAUSE OF THE DELUSION. According to a Chicago despatch, the Indian Messiah has been found. A letter received on 24th ult. by General Miles from an army officer at Los Angelos, Cal., says "Last spring an Indian called and said he wou'd like to speak to the commanding General. He said his name was Johnson Sides, that he was known as the Peacemaker among all Indians and the whites of Nevada where he lived. To substantiate his story he showed me a medal which he carried around his neck on which was a legend to the effect that he was presented with the medal by some Christian society for his efforts towards doing good to his fellow men whether white or red. He could talk very good English, was dressed like an ordinary laborer, but had the Indian's way of wearing his hair. He told me he read or knew the Bible; that he was desirous of making peace with every one, and that was why he was named Peacemaker. He said that Indians had come from afar to see him. He mentioned the names of the Indians who had visited him and the tribes they belonged to, also gave the time they had called. I firmly believe that this is the good natured Indian who has caused all this trouble; that he has taught the members of his tribe the story of Christ or the Messiah and the time when he will once more visit this earth, as it has been taught him by the Christian people interested in his welfare. He has told these visiting Indians of the paradise in store for all people when the Son shall once more visit this earth, and the Indian's para dise is whatever his imagination may lead him to believe, the same as the white man's. He has, no doubt, delivered the story in its true light, and the Indians retelling the story, have warped and woven it according to their understanding. Johnson Sides is well known to all people living along the line of the Central Pacific Railroad in the vicinity of Reno, Nev."

Mothers !

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. The woman's column is coming to the front in the great army of progress. A lady, Miss Juarita Breckenridge, of Oberlin Seminary, has been asking ordination as a Congregational minister, and the case came before the Cleveland Conference at its meeting in Strongville, Ohio, on October 21st and 22ud. Miss Breckenridge had passed a very good examination, and the only objection was her sex. A majority of the committee to whom the question had been referred reported in favor of ordaining her. and the conference upheld the favorable decision by a vote of 33 to 15. The lady
