CHATHAM, N. B., JULY 28, 1892. MERELY A SUGGESTION OF HIS STORY.

He was copyholder in the proof-room of a daily paper—a quiet, reserved man, of whom little was known except that he was always on hand and attended closely to his business.

When he came to the list of the killed and injured in the report of the accident he suddenly stopped and for a moment seemed unable to speak. Then he recovered his self-possession and read the list.

"The last name is spelled wrong," he said quietly when he had finished to the copy, but—" He reached over and crossed out a letter. "Now it's all right," he said.

"You seem to know a good deal—" began the proof reader. "Let's finish this," said the other sharply. "But—why, man, you're sick," exclaimed the proofreader, as he looked up. "You're as white as a—"

"A little faint," was the reply, but I can finish this galley, anyway." He finished it and then without a word went for his coat. "I can't finish the night," he said, "I'll try to get around to-morrow, but to-night—"

"Look here! Where are you going?" asked the proofreader. "Home," he replied, and if there's a train in the morning I may go to— I didn't know she was coming on that train until I saw—"

He stopped, and then as he opened the door he went on: "She wrote that she would be here to-morrow or next day, and then we were to be—"

The door closed behind him. He was back two days later, and did his work in the same methodical, quiet way; but his story—no one ever asked him for the details, and he never volunteered them.—Chicago Tribune.

MILBURN'S BEEF, IRON AND WINE is recommended by Physicians as the best.

ALL DUE TO A DREAM.

SOME GOOD FAIRIES SENT A POOR LITTLE IRISH BOY HIS FORTUNE.

There died in this city on April 6th, 1890, an honest, hard working mechanic by the name of Patrick Shine, who, having accumulated some little wealth and knowing that his end was near, a few weeks previous to his death bequeathed his property to his faithful wife, Ellen, their union never having been blessed with children. The loss of her life companion prostrated the widow, and her grief was so great that just three months later—on June 6th, 1890—Ellen Shine, no longer able to bear up under her load of sorrow, quietly breathed her last to rejoin her beloved husband in another world.

Ellen Shine died intestate, and her property was taken charge of by Public Administrator James C. Pennie, who at once advertised and otherwise searched for any unknown heirs so that if they existed they could have an opportunity to present their claims.

Among the people who knew Ellen Shine was Mrs. Mary Ann Johnson, of 140 Fleet street, the wife of a mechanic, Mrs. Shine and Mrs. Johnson were both of them natives of County Cork, Ireland, and whenever they met they used to exchange reminiscences of the days of their youth. When Mrs. Johnson learned through the newspapers that her old friend had died and that the public administrator had charge of her property for the lack of legal claimants, she was greatly distressed, and the matter worried her for many weeks. In vain the good woman cudgled her brains in an endeavor to remember whether she had ever heard of any one related to Ellen Shine. She could recollect no one.

The matter occupied her mind so much that it is not all surprising that one night (Aug. 30, 1891), after retiring, still much perturbed over the fact that all the money she should go to strangers, Mrs. Johnson had her peaceful slumbers disturbed by a dream. She dreamed of Ellen Shine as a young girl home in Ireland, surrounded by a host of relatives, and conspicuous in that visionary picture from dreamland was the figure of Rev. Father James, well known to the dreamer.

When Mrs. Johnson awoke next morning she remembered her dream and thought it strange that in it Father James should be mixed up with the youthful days of her late friend. The more she pondered over this, to her, inexplicable fact the more she became convinced that the proper person to apply to for information concerning the relatives of Ellen Shine was the old parish priest, and she resolved at once to write to him.

Her surmise proved correct. In due time she received a letter from the Rev. Father James, now known as Canon Hegarty, in which he said that he knew Ellen Shine well when she was still at her Irish home; that her maiden name was Ellen Dooley, and that her nearest relative living was a nephew by the name of Joseph Cotter, residing in a village near Cork, called Carrignaver. The canon also advised Mrs. Johnson to turn the case over to some attorney at once.

Judge Levy gave satisfactory judgment, without more than the delay necessary for the purpose of obtaining the proofs of Cotter's claim from Ireland, and the young Irish lad was officially notified that he was the sole owner of a house and lot on Garden street, and another lot in the O'Neil and Healy tract, all left to him by an heir whom he had never known, by the assistance of the beneficent fairies of Dreamland.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Don't be discouraged about that eczema till you have given Ayer's Sarsaparilla a persistent trial. Six bottles of this medicine cured the complaint for George S. Thomas, of Ada, Ohio, when all other remedies failed to afford any relief.

All that now remains of the Apostles of Christ are in the following places: Seven are sleeping the sleep of the just in Rome, viz.: Peter, Philip, James the Less, Jude, Bartholomew, Matthias and Simon. The remains of three lie in the kingdom of Naples—Matthew at Salerno, Andrew at Amalfi and Thomas at Otranto. One, James the Greater, was buried in Spain, at St. Jago de Compostella. Of the exact whereabouts of the remains of St. John the Evangelist there is much dispute. Mark and Luke are buried in Italy, the former at Venice, and the latter at Padua. St. Paul's remains are also believed to be in Italy. Peter is buried in Rome, in the church which bears his name, too, are Simon and Jude. James the Lesser is buried in the Church of the Holy Apostles, Bartholomew in the church on that island in the Tiber which bears his name. The "Legends of the Apostles" places the remains of Matthias under the altar of the renowned Basilica.

A Canadian Favorite. A season of green fruits and summer drinks is the time when the worst forms of cholera morbus, diarrhoea, and bowel complaints prevail. As a safeguard Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry should be kept in the house. For 35 years it has been the most reliable remedy.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., July 19. Rumors have reached here from Timor that there has been a volcanic eruption on the Island of Sangir, one of the Philippine group, and that most of the inhabitants have been killed. A native from the Talante Islands who landed at Selangor four weeks ago brought a remarkable story to the effect that several other natives had just returned from a voyage near Sangir. They had intended to land on the island, but were prevented by the sight of mountains belching forth smoke and fire. They reported that the "whole island was on fire," that the water along the coast was full, they said, of half-burned wreckage, pieces of houses and charred bodies. The whole population, estimated at about 12,000, seemed to have been swept into the sea or burned, as not a living soul was to be seen. Streams of lava were still flowing toward the shore, showing that the activity of the volcano had not abated.

The steamship "Catterthun" from China to Sydney, brought a similar story yesterday. Near Sangir, her captain said, she passed through miles of debris, dissimilar from anything he had before seen at sea. Poles and sides of boats, of most of them charred and broken, were mingled with such utensils as the natives of the Philippines use in cooking. Many unrecognizable objects resembling charred trunks were also seen. Articles of head dress in the wreckage were identified by a sailor who had lived in the Philippines as peculiar to the natives of Sangir and the near-by islands of the Philippine group. The ship was passing through the wreckage from 10 a. m. to 1.30 p. m. These reports are partially credited here, although they are believed to have been exaggerated. The formation of Sangir is volcanic and several small craters near the centre of the island are known to have threatened activity during the last ten months.

May always be relied upon as a certain cure for liver troubles, constipation, sick headache, biliousness, dyspepsia, jaundice, and rheumatism. Unlike most cathartics, Ayer's Pills strengthen the stomach, liver, and bowels, and restore to these organs their normal and regular action. Taken in season, they check the progress of colds, fevers, and malaria. Being purely vegetable and sugar-coated, Ayer's Pills are

The Favorite Family Medicine

I know of no better remedy for liver troubles and dyspepsia. James Quinn, Hartford, Ct. Capt. Chas. Mueller, of the steamship "Polonia," says: "For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels, and thus on the ship most certainly. Pills are not scarce in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them, and with good effect, in the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."
