As a further evidence of the trust reposed in him, and to give him a chance to become thoroughbefore he mounted the footboard to take command, Billy was given a two weeks' vacation with full pay. | curve

One of his first acts was to "dress up" and to pay a visit to his sweetheart, pretty Nettie Byrnes, whose father-old Larry Byrnes-had died while Billy was serving an apprenticeship at "firing" on the engine which Larry had run for many years.

The old engineer had taken a great interest in his fireman, and rparted to him much useful inrmation, which Billy had carefultreasured up.

c'or a year past they had been gaged, and now, with the money hat he had earned in ferreting out he freight robbers and his brilliant rospects of engineer of the "Imperial," there was no reason, Billy thought, why the marriage day should not be fixed upon.

His sweetheart lived near the middle of his new "run" on the outskirts of a brisk little town where the railroad company had erected its big repair shops

Of course Nettie was delighted to hear of her lover's good fortune, and when he pressed her she blushingly consented to fix the wedding day.

It was nothing strange then that Billy should consider himself a man very much pleased and to be envied when, upon the expiration of his leave of absence, he laid a firm hand on his throttle and felt the big express locomotive throb beneath his touch. For a month he continued without adventure in his new position. Then, much to his regret, he was obliged to "lay off" for several days to testify in court against the freight car robbers who had been arrested through his efforts.

Nettie attended the trial, proud to hear her "Will" testify. The evidence against the robbers upon the engineer, and shaking his doubled fist, called down upon the young man's head the vilest and most horrible curses. "I'll have your life for this, you hound!" he cried. But the court officers forced him into a seat and compelled him to be quiet.

Nettie had been sitting beside Billy, and when the robber turned upon her lover, she uttered a frantic cry and clung to him convulsively.

She was trembling violently when lead by the engineer from the court room, and sobbed

"Oh, Will it was horrible-horrible! I fear that man. He will do you an injury.

was Billy's grim answer. "The judge will give him about ten years in the penitentiary. Before his sentence expires he will have had time to cool down and forget his foolish threats."

Oh, I hope so!" wailed Nettie; "but he looked so-so murderous. It makes me shudder even now!"

About a week after the trial, Billy and Nettie were married, and began housekeeping in a pretty little cottage at the end of the young engineer's "run," so that he could "lay off" at home.

It is to be particularly understood that all outstanding subscription accounts due after November 10th, 1892, are to be settled on the old terms, viz., $2 per year, the advertised credit rate.

I have made the foregoing changes in the business of the ADVANCE for two reasons. The first is because many patrons who have been given credit have abused the privilege to such an extent as to make the business of publishing the paper a non-paying one, and it is necessary, in my own interest and that of those who do pay, that I should no longer continue to furnish the AD JANCE to those non-paying subscribers. The second reason is that I wish to meet the competition of the city weeklies, which are made up from the type of the dailies and, therefore, cost little for production in comparison with a local paper like the ADVANCE, the type of which must be set up especially Having now published the ADVANCE for nearly 19 years, and endeavored to make it a creditable representative of Miramichi and North Shore enterprise - a paper which may be taken into any household without fear that it has catered to sensationalism at the sacrifice of that cleanliness of matter, which is too often neglected by the press of the day-I have reason to hope the foregoing announcement will meet with general approval and be the means of largely increasing the circulation and influence of the paper.
