Miramichi Advance.

CHATHAM, N. B. - - DECEMBER 18, 1890.

The "Liberal" Advocate The Advocate announces that it "had an article written in reply to the ADVANCE of last week" on the subject of candidates, but "a Liberal" furnished it with a letter and it put its own article in the waste basket. The article in question, was, no donbt, it is unnecessary for me to say anything. properly disposed of. The local Conservatives often declare that the usual Advocate article injures the party, and it is probable that the waste basket performance announced by that paper was in obedience to orders from the R. Thomson of your city were now alive the press censors of the Newcastle organization. The Advocate's Liberal seems to know a thing or two, and says :-

"The refusal of the Government to throw over Adams, and the announcement from Ottawa that Adams would be the government candidate at the next election has caused the Advance to announce that a resident Independent Liberal would be in the field at the next election."

It wasn't necessary for the Advocate to go to Ottawa for the information that "Adams would be the government candidate," for that gentleman has made no secret of his wish to run in that interest, and he is doubtless backed by the club of which the editor of the Advocate is president. The correct form of expression, however, would be that Mr. Adams would be government candidate, for the Chatham Conservative Club, known as the mugwumps, is determined to have a government candidate in the field at $2.15 and $4.00. and that he shall not be Mr. Adams. The government isn't meddling in the matter at all, and wisely so, for it would at $2.00, $3.25. be very impolitic on Sir John's part to interfere in the little quarrels of his adherents. Observing the want of harmony in the ranks of his professed followers here, he naturally desires to have the interests of the party considered and conserved apart from the little spites and local prejudices that are so important in the eyes of the respective club managers. This may lead to a third government candidate being in the field, which ought to make the chances of the independent resident liberal standard-bearer very good. Meanwhile we advise the Advocate censors to continue ordering those terrible editorials to the waste basket.

Nelson Railway Meeting.

A number of the business men of Nel son are interesting themselves in the question of securing railway facilities for their village, and have called a meeting for the consideration of the subject. The meeting is to be held to-morrow evening at half-past seven, at or near Flett's mill. Nelson is one of our most important centres of population and industry, three of our best steam saw mills, the biggest brick yard on the North Shore, a fine steam tannery, a shingle and small lumber mill, besides a number of stores and workshops of different kinds being within its limits. There is, therefore, much to encourage the belief that the people interested in these will be able to show to the governments of the Province and Dominion that they have good claims upon them for aid similar to that which has been extended to other localities. We are not yet informed whether our Nelson friends propose to have their line as a branch of the I. C. R. or Chatham Railway, but this point, as well as others involved, will, doubtless, be fully developed to-morrow evening. Our public men should interest themselves in the matter and help Nelson in her effort to secure what she so well deserves.

Mr. Laurier said he was bound to the majority of those present by the ties of a common Liberalism and to all present by those of a common citizenship. The principles under which the Liberal banner had been so often carried to victory in St. John were those of the Liberal party to-day. The Liberal party believed in freedom in religion, freedom in matters civil and political and likewise in freedom of trade. He traced the introduction of the N. P., showed how its aim and scope had been represented to New Brunswick to be merely a readjustment of the tariff, and in Ontario to be protection; and al professedly to bring about a reciprocity set aside, and it was increased taxation ed in its promises and farm property had since its operation. He believed that free trade with the United States would ly beneficial to the farmers. Speaking in tion the interests of the farmers and the farmers every time, as upon agricultural prosperity was based the general prosperity of the country.

He said that Canada could not adopt at present free trade with all the world because her expenditure r quirements demanded a large revenue, and the people were not educated politically to accept a system of direct taxation. The expenditure of the country could be reduced in many directions without impairing the demands for the legitimate development of the public works of the country. He instanced how savings might be effected. The advantages of unrestricted reciprocity were then discussed, and references made to former declarations by Sir John Macdonald as to the beneficial operation of reciprocity. The contradictory attitudes of several of the cabinet ministers on the trade question were held up to ridicule, and the audience asked what success in obtaining unrestricted reciprocity could be expected from a cabinet which was at ment in which the Irish party originated ered with cotton. Hon. L. H. Galt and other members of that commission. If Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, who was then my honored leader, were now here the editor of the Sun would not dare to publish such a lie. If S. owners of the St. John Sun would not dare to make such a statement in its columns. And I will teil him, further, what he does not appear to know. I will tell that I was paid my fees, seven years ago, by Sir John A. Macdonald. But the Sun also followed me into Queens county with its slanders and the result was that I was elected at the head of the poll with 825 of a majority." He then followed with an exceptionally able speech in advocacy of freer trade relations with the United States of America.

Mr. Sydney Fisher, M. P., for Brome, was heartily applauded on being introduced. As representing an agricultural constituency, he said, the prosperity of farmers had not increased but decreased under the national policy. Nor were manufacturers the better off, though the tariff was made for them. He made a strong plea for reciprocity as necessary to the prosperity of the country and closed amid loud cheers.

Hon. A. H. Gillmor was the last speaker, and made one of the happiest speeches of his life. It was greeted with cheer after cheer, and frequently he was prevented by renewed outbursts of applause from proceeding. The quaint humor conveying points to telling hits captivated the audience, and late as was the hour he held the audience.

CORK, Dec. 11. Mr. Parnell's reception in this city was similar to that accorded to him in Dublin, his welcome being of the most enthusiastic character. An address from the National League was presented to him in the chamber of commerce, where a tremendous crowd had gathered to greet him. After a storm of cheers, Mr. Parnell, in reply to the ad-

"I come among you confident and with a proud heart, in the belief that while Cork and Parnell are united Ireland is united. I am proud of Cork, which has given a verdiet for me without waiting to hear my side of the case. With such men I need not fear the less of Gladstone's trumpery bil!, which would allow the police to baton us, the landlords to desecrate the country as heretofore, and would give Ireland nothing which Irishmen could not get for themselves without the bill. It is not for such a measure that Cork retains the proud title of 'rebel.'"

Mr. Parneli continued in the vein that marked his Dablin speech. He declared that never, in Gladstone's palmiest days, had he dismissed the idea for a single instant that Ireland and Gladstone might yet again

I have practically been called from a bed of sickness and pain, but Cork has done more for me than all physicians and medicine could do. I shall go forth to battle, sharing your strength and confidence, and we shall gain an overwhelming, glorious victory." [Loud and prolonged cheers.]

At a meeting held here last night, over which the High Sheriff presided, a parliamentary committee was appointed to oppose Mr. Parnell. The chairman said he hoped that the division of the Irish party would be brief, and announced that 21 Nationalist members of the Cork Municipal Council were opposed to Mr. Parnell's remaining at the head of the party.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. Irish commission in this country have issued a long manifesto in which they call attention to their previous unswerving loyalty to Parnell. KILKENNY, Dec. 13. At a meeting in the town hall last evening Sir John Pope Hennessy, the anti-Parnell candidate, was well received. Davitt delivered au earnest and eloquent address, dwelling upon the attempts made by Parnell to revive race antipathies which it had taken four years to heal. Davitt said the "present struggle in Kilkenny is the most important event of the last decade of Ireland's history. If Parnell wins, home rule is doomed. Parnell will ruin Ireland or ruin himself.' ### The Lobster Fishery.

interested in the lobster industry was held in Halifax last week, which was presided The proceedings closed with cheers for over by Inspector Hockin. What was said and done at it will, no doubt, interest a number of our readers, who are engaged in that business. Mr. Hockin explained that he had received a circular from the department of fisheries, containing certain suggestions in regard to the seasons for lobster fishing and packing, upon which he was to report after careful consultation with those interested in the business. The changes were discussed freely and a resolution adopted to the effect that the meeting deemed it inexpedient to adopt them and that the present regulations, if strictly enforced are all that is necessary for the presevation of the lobster fishery. The main change was a shortening of the season during which packing could be carriel on to but little more than thirty days, with full liberty to use any size lobster caught, the business to be carried on entirely independent of all departmental regulations. The opinion was generally expressed that it would not pay to work for such a short time, nor would it suit the fishermen.

A general discussion ensued as to the best means of preventing the catching of lobsters out of season and the prevention of illicit packing. S. S. Forrest stated that he had heard it seriously stated that there were as many as 3000 cases of lobsters on the coast between Halifax and Canso which had been illegally packed. He thought the usefulness of the cutters was very small for the prevention of this business. When one of the vessels passed Canso it was immediately telegraphed along, and the word 'The Cutter's coming, look out for her!' gave everybody timely notice to conceal their work. He believed the only effective way to stop illicit catching of lobsters was the appointment of efficient local inspectors. Oher gentlemen also expressed the opinion that what was necessary was a patrol of the whole coast by men whose districts would not be so large but that they could make at least weekly visits to all points within them. James Fraser and I. H. Mathers both advocated "If he wishes to lead you," said he, "let the employment of more local inspectors. your acquairtance. Mr. Smith believed an excellent "You would justly ban me as disgraced remedy for illicit catching would be an increase in the penalties, making it punishable by fine and imprisonment. The inspector asked the question as to the relative value of lobsters caught in the fall and spring, an l it was stated that the October lobster was inferior in every way; it was worthless in the market, was indeed unfis for food, and if left to the spring, would have increased in The question of the size for lobsters was introduced by W. H. Hitchens, who thought the limit of 91 inches too great. He thought the 9-inch lobster was well developed. It was going to too great an extreme, and thus made a feeling against the law which made it difficult to secure obedience to the regulations. The inspector said the spawning period did not begin until the lobster was 81 inches in length. There was a difference of opinion among the packers as to this point, the fact apparently being that the stage in the lobster's size at which this occurred varied in different parts of the coast. There was an unanimous expression of opinion that the size limit should be reduced from 91 to 9 inches, and a resolution by Mr. Hitchens was adopted to the effect that the maintenance of the lobsters The five anti-Parnell members of the depended more upon a strict observance of the close season than upon the size limit at which lobsters might be taken. The opinion was generally expressed that it was due to the observance of the close season that the fishery had been preserved, and that in places where it was known that the size limit was not generally respected, yet the benefit of the close season had been The conference lasted over two hours and much valuable interchange of ideas took place. A commendable desire universally prevailed among the packers to do every thing to help the authorities in preserving the fisheries and rendering them permanent. and to assist in any legitimate way in the observance of the close season and other regulations devised in the interest of the
