[Continued from 1st Page.] a veil of repose, and the air was as still as we see it on a summer day in the country.

The silence was broken only by the humming of bees and the murmuring of the streamlets as they laved the vines which hung in the ripples, swinging lazily up and down. When I placed my foot upon a flat stone, which led across one of these, I heard the echo come back from the wall, and the boy held up his finger to enjoin caution.

I followed him in silence almost to the end of the garden, when, crossing a stream and turning suddenly to the left, he pointed me to a rustic summer house and turned back. Two vines were so bent as to form an opening, and a mass of matted vines hung swinging over it for a shutter. I drew this aside and found myself in the presence of Carlotta.

She sat half reclining in a hammock of silk cord, swung across from tree to tree, and was dressed in the usual afternoon costume of the country; a loose flowing robe of white muslin, not confined at the waist, but left loose alternately to hide and disclose the sweeping contour of her form.

Her hair was arranged in heavy madonna plaits, only confined at the end and falling loosely over her spotless neck. She wore small red morocco slippers, but when I en-tered one of them had fallen off and was lying on the ground, and the foot from which it had fallen was hanging coquettishly over the cord of the hammock, and alas! covered by no stocking. She had large, swimming black eyes, a small, pouting mouth, red lips and a clear though somewhat brunette complexion.

"Buenos tardi, senor," she said, at the same time throwing a fold of her robe over her blue veined foot, not, however, until it was plain that she wished me to see it first. "Sentarse, senor," she continued, drawing up her feet and pointing to the end of the hammock, where I was not long in seating myself. Reaching over the side of the hammock, she took up a small maquey basket filled with oranges, figs and grapes and presented it to me with one of those smiles which only a southern coquette knows how to use. I took an orange, and we began to talk. "How long will you be in Merida?" she

"As long as I can enjoy myself," I replied, "and that promises a long visit." She turned those large eyes upon me searchingly and asked:

"Is there anything in Merida to interest "Oh, much!" I exclaimed; "more, much more than I had imagined." "Until when?" she inquired quickly, still gazing at me.

"Until last night," I replied, returning "At the fandango?" she pursued. "Yes; and on the balcony, in the moonlight," I answered.

She turned the conversation most abruptly, but in such a manner as to let me see hour of indifferent things, she always turnfeel that we were upon uncertain ground.

I was too near her. Her glances and tones were too ardent for this to last long. I was young, impulsive, giddy headed and full hearted. I threw my arm around her waist and poured out, I fear, a very incoherent medley of English, French and Spanish. She hid her face, blushing and trembling but as I proceeded the time! trembling, but as I proceeded she timidly raised her eyes and listened quietly, mak ing no effort to escape my arm.

Indeed I could see plainly enough that she was pleased. I knew that in a minute

I should press my lips to hers unresisted. I was just about to do so, when a noise behind like the jumping of a heavy man from the top of the wall made me start and spring to the ground. Before I could reach the door, however, the vines were jerked aside, and O'Farrell strode hastily in. "Tom, my boy!" he exclaimed without noticing Carlotta, "you must come away from here, quick. I haven't even time to tell you why till we get into the street. Come," he continued, dragging me almost off my feet, "this way over the wall. Quick!" Scarcely knowing what I was about, I leaped down into the street. Jerry followed, and seizing my arm he hurried me away down a small narrow street and by a circuitous route to the meson. "You are young and imprudent!" he exclaimed almost breathless, as we at last slackened our pace. "I wouldn't have you killed for all old De la Torre's wealth." "Killed!" said I. "What do you mean?"

"Mean! Why, I mean if you had staid there 15 minutes longer you would have been-a dead man! I saw the skulking rascal Benito talking to the same cutthroat he hired last year to shoot at me. I managed to listen, and you can guess what I heard from what I did. You must be more careful. You are young and green." He was right. I was green.

CHAPTER III. Time rolled on very pleasantly. The scenes were all new, and I was at precisely the age when our enjoyment is keenest. Jerry was pursuing his own schemes of pleasure in his wild way, and I was left almost alone to find what enjoyment I might. Several times I had met Carlotta in the garden, but the knowledge that Benito watched us closely made our interviews short and stolen. She had told me all her history; how she had been affianced by her parents to her cousin when both were children; how time had revealed to her the dark and unlovable traits of his character; how with many tears she had made up her mind to the sacrifice; how love for the memory of her dead parents had induced her to do so. But she said she love him. I pressed her timidly to say whether she loved another, but either she was unwilling to speak or we were always interrupted and I forced to make a precip-

Things were in this state on the evening before Christmas. I still lingered on without more plainly declaring what I felt (you see by this time that I was deeply in love), and she was unwilling to forestall my declaration. On that night I went to the Church of the Incarnacion to hear mass at

With a light Spanish mantle thrown over my shoulders, I stood among the kneeling throng, I confess not overdevout. A crowd of women came rustling in. As they passed me I felt my mantle slightly pulled, and on turning saw the bright eyes of Carlotta bent on me for a moment and

"Agua, madre," she whispered to her aunt, whom she called mother, and they both knelt very near me. I stepped lightly around them and seated myself on a kind of dais which ran along the side of the church, very near to Carlotta. I had not have there more than five minutes when been there more than five minutes when she looked up with one of those long, furtive looks which are so charming from a dark, liquid eye. It was dusky where we were, but there was sufficient light for me to see a small note pinned to the corner of her mantilla, and to that she directed me by a glance. Changing her posture, she threw the mantilla close to me. Covering

My mother feet My mother, father and Benito will be in the procession tomorrow at 3 p. m. I shall have a headache, so that I cannot go, but will be at home. Santiago will bring you the key.

I went back, caught her eye resting inquiringly on me, and slightly nodding as a token that I would be there retired from

When I got back to my lodgings, I searched for the note for the purpose of destroying it or reading it again perhaps, but it was nowhere to be found. I hastened back to the church, supposing I might have dropped it there, but I could see nothing

Benito was standing near where I had eat, but he did not move, only glancing at erms etc., apply to me and withdrawing his gaze. He seldom noticed me now; indeed never, except by one of those sinister looks which promise no good feeling. It was but a few months before the day fixed for his marriage with Carlotta, and he watched his prize with a jealousy truly Spanish.

The note was not to be found. On the following day, Christmas, the procession was formed at the Church of the Incarnacion and moved for the cathedral at 3 o'clock. About the same time the peon boy entered the "meson" and handed me a on St. Martin street."

I went down immediately on the marching of the procession. The streets were entirely deserted, so that I had no trouble in entering unobserved. The little postern on St. Martin street opened directly on the rear of the summer house, into which I was not long in going.

In precisely the costume I have before described, she sat swinging in the hammock, beauty, grace and vivacity combined. "Ah, amigo mio!" she cried playfully as I entered. "You have kept me waiting too long!" I stepped forward, and seating myself at her feet took her extended hand and

"The hour you named is not yet past," "Well, well," she replied, running her hand through my hair. "You are here now at all events. I will not complain since you have come." "Did you wish to see me very much indeed?" said L "Can you ask?" And she gave me a look which said more plainly than any words could that she wanted to see me alone of all the world. What could I do? I took her hand in one of mine, and placing the other round her waist drew her gently to

"Do you love me, then?" I whispered. She gazed in my face a moment, and then throwing her arm over my shoulder abandoned herself to my caresses. The crack of a rifle resounded through the garden, and with a wild scream she sprang from my arms and fell to the ground. I jumped from the hammock, and drawing a pistol rushed out upon the walk. Another crack resounded among the trees, and a ball whistled by close to my head. Immediately afterward I heard footsteps hurrying away. I pursued, but as I came in sight of the gate on the Calle Real it was closed and locked from the outside. I climbed to the top of the wall, but no one was visible on the street. The protar as the eye could reach not a human being was visible.

I returned to the arbor and found Santi- Water Street, ago and a peon woman lifting Carlotta upon a bench. The ball intended for me had entered her temple, and she was dead. Her face was turned upward, and the blood was slowly dripping from the wound to the ground. Young, innocent, passionate and that it cost her an effort. "My master will be home soon, and you "My master will be home soon, and you must not let him find you here. Juanna

He was right. I could do no good by staying and might do harm. Telling the boy to say to his master that I would call upon him on the following day and explain my connection with her death, I looked for the last time upon the lifeless form and slowly left the place.

The remainder of my story is soon told. Her uncle never knew by whose hand she had died, but the disappearance of his son led him to suspect Benito. The latter left the city immediately after the procession. He was observed to talk a moment with a Mexican, and then disappearing down a street near by he was seen no more.

Yet his own hand had not done the deed, for he was in the procession at the time and throughout the mass. The explanation I suppose to lie in the fact that he had got information in some way of the appointment, probably by finding the note which I had dropped, and having hired two assassins purposely showed himself in the procession in order to escape the suspicion of having murdered me, for whom the shot was intended. All efforts to arrest him were unsuccessful, probably because they were discouraged by his friends.

We staid in the city long enough to witness the magnificent funeral service of the Catholic church, with what feelings I will not stop to stay. I called to see her uncle, but I am now not surprised that he refused to see me. On the following day we went to Sisal. Here I took shipping for La Habana and have not been in Merida since. OSCAR C. THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN

Stomach Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years. It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public.

This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nervine tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver and the bowels. No remedy compares with this wonderfully valuable Nervine Tonic as a builder and strengthener of the life forces of the human body, and as a great renewer of a broken-down constitution. It is also of more real permanent value in the treatment and cure of diseases of the lungs than any consumption remedy ever used on this continent. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life, should not fail to use this great Nervine Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them safely over the danger. This great strengthener and curative is of inestimable value to the aged and infirm, because its great energizing properties will give them a new hold on life. It will add ten or fifteen years to the lives of many of those who will use a half dozen bottles of the remedy each year. IT IS A GREAT REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF NERVOUS DISEASES. As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments: disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied.

This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous de-CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., Aug. 20, '86. REBECCA WILKINSON, of Brownsvalley, Ind., To the Great South American Medicine Co.:

DEAR GENTS:—I desire to say to you that I

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITAS' DANCE OR CHOREA. CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., June 22, 1887. My daughter, eleven years old, was severely a dicted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nervine and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause.

INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA. The Great South American Nervine Tonic Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incal-culable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the one and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic. HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says:

"I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed downsthrough several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boen; If you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restere you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks. and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses
