THE DEATH of Mrs. Daniel Crimmen, of Chatham, took place yesterday morning. and causes great sorrow in a very large circle of relatives and friends by whom she was highly esteemed for her amiable qualities. The funeral is to take place tomorrow at half past two o'clock.

COUNTERFAIT QUARTERS. -Counterfeit quarters are being circulated and merchants should be on the lookout for them. Mr. J. J. Bourgeois is the recipient of one of the worthless coins, which from appearance cannot be told from the good. This one bears the date of 1872, and has an old look. When thrown on the counter the counterfeits are easily detected. -[Times.

S. PAUL'S .- The great festival of Our Lord's Nativity will be celebrated (D. V.) with the usual services in S. Paul's and S. Mary, s churches, which are now being decorated for the occasion, The first festival service will be in S. Mary's on Christmas Eve at 6.30 p. m., at which a Christmas anthem and carols, with other special music will be sung. The 2nd service will be a midnight celebration of the Holy Eucharist on Christmas Eve in S Mary's, beginning at 12 o'clock. A solemn Te Deum will be sung after the celebration in honour of the Holy Redeemer. The 3rd service will be a celebration of the Holy Eucharist in S. Paul's at 8 o'clock a. m. on Christmas Day. The 4th service will be in S. Mary's at 11 o'clock on Christmas Day. Before this service and during the ringing of the church bell the children of the Sunday School will sing Christmas Carols. The 5th service will be at S. Paul's church at 3 o'clock p. m. on Christmas Day. The offerings at the midnight celebration and Christmas Day services will be for the sick and needy.

Assigned:-Everybody who knows Mr. George Stothart, of Chatham, will be sorry to hear that he has been obliged to make an assignment for the henefit of his creditors. He was endorser on the notes of F. W. Sweezey of Napan, who went into insolvency a few weeks ago and Mr. Stothart, in justice to his creditors generally, has placed his estate in the hands of Mr, P. H. C. Benson and his brother, Mr. Wm. C. Stothart.

The liabilities, direct and indirect, are understood to be about $17,000 and the assests, nominally, $14,000, but as a large portion of the latter is in real estate, the realisable value of it under a peremptory sale would be much short of that placed upon it. In the trust deed preferences are made, in order, as follows:-

Wm. C. Stothart to cover endorsements on paper in the Bank of Nova Scotia. $4,500; P. H. C. Benson, $300; John McDonald, $1,000; Jane Creighton, $800; Thos. Haviland, $300; Ernest Fleiger, $300; Jas. Nicol, $200; W. Connors, $200.

The Hotel Dieu Fair

The holiday fair under the auspices of the sisters of the Hotel Dieu, Chatham, opened on Tuesday afternoon and was well attended. a very attractive one. A leading feature is Santa Claus, personated by Miss Gertrude Hall, who is constantly surrounded by an interesting bevy of little ones. The music by St. Michael's orchestra, led by Mr. Arch. McEacheran is another attraction, to say nothing of the many young ladies, who are willing to assist the patrons of the fair in the investment of their money. Tea was served on Tuesday evening and was enjoyed by a large number of visitors. There will be a similiar function to-day when the fair will close. The usual features of attraction fill continue to-day, and excellent opportunities to secure Christmas and New Year presents for friends are offered.

The Fitzpatrick Scott Act Case.

In the supreme court at Fredericton Tuesday, judgement was given in the appeal case of Mrs. Fitzpatrick of Nelson.-This was an application made to Judge Palmer for a habeas corpus, and referred by him to the court, for the discharge of applicant who was in custody in Northumberland for violation of the C. T. A. The ground urged was that defendant, having pointed out to the constable (Menzies) sufficient property to satisfy the fine-a cask of whiskey worth $150-she was improperly committed to prison. Judges Hanington and Palmer held that the liquor was property that could be taken under a distress warrant, that there proved. was nothing in the C. T. A. to prevent a sale thereof for judicial purposes, and that, discharge of defendant.

The first intimation that Geller had that he was Peters. a member of the firm no longer was a sight of the sign over the door that reads "Gold berg" simply. The second intimation he had that his commercial status was altered was the seizure of his furniture for $1000 The display of useful and fancy articles is rent alleged to be due the holder of the fort. Geller was so incensed at this that he forth with told the customs people how in times past American goods were smuggled into Halifax by way of Windsor. He said there were many dollars worth of stuff in the store at present that had never paid duty. Officer Beckwith put the broad arrow on the establishment and a lock on the door. Mr. Goldberg engaged counsel. McAlpine was instructed to interpose and take possession of the fort. The customs officers and the both parties get an inventory of the contents of the shop. Mr. Beckwith proposed calling on almost every night of drill. in Geller to point out the American goods supposed to have been smuggled. But Gold berg vowed vengeance if Geller entered. Geller did not get in. Now, information alleges, Geller himself may be punished, as it is alleged that it was he who did the business abroad and piloted the packages into Halifax without paying duty. Goldberg declares Geller on one occasion swore at customs house that certain goods had not come from a foreign country, when as matter of fact they had, and Goldberg proposes to retaliate on Geller by having the latter arrested for perjury .- Halifax Mail.

The Shatford Case.

The old saying, that it is not well to be lieve one half of a story until the other half is told, seems to be exemplified in the Shatford case which is still occupying Judge Tuck's court in St. John. The affidavits submitted last week left Mr. Shatford decidedly on top, but the answer in behalf of Mrs. Shatford, which was made on Monday last puts quite a different complexion on the controversy. The Globe of Monday

Mrs. Shatford had an inning before Judge Tuck to-day in the presence of a large crowd. Nineteen affidavits in her interest

Hannah Lane, of Sheffield street, ever having improper relations with Charles Campbell, She did not know Campbell and had never seen or heard of his being on Sheffield street. She first saw him last week when he was identified by Mr. Hurd

Fanny Stewart admitted having made affidavit that Campbell visited Harnah Lane at her house, but said it was not the Charles Campbell connected with this suit The other Campbell was taller than Mr. Charles Campbell and wore dark whiskers

Ira Stewart did not know of Campbell ever visiting his wife's house. Hurd Peters testified he had known Charles Campbell from boyhood and believed his morals to be good and had seen Campbell shown to the persons above and heard them make the above statements.

Col. Tucker and Capts. Edwards and enlisting all the friends I can in the move-Sturdee, of the Fusiliers, swore to the great sheriff's men conflicted. It was decided that interest Mr. Campbell took in the militia and told of seeing him about the drill shed

> Charles Campbell denied having visited the house of Fanny Stewart; he did not know Hannah Lane and never had improper relations with her. He denied that Abner Secord or any one else had ever seen him going into Fanny Stewart's or any other house on Sheffield street. Secord he described as a bad man and said he was in Shatford's employ when the Standard oil warehouse was burned. A valuable machine, said to have been burned, Mr. Campbell declared was afterwards found in Secord's possession. He (Campbell) often went to the drill shed, and sometimes on the way home went along Sheffield street between Wentworth and summer he had gone to the foot of Wentworth street to enjoy the scenery and the

was a prince and to help his costume she lent him a valuable diamond ring that he took away and the only correspondence she had with him was for the return of it, and she told Mr. Shatford all about it. All stories about his intimacy with her were untrue. She never told Florence Shatford of the attentions of young men, nor that she had allowed them to kiss her, but on several occasions she found it necessary to reprove Florence for her conduct. She never made engagements with young men to see her home from church, nor did she go for walks interest in her children. She had given Harry Kaye a ring, but it was for kindness to Florence Shatford and herself, and Mr. Shatford knew all about it. When Shatford bjected to his friendship it ceased. She ship. denied ever having given paregoric to any of her children. The only travellers she saw in Digby were two that she had met at the on Mrs. Simonds and herself. Florence Shatford accompanied her home from the Centuries exhibition and they reached home at an early hour, usually accompanied by Robert P. Hazen, who seemed to be attentive to Florence Shatford. She would not eare for Florence Shatford to have the care of her children because of her youth and frivolity, and thought her statement that she, (Mrs. Shatford) was not capable of caring for them, a gratuitous piece of malice and impertinence. Two letters from Shatford's mother were then read enquiring why the couple were not living together. These etters made strictures on the business dealngs with his father. One was addressed to Shatford, and Judge Tuck severely censured Mrs. Shatford for not having delivered it. Continuing her statements Mrs. Shatford denied the statements of Wm. Manson and the others who swore to seeing her about the Ballast wharf. She positively declared she was not there once in 1892. Manson once called and offered to give her some information about the other side and wanted her to meet him, but she declined to do so. She understood he was a very bad man. Judge Tuck-He has a good father and Mrs. Shatford next pointed out that both Lizzie Griffin and Hannah Conboy were relatives of Abner Secord and said they were employed on his recommendation to her husband after the Warehouse fire. She denied many objections made concerning her as to her going walking with young men, keeping company, visiting the pier at night with Robert Campbell, being in the vestibule of her house with Campbell, giving presents to Evill. She denied that the letters Shatford found were hidden, and said they did not contain endearing terms. She never wrote to Harry Kaye to call, and said Kaye's nother never called to remonstrate with her. Shatford's father never offered her a home. Shatford himself could not support her. Mr. Hazen wished to read affldavits, but the Judge would not allow him. The smiles that may have greeted propositions hitherto made by him for the betterment of mankind in general, and the Four Hundred in particular, will doubtless be supplanted on this occasion with cries of "Good," for he and the gentlemen associated with him have tackled a subject that is uppermost in the minds of men who have a thought for the condition of our city's hungry poor. It is in behalf of this element that Mr. Teall is now heard.

"It is said that no man in New York city need go hungry," said Mr. Teall to a reporter yesterday afternoon. "Perhaps this is so, and perhaps it is not. As a matter of fact many do go hungry, and many die for want of nourishment. And yet thousands of dollars are given away to beggars in the

"When we are possessed of a list of such places we will describe them geographically and have copies of the paper relating to them distributed among the police force of the city, so that every policeman will be able to send a hungry person to a place near by where a free meal is to be obtained.

"A man who is approached for alms in the street, instead of giving a sum of money will simply direct the person making the request to a policeman who will in turn tell him where he can get food.
