A CAST FOR FORTUNE.

By CHRISTIAN BERT. CHAPTER XII. (Continued.)

When she was gone, Derwent for the first time looked closely at the man's face. It was dark, with finely-cut features and a tangled mass of black hair; but not even the closed eyes and relaxed muscles could soften its fierce and sinister expression.

Derwent could not but smile.

"In that case it will be better for him to die comfortably in your hospital, with Padre Francisco's good ministrations," he said. "But I am grieved beyond measure that Dona Zarifa should have been forced to an act so painful to herself, in order to save my life. It almost makes me regret that I ever came to Miraflores."

"Nonsense!" said Don Maurizio, good-naturedly. "If she feels any pain on the subject,—which I cannot believe,—it shows a morbid spirit that I would not have suspected in her. I am proud, myself, that she rose to the occasion so well. She should be grateful to have had the opportunity not only to save your life, but also to clear Senor Barrera of a very dark suspicion; as I am sure this man's confession will clear him."

"I hope it will," said Derwent; "but to take human life,—that is hard even for a man."

"To take human life,—the life of a cowardly assassin,—when it is to save the life of an unconscious man at whose back he has levelled his gun!" cried Don Maurizio, with impatience, "not unmingled with scorn."

"I should feel no more regret for that necessity than for shooting a tiger in a jungle. Neither would I. Neither, I am certain, does Zarifa. The marvellously fortunate thing is that she came upon the ground just at that moment when her presence was needed."

"Yes," said Derwent; "if she had been a minute later I should not be walking here with you now."

"He looked around, as if with a sudden sense of how near the peril had been, and how narrow the chance that he would ever look again upon the beauty of earth. Never had that beauty seemed to touch him more keenly than in connection with this thought. The long shadows of late afternoon were now stretching across the grounds through which he had watched Dona Zarifa walking in the morning, unconscious, as most of us are when the dark wing of Azrael most nearly overshadows us, that he might be looking his last upon that graceful form; the wide plain stretched into magical blueness afar to meet the luminous sky; the distant purple heights over his eyes, and the fresh, delicious air seemed fraught with blessing. He had a feeling as if a life divided from that yesterday by the gulf of a great danger, and a life which was the gift (after God) of Zarifa. It is owing to her that I am here!"

"I thought, with a rush of emotion, a sense that existence had become something dearer and more precious for that fact. 'She will tell me that she would have done the same for any one, and I know that she would have done it for the poorest peon in Mexico. No matter. It was for me that she did do it. Nothing can alter that.'"

"Almost oppressed with these thoughts, and also with the passionate desire to express them (in a modified form), he sought Dona Zarifa when he entered the house, but sought her in vain. He had by this time learned most of her habits, but in none of them was she to be found. No one had seen her for hours, not since, after having seized everything that it was in her power to do for the wounded man, she had returned to the house and gone to her own apartments, she was not there, however, when Derwent, waiting her maid, asked for her. 'No,' the senorita has gone out,' Marcella made him understand. 'I saw her pass across the court a short time ago.'"

"It will not say much for Derwent's devotional instinct that it was only when he was altogether struck in his desire to express his gratitude to Zarifa that he thought of offering the same sentiment to God. Perhaps he would not have thought of it at all,—certainly not of taking his way to church for the purpose,—had not the atmosphere of Miraflores begun to tell on him. But he had a nature readily impressed by all things beautiful, and most readily by those which were beautiful in the moral rather than in the physical order. When he saw the whole household of Miraflores, and all those on the hacienda who were able to do so, gather every morning in the beautiful chapel for the most august of all acts of worship,—when he saw the long day men, women, and children passing through its open doors, seizing a few moments from their toil to offer a petition, to leave a thanksgiving, or simply to rest soul and body as in the shelter of a father's house,—the beauty of it struck him more than words can express."

"I am afraid," said Derwent, "that will be difficult. He looks to me as if he were sinking fast. They had just left the hospital, where the subject of their conversation was lying in a state of apparent insensibility, with the doctor on one side of his bed and Padre Francisco on the other."

"I do not think he is so near death as you imagine," Don Maurizio answered. "These Indians have wonderful powers of vitality. He will rally sufficient to speak, and that is all we want. I have told the doctor to spare no effort to keep him alive and give him strength to do this. Our best hope, however, is from the influence of Padre Francisco. He will bring him to contrition and confession."

"Do you believe it possible?" "Yes," I have seen it too often not to believe it possible. Men like this are different from your originals, inasmuch as they are not able to rid themselves of the saving principle of faith. Like the devils, they believe and tremble."

General Notes and News.

The Portuguese Cabinet has resigned. The people of Sheffield, England, are suffering from the grip.

Why Not Treat? Why not treat such troubles as boils, pimples, blotches, sores, humors, eruptions, rashes, skin irritations, etc., with Burdock Blood Bitters? It is filled with virtue as a blood purifier and goes right to the right spot. It makes the skin bright and clear, while also invigorating the entire system.

Fifty members of the British Parliament have died since the last general election.

The statement that Henry M. Stanley has been appointed governor of the Congo State is officially denied.

A Winnipegger's Opinion.

The following is taken from a letter from Mr. D. Davis, Winnipeg, Man.: "Being persuaded to use Hagar's Pectoral Balm for a troublesome cold, I was entirely cured by the use of two bottles."

An American who is a collector of curiosities has been in Rome for several days trying to buy the bed on which France Napoleon died. He made an offer of $300 but it was politely but firmly refused.

Supposing you suffer from some disease. Suppose it is dyspepsia or biliousness or constipation or bad blood. Suppose you learn that Burdock Blood Bitters has cured thousands of cases of these and similar complaints. Don't you suppose you ought to try it? It cannot harm you and in nine cases out of ten it cures.

Statistics of the French wine crop for the year ended in March show that 25,775,194 bottles were exported from the champagne district during that period. This is the largest year's crop on record. The world's stock of champagnes is at present estimated at 110,256,000 bottles.

Editorial Evidence.

GENTLEMEN—Your Hagar's Yellow Oil is worth its weight in gold for both internal and external use. During the late La Grippe epidemic we found it a most excellent preventive, and for sprained limbs, etc., there is nothing to equal it.

An English publisher announces a new work entitled, "He Always pleases His Wife." It is fiction.—Boston Post.

Spring Cleaning.

Be particular every spring to clean the house, but never mind cleaning the blood until some troublesome disease takes hold of you. This is poor policy when by using Burdock Blood Bitters the blood will be thoroughly cleansed, the body strengthened, and future suffering prevented.

"Look here," growled the advertiser to the country editor; "I ordered my advertisement placed next to reading matter, and you've put it among your editorials!" Harper's Bazar.

New Free From Pain.

DEAR SIR—I have been troubled with Lame Back for about six months, and thought I would try Hagar's Yellow Oil, which cured me. Am now free from all pains, and recommend Yellow Oil very highly.

FRANK PALMER, Winona, Minn. Writers in the magazines are inquiring why more girls do not marry. We do not know how it may be in other states, but in Massachusetts we are led to believe it is because the men do not ask them to.—Somerville Journal.

For nearly half a century Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been the most popular cough remedy in the world. The constantly increasing demand for this remedy proves it to be the very best specific for colds, coughs, and all diseases of the throat and lungs.

An Editor's Advice.—Pomposus Author to veteran editor: What would you advise a man to do whose ideas are in advance of the times? Veteran Editor (promptly)—I would advise him to sit down and wait for the times to catch up.—Drugs & Magazines.

After suffering horribly for years from scrofula in its worst form, a young son of Mr. R. L. King, 708 Franklin st., Richmond, Va., was recently cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. No other medicine can approach this preparation as a cleanser of the blood.

A Wonderful Flesh Producer. This is the title given to Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil by many thousand who have taken it. It not only gives flesh and strength by virtue of its own nutritious properties, but creates an appetite for food. Use it and try your weight. Scott's Emulsion is perfectly palatable. Sold by all Druggists, at 50c, and $1.00.

Mother's! Castoria is recommended by physicians, for children's teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhoea and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mother's friend, 35 doses, 35 cents.
