a boarding house keeper. It was further reported that Williams had, after the date of his supposed "taking off," found his way in some mysterious manner out through the woods to the Intercolonial railway track, up which he had tramped quite a distance and had been seen by many men, that he had called at several houses, at one of which he had been supplied with an old hat to cover his bare head, and that he had ultimately arrived at Dalhousie, whence, in response to word from Mr. Fraser, he had been sent by rail to Miramichi. There was one point on which all the stories practically tallied, viz, that "the little sailor," as Margaret Petre called him, was a small fellow with a smooth face and light complexion-in other words, a pronounced blonde. The story of Williams' shipment was fully believed in many quarters and backed by the necessary ance at "The Points." There were some persons, however, who did not swallow the story of the sailor's shipment in its entirety, and they quietly set to work to investigate it. Mr. Fraser, it will be remembered, gave as a reason for believing that the sailor was Williams' that the man had written a letter to him from Dalhousie signed "George Williams," which letter could not be found when it was subsequently looked for, though there was nothing surprising in the fact, as Mr Fraser, who, it is said, cannot read, is not in the habit of keeping his letters after he has ascertained their contents. The olice of sub-far as to offer to prove that the alleged murdered man had been shipped from Miramichi to Dublin in the bark Ruby in Saviour in teaching us the Fatherhood of is no one to help." For our Divine before that all men are brethren. This that, after all, you owe to that religion, which some affect to despise and reject, whatever is good and generous in your society, and if you see the beauty and the blessedness of one element of truth, I hope learn to embrace the whole truth in all its sacred fulness, which may be summed up in the words, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy mind and with all thy soul and with all thy strength, and thy neighbour as thyself." If you love not God it is impossible to love man as you ought. By all means let your hearts' affections and sympathies be poured out for your brethren. Reach out the helping hand, give aid, good cheer, and counsel. Throw around the tempted brother the shield of protection. Open your treasure to supply your brothers' need. But let us never forget that through Christ, our elder brother, we are admitted into the spiritual brotherhood, and secure eternal life, and an inheritance with the saints in light. Do your work, my brethren, in the right spirit, in the spirit of our holy faith. Then, when you visit the sick, or minister to the wants of the needy, or allay the fears of the widow, you will do it be cause Christ did so, and bids you follow him; and you will do it for Christ's sake ! It will be done for Him rather than for the person whom you assist. It is that motive which I would point out to you as the goal to which you are to attain. Blessed privilege indeed is it to minister to Christ's Man, who Himself was a Man of Sorrows, shall say to you all:-"I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye'clothed me; I was in prison, and ve came unto me:" for "inasleast of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Therefore, "Honour all men. "Do good unto all." "Cease to do evil; on all the face of the earth. We are all of one family, of one origin, of one common nature. Then, remember that Our Saviour became incarnate. He took upon Himself our human form. He became Man. As brotherhood. And He, by the grace of God, has tasted death for every man. Behold the foundation of the fraternity of our lightened; no matter how coloured or how of men "of one blood!" Dost thou wrong or oppress a human being? He is thy brother! Dost thou cherish malice, jealousy or revenge in thine heart against anothor? "The voice of thy brothers' blood crieth to God from the ground! Dost thou speak evil against thy neighbour? Thou condemnes thyself! Dost thou treat thy poorer brother with scorn and contempt because he has not thy wealth and affluence? He is richer than thou art for he has the wealth of humility! Moreover, the poor, degraded, sinful wretch is thy brother, "for whom Christ died." His Precious Blood was shed for the poor, erring man. The Incarnate Redeemer asgarden and the bitter cross. has not a Father in Heaven, and to whom ls not an advocate and a friend, nay more. there is not a man in the whole universe to whom Christ is not a Brother, by virtue of His assumption of our common humanity. The negro, through all his shades; the Hottentot, through all his varieties: the Indian, through all his wanderings; men of every nation and of diverse lauguages; men of high and low degree, men anywhere and everywhere: men good and men evil, all, all, are the recipients of God's goodness and mercy, and included in the race for whom Christ died! This is the brotherhood of our holy Catholic faith. "In Christ Jesus there Scythian, bond nor free, but Christ is all in liberty, benevolence and concord. The unity street to the place of beginning -comprising lo of the spirit, and the bond of peace. But what means the text?

"Honour all men." What is the honour Should we simply confine it to external civilities and signs of respect? Certainly | Westerly b, the lands owned and occupied by La not, although even this tends to impress with some great peculiarity in man; for who treats an inferior animal with courtesy? We are bound to "honour all men," without distinction, because man is a being of superior capacity and delicate feeling, possessing a nature which in common with our own, has its sense of degradation and of honour. which sympathizes with us in our joys and sorrows, in the cheering influence of kind ness, and the keen resentment of neglect and contempt. Yet this is not all that is im plied in the injunction to "Honour all men!" To "honour," as the word implies, is to esti mate the value of anything, and to pro portion our regards to the ascertained value. Now we must estimate the value of man by his Creator's love, by his Saviour's sufferreligion, of morals, of intellectual advance. ment of pleasure, and of pain; we must estimate man by his relation to a life and to a death which is to come, and we shall then feel that to honour man is to respect him under these views and relations; to anxious for his welfare; to contemplate him not only with benevolence, but even with awe and fear, lest a prize so glorious should he lost: lest a being so capable of moral, in tellectual and spiritual greatness should be wrecked and ruined forever. May God bles every effort for the advancement of His glory, and for the safety and well-being our fellow-men, whether promoted by such benevolent societies as that which you repremore immediate work of God's holy church

Who dares stand idle on the harvest plain, While all around him works the golden grain? And to each servant does the master say, Go, work to-day. The toil is pleasant, the reward is sure, Blessed are those who to the end endure; How full their joy; how deep their rest shall be,

Oh, Lord with Thee. "Amen. Port of Chatham.
