The Intercolonial.

Everybody in the country will be glad to hear that, pursuant to hi sonage. "My acquaintance with formerly expressed ideas of reforming the management of the Intercolonial Railway, Hon. Mr. Haggart, Minister which resulted in a Hoarseness and of Railways, has brought into effect the principle of centralising the control of that great public work in Moncton. Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, who has been general manager of Government Railways at Ottawa, has resigned that position to take the office of Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals-one that he is splendidly equipped to fill and has fairly earned by long and faithful public service. He succeeds Mr. T. Trudeau, who has been thirtyreport my experience of its use to three years in office and twenty-four years a deputy-minister, under different governments.

Mr. D. Pottinger, under the new arrangement, becomes general manager of government railways, with headquarters at Moncton. He has been connected with railway work for about thirty years, first in Nova Scotia and, afterwards, as Storekeeper and Chie Superintendent of the Intercolonial at Moncton. He is a comparatively young man, being only in his fiftieth year, and while affable and courteous, is possessed of the firmness that will doubtless, be necessary in giving effect to the new policy of economical administration undertaken by Minister Haggart, This change is in accord with and Charitable purposes, and its franchise made a part of the present State constitution, in 1879, by an overwhelming popular vote. those who patronise the road, and who place Semi-Annually, (June and December,) and its have, heretofore, experienced much inconvenience from the fact of the in each of the other ten months of the year, and are all drawn in public, at the Academy of Music, New management being so largely controlled from Ottawa. Geo. V. McInerney, M. P.

This seems to be an "off season" for convention-made candidates for Ottawa. Only the other day, Mr. Geo. Robertthe Liberal-Conservative party in St. John was handsomely beaten by Mr. John A. Chesley, and on Tuesday two convention-made candidates in Kent were beaten by Mr. Geo. V. McInerney who ran as an independent Liberal-Conservative. The regular nominee of the Liberals was Hon. O. J. LeBlanc, of the polling was :

McInerney, 1317 LeBlanc, Johnson.

Mr. McInerney, therefore, leads Le-Blanc 363 and Johnson 458, while Le-Blanc leads Johnson 95. While the defeated candidates are gentlemen of exis by great odds, the best fitted all respects for the position to which he has been chosen. A large majority of the electors of Kent are French and their prejudices were appealed to in behalf of the candidates of their own nationality, by the French newspaper the Moniteur Acadien—as well as creditable to the County as a whole that its electors returned the man best qualified to be their parliamentary representative. Mr. McInerney will add materially to the strength of the already superior contingent of eloquent speakers representing the Maritime

Canada's Future. Six thousand people gathered in Sohmer Park, Montreal, the other night to listen to a debate on the future of under the management of one, Lavigne, who is referred to as the Barnum of Canada. He charged them ten cents each for admission, but, for all that, the meeting took on the character of popular gathering of an essentially representative character. Amongst those present were members of the Quebec government and legislature, including Count Mercier, also of the parliament of Canada, common council of Montreal, mayors of cities and ladies. There were four principal speakers, Mr. Cardinal who advocated continuance of the present relationships of Canada with the mother country Professor McGoun of McGill University, who favored Imperial Federation, Mr. Lemieux, who advocated Independence and Mr. Elgin Myers, an nexationist. Each speaker received a good hearing, with exception of Mr. Myers, who was very frequently interrupted by Professor McGown's few supporters, most of whom were University students. The audience had the privilege of voting after the speeches were delivered and over three thousand did so, by means of ballots, which they received on entering the vast building. The result was as follows :-For Canadian independence.....1617

"Imperial Federation..... Some of the papers appear to believe hat they do well in making an atsentiment amongst the people in favor of Canada setting up for herself as an independent nation. We have twice as many people as Denmark, Greece, Norway, Switzerland or Brazil, as many as Portugal or Sweden, more than the Argentine Republic, Bolivia, Chili Columbia or Peru, while there are more people in some of our many provinces than are in any one of half a dozen of the smaller South American and insular states. The Bass Fishery. We hope that the Miramichi bass The whole of the palings, timber and fishery matter, now that it is in process spool wood exported by the different of settlement, will not be hastily disposed of, or the regulations which are to govern it, passed without due regard to the conditions which affect it in different localities. The trouble heretofore has been that the fact of at least three distinctive fisheries, each different in its season and processes, existing on the Miramichi has not been properly recognised. Each has its commercial value and each requires regulations suited to its conditions. At the present time there is but the one bass fishery to be regulated. It is, that 134 103,565 94,907,523 of the Northwest Miramichi, and the restrictions required are we think very simple and easily enforced. If the Department makes the mistake of permitting indiscriminate fishing over all parts of the fishing ground where the bass lie the river will soon be exhausted and same danger of extinction threaten there was three years ago. A more important restriction, however, than that of reserving a portion of the fishing ground unmolested by the fishermen's scoop-nets, is that respecting the capture of small bass. The regulation of the size of scoop-net meshes is very well in its way, but everybody acquainted with the subject knows that it is evaded and son, who was chosen by a convention of pretty openly ignored. Indeed, nothing is simpler than i's violation, and, owing to the small area of net required, it is almost impossible for officers to preven illegal-sized ones being used by fishermen who are disposed to do so.

If there is not, therefore, some more stringent regulation against the taking of under-sized bass, the fishery will, in a short time, be rendered valueless. The and that of the Liberal-Conservatives | correct principle seems to be to get at the was Mr. Basil Johnson, and the result | shipper, not only by the usual confiscation of his whole shipment, which is now the penalty of detection in shipping these small fish, but by a money penalty or imprisonment also. It is, therefore, very est offenders. Let the regulations be aimed at the detection and punishment of these gentlemen, for if they were all driven out of the trade, it would be better for everybody in the end. There might not be so many fish caught and shipped this year, or next, but the average fer ten years would be better, the fishery would be maintained and greater respect for and understanding of the benefit of the regulations prevail amongst those interested.

Native Rulers.

There have been only four first ministers and two changes of Government since

The first, under the premiership of Sir John A. Macdonald, lasted from 1867 to 1873; the second, under the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, from 1873 to 1878; the third, under Sir John A. Macdonald, from 1878 to 1891; and the fourth from Sir John A. Macdonald's death to the retirement of Sir John Abbott.

Of these Sir John Abbott was the only litical matters as Protestants. It is a good native born Canadian, Sir John Thompson thus being the second of native birth to hold the reins of government since Canada became a united country.

Canadians in the U. S.

The United States census returns from 1890 show that the number of Canadians in the United States in that year was 980,941 as compared with 717,157 in 1880, an increase of 263,784, or about 37 per cent. The number of Canadians in the New England states in 1890 was 380,-167, as against 175,426 in 1880, showing that in ten years the number has considerably more than doubled. The division of the population of Canadians in the New England States is: English, 174,-406; French, 205,761. In Massachusetts | bad in itself and insulting in form, opthe increase is very marked. The number of Canadians residing there in 1890 being 207,601, as against 74,203 in 1880.

this bust. We are gradually collecting within this cathedral the Lares and the Penates-the household gods-of our commonwealth. Up above there sleep Wellington and Nelson, those lords of war who preserved the empire; below here we have the effigies of Dalley and Macdonald, who did so much to preserve it. We have not, indeed, their bodies. They rest more fitly in the regions where they lived and labored; but here to-day we consecrate their memory and their example. We know nothing of party politics in Canada on this occasion. We only recognize this, that Sir John Macdonald had grasped the central idea that the British empire is the greatest secular agency for good now known to mankind that that was the secret of his success and that he determined to die under it, and strove that Canada should live under it. It is a custom, I have heard, in the German army that when new colors are presented to a regiment the German emperor first, and then his princes and chiefs in their order each drive a nail into the staff. I have sometimes been reminded of this practice in connection with the banner of our empire. Elizabeth and her heroes first drove their nails in, and onward through the expansive eighteenth century, when our flag flashed everywhere, down to our own times, during the winter, the stock frequenting Yesterday it wrapped the corpse of Tennyson; to-day we drive one more nail in on behalf of Sir John Macdonald. This standard so richly studded imposes on us, the survivors, a solemn obligation. It would be nothing were it the mere symbol of violence and rapine, or even of conquest. It is what it is because it represents everywhere peace and civilizaion and commerce, the negation of narrowness and the gospel of humanity. Let us then to-day by the shrine of this signal statesman, once more remember our responsibility and renew the resolution that, come what may, we will not flinch

Lord Rosebery then formally unveiled the bust, and it was unanimously admitted that the features were an excellent like ness of the deceased statesman.

> A. B. SWEEZEY. A New Fish-drying Process.

THE DRYING PROCESS PATENTED BY T. S WHITMAN OF ANNAPOLIS. SOME PARTI-CULARS OF ITS NATURE AND THE MGDUS OPERANDI EXPLAINED.

[Halifax Chronicle.] A few days ago, we briefly noted the im-Thos. S. Whitman of Annapolis, and which is said to be giving satisfaction to those engaged in the fish trade. Believing that further and more definite information as to the nature of the process and mode of operation would be of interest to the general pubticulars, when the following conversation took place :-

"I understand you have perfected, and have now in practical working, a new process for drying fish, independent of the sun or fine outdoor weather?"

"Yes, I have laid in stock about 20,000 quintals of green salted cod, haddock and hake, which I am now drying most success? fully by my new process, quite independent of out door weather."

"Have any attempts been made before this to dry fish artificially ?"

"Yes, particularly in Newfoundland, where I am reliably informed much money and time have been spent to accomplish this much desired end. But in every case, without any exception, the result has proved an entire failure and large quantities of fish have been spoiled."

"What are the main features of your process and wherein does it differ from others that have failed !"

"I have closely studied the process of out door fish drying in climates where the best grades of fish are cured and dried, as at Gaspe, the coast of Norway, etc., and have studied diligently the causes of evaporation, the prime cause of which is the temperature of the atmosphere which surrounds or passes over the substance to be dried. Air when heated takes up moisture like a sponge, and cold air, (which expels moisture) coming in contact with heated air, partakes of the heat and with it moisture. So in passing cold air over warm fish the fish gives out its moisture as it is cooled by the air and the air in turn takes up the moisture as it rehis duties as manager of the Intercolonial ceives heat from the fish. It follows that if this air was forced to pass quickly over the warm fish that it will take off with it moisture, and if the fish can be kept warm by the sun, or any artificial means, and at the same time cool or cold (colder the better) air is forced over the surface of the fish, constant evaporation is the result.

Fish, and particularly codfish, have in them a glutinous substance which if properly dried or evaporated becomes very tough. But if subjected to heat, say over 85 degrees to 90 degrees, it loses its toughness and be comes either soft and oily or brittle. This is why so large a quantity of fish are spoiled in summer months on our coast by the hot sun on calm days, and has been the main cause of the failure of all former attempts to dry artifically by heat. I place my fish on wire net trays, over iron pipes warmed by hot water, all encased with flues at the top to carry off the moisture and opening at the bottom to admit currents of cool or cold air. To force these currents of air over the fish in imitation of a strong cold wind on a bright sunny day (such as would be a good fish drying day at Gaspe in June), I place in the main shaft or flue (to which all the flues lead from the several compartments,) a large exhaust fan which is driven at high speed (say 1,500 revolutions per minute) by a small oil engine or water motor; or it may be by a windmill- although the latter is objectionable, depending on wind. This causes a strong current of air to pass constantly over the fish spread on trays in the several compartments and steady evaporation is the result, taking from 30 to 48 hours to dry the "To make fish suitable for Brazil, Havana or the British W. I. markets, I extract more or less salt from the fish before placing them on the dryers and prefer to only partially dry them. Then give them 4 or 5 days on sweat pile, or they may remain in this half dried state for months in cold weather, and can be prepared for shipment with 10 or 12 hours' second drying." "How do you heat the pipes with hot

"I simply use an ordinary hot water heatng apparatus, the same as private or public buildings are heated with. I place a hot Come along everyone, old and young will be treated with civility water boiler on the house (where the fish are washed out) so that the workmen will have it comfortable to work in winter months, passing hot water pipes through as well as around the tanks in use for washing the fish in.
