HOUSE. A BAD FACE HUMOR. Covering the Face with Disfiguring, Painful Blotches, Cured by Cuticura Remedies,

About seven years ago I had a humor break out upon my face; it started in a small blotch and looked like the sting of a bee, then it spread and looked like a ringworm, and became very painful. I at once went to one of the best doctors in the city, and he Comfortable accommodation for permanent and transient guests. Commercial Travellers will also be provided with could do me no good. No tess than twelve of the best doctors have had a trial at my face, and all of them failed. I will not give you a list of their names, but will say that they were from Boston, New York, and Maine, also from England, France, and Canada. I have leen a hotel cook and steward for years. In the summer I cook at watering places; that is why I have had an opportunity of being among good doctors. They could not cure my face, and I had given up all hopes of ever being any better. Last June, I went to Moosehead Lake, Maine, to cook for the season. My-face was so bad I did not like to be seen. At the lake I met a gentleman from England. He told me to use your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and they would cure me at once. I did so. The result was, in three weeks the sores on my face were lealed up. I used it all the season. My face is all well and no scars to be seen. I have recommended it to WELLINGTON ST, - . . . CHATHAM, N. B.

CHAPTER XX. JAMES BREAKS DOWN. The registrar, not Augusta's dear Doctor Probate, but another registrar, rose and Hemlock Boards called on the case of Meeson v. Addison and Another, and in an instant the wretched piled on N. B. Trading Co's wharf, James Short was on his legs to open the

The thing not unnaturally struck the professional mind as ludicrous and without precedent. 'And who appears for the defendant?

'I may add that the interests involved in this case are very large indeed, which accounts for the number of counsel connected in one way or other with the defense.' 'Quite so, Mr. Attorney,' said the judge; 'but, really, the forces seem a little out of proportion. Of course the matter is not one in which the court can interfere.' James, 'the only reason that the plaintiff is | in a clear and vigorous voice, conscious so poorly represented is that the funds to that he was a thorough master of his case, forthcoming. 'May it please your lordship,' James began, again feeling dimly that he had read enough pleadings, 'the defendants have filed an answer pleading that the will of the 22d of December was not duly executed in accordance with the statute, and that the testator did not know and approve its contents, and an amended answer pleading that the said alleged will, if executed, was obtained by the undue influence of Augusta overcame him, and he pulled up with a jerk Then came another pause even more dreadful than the first. The judge took another note, as slowly as he could, and cleared his throat; but poo James could not go on. He could only wish that he might then and there expire, rather than face the hideous humiliation of such a failure. But he would have failed, for his very brain was whirling like that of a drunkeu man, had it not been for an occurrence that caused him forever after to bless the a me of Fiddlestick, Q. C., as the name an eminent counsel is not often blessed in this ungrateful world. For Fiddlestick, Q C., who, it will be remembered, was one the leaders for the defendants had been watching his unfortunate antagonist, till, realizing how sorry was his plight, a sense of pity filled his learned breast. Perhaps he may have remembered some occasion, the dim and distant corner of the past, when he had suffered from a similar excess of frantic terror, or perhaps he may have been sorry to think that a young man should lose such an unrivaled opportunity of making name. Anyhow, he did a noble act. As i happened, he was sitting at the right-hand corner of tho queen's counsel seats, and piled up on the desk before him was a tre mendous mass of law reports which his clerk had arranged there, containing cases to which it might become necessary to refer. Now, in the presence of these law reports. Mr. Fiddlestick, in the goodness of his heart, saw an opportunity of creating a diversion, and he created it with a vengeance. For, throwing his weight suddenly the desk, right on to the head and shoulders of his choleric client, Mr. Addison, who was sitting immediately beneath, on the solicitor's bench. Down went the books with a crash and a bang, and, carried away by their weight, down went Mr. Addison on to his nose among them-a contingency that Fiddle-

The judge made an awful face, and then, realizing the ludicrous nature of the scene, his features relaxed into a smile. He 'Yes, my lord; I do,' answered James, bounded up off the floor, books slipping off nose (which was injured) with one hand, came skipping right at his learned adviser. 'You did it on purpose!' he almost short-

ed, quite forgetting where he was; 'just let me get at him, I'll have his wig off!' and then, without waiting for any more, the entire audience burst out into a roar of laughter, which, however unseemly, was perfectly reasonable : during which Mr. Fiddlestick could be seen apologizing in dumb show, with a bland smile upon his countenance, while Mr. News and Mr. Roscoe between them dragged the outraged Addison to his seat, and proffered him handkerchiefs to wipe his bleeding nose. James saw the whole thing, and, forgetting his position, laughel, too; and, for for some mysterious reason, with the laugh his nervousness passed away.

The usher shouted 'Silence !' with tremendous energy. and before the sound had 'If your lordship will allow me,' said died away James was addressing the court brief other counsel were, I understand, not and the words to state it in would not fail colds, to croup, sore throat, lung fever, etc. Remedies, to be effective, must be adm istered without delay. Nothing is better adapted for such emergencies than Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It soothes the infla membrane, promotes expectoration, relieves coughing, and induces sleep. The prompt use of this medicine has saved innumerable lives, both of young and old.

"One of my children had croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing. and on going to it found it

Strangling.

It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had be come possible in spite of the medicine it had taken, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having a part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and in a short time it was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved its life."-C. J. Wooldridge, Wortham,
