PARLIAMENT was prorouged at three o'clock yesterday.

The Dominion Electoral Lists. -the revision of the Dominion Electoral Lists-is now going on, and it will be well for all interested to give necessary attention to it at the proper time. That time is now. We have not such information respecting Kent and Gloucester counties as will enable us to give all the points necessary in reference to those counties, but the processes there are similar to those specified below for Northumberland and Restigouche, for many particulars of which we are indebted to the courtesy of Hou. Judge Wilkinson, Relists are now posted in the different polling districts, together with the old lists. One list shows the names proposed to be removed from the existing list and the other the names proposed to be added thereto. Hon. Richard Hutchison died at his residence, Douglastown, on Sunday last, after an illness of a few months. He was one of the most prominent, best known A work of considerable importance and deservedly esteemed men of the province and his was, for many years, a lead. ing name in the best business, political and social circles of the country. He was a Scotchman by birth, having come from Glasgow-where he was born on 27th January, 1812-to Miramichi, in the year 1826, in the employ of the extensive firm of Gilmor, Rankin & Co., in which he soon became a partner, then the sole manager at Miramichi and afterwards sole proprietor. He also entered politics, and represented the County in the House of Assembly before Confederation, and was a member of the Smith-Anglin administration. After Confederation, on the death of the late Hon. John M. Johnvising Officer. His liberality and desire to benefit his fellow-men were manifested in various ways and many, even of his incimate friends, knew little of the unobtrusive acts of charity he performed. A striking example of his great liberality is afforded in the fact that he contributed thousands of dollars to aid his eldest daughter in building and establishing the Sailors' 30 Home in St. John-which city, ly his philanthropy.

He has just finished a tour of France, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Ita'v. made for the purpose of studying his this journey in June, and after staying a tion of drunkenness in Ireland, and particularly in Scotland, where it is said a man is not considered drunk whi'e he can lie on the ground without falling off.

CHICAGO'S EX-DRUNKARDS. Yesterday Dr. Keeley received a cable gram from Chicago announcing that the Bichloride of Gold Club has reached a membership of 1,000. This club consists of ex-drunkards who have been cured by the use of bichloride of gold at the institute in Dwight or at one of its sixteen branches in the United States. The club was formed by men who had suffered the terrors and sorrows of drunkenness and Those two were at Naples. One was a drunken boatman, the other was a young fellow returning from Sorrento in a pleasure boat. He attributed the general sobriety of all Continental nations to a habit of light wine and beer drinking, which, so to speak, begets the power of resistance that makes stronger alcoholic drinks unnecessary. and performs his annual drill by practice at a conventional armory, during one or two nights of each week throughout the summer, is infinitely better off than his fellow from the less thickly settled district, who is compelled to spend twelve days under canvas and perform most ardnous and irksome duties. The ambition to be a so dier is natural to every young man, and the volunteer comps affords an excellent opportunity for carry ng out that ambicion without in any way interfering with the ordinary duties incitent to making a living. The drill of a city soldier comes as recreation and he I tile minds the few hours spent learning the movements. The country soldier's life is not nearly as pleasant. Doubtiess he looks forward to his first camp as to a coming pienie, but the illusion is soon dispelled, one or two days under canvas being sufficient to convince him that there is much more work than play in the life. Nevertheless the companies are always we'l filled and the men seem to take a certain amount of enjoyment out of their camp life.

With the exception of two or three years, the New Brunswick camp has been held at Sassex, on the Morrison farm, a spot particularly we'l adapted for the purpose. There is ample shade under which to pitch the tests, an abandant supply of fresh water, and a fine parade ground, all the necessary requisites. On these grounds many hundreds of young men have been trained to the arts of war.

Whether or not this year's camp will be as successful as those of former years it is difficult as yet to tell, but the indications are that it will be more so. For the first time special officers are present to instruct the cavalry and artillery, and this should ensure greater proficiency than ever before. The majority of the soldiers this year are young men, most of them under 21 years of age, and officers complain that on account of the possible for the men to leave their farms many of the companies are not up to their

The camp is laid out in a very picturesque manner. The tents are pitched in regular order among the trees, and just in front of Trout Creek, which winds along the rear of the farm. The cavalry are in front, with the artillery and Infantry School Corps next, and the 67th and 71st battalions. All of the companies are in order of seniority. Seven or eight men sleep in each tent, which is in charge of a non-commissioned fficer or elderly soldier with a long ex perience. The tents are fifteen feet diameter at the base. Thus it will be seen that when the men and their traps get inside there is very little space room. In fact the tents are overcrowded. Despite this

Last May Geo. J. Clarke, police magistrate of Milltown, his escape from a Milltown officer and got appertaining. to Calais, Me. He has frequently visited this side, but the officers had not succeeded in capturing him until yesterday morning, when Marshal McClure arrested him in a rum shop near the bridge at St. Stephen and after dinner constables John Bailey and Geo. Spence started with the prisoner to drive to PROF. SMYTHE'S CLASSES St. Andrews jail. Mahar was handcuffed and everything was quiet until just as they were aproaching, Waweig bridge, eleven miles from town, when three men suddenly sprang from some bushes at the road side and while one grasped the horse's bridle the others covered the officers with three revolvers and compelled them to alight. A motion on the part of constable Spence toward his hip pocket brought two revolvers instantly in his face and but for an order from Maher himself he would probably have been shot. Bailey was compelled to remove the handcuffs from Mahar and then the desperadoes and the released prisoner taking the officers' team and one they had concealed in he woods, started towards town. A wheel on their own carriage broke and putting the harness in the other carriage, so the constables could not use it, one man mounted the horse and the others drove in the carriage towards town. A little up the road all took to one carriage. They passed around the back of the town to Mahar's shop at the Union, where his own team was in waiting and in which the party made good their escape across the border into Maine. When the assault was made the desparadoes had their faces blackened and wore long rubber coats, but it is known who hired their team at J. C.
