MIGHTY HUNTERS :- Messrs. Dr. Fish and Wm. Murray returned home last week from a hunting trip on the head of the Northwest. They brought home a carter pell and some partridge. Large game is reported plaiful, though wild, and the lack of snow enables the game to keep away from the dangerous vicinity of hunters. When the deep snow comes they are literarly murdered. SCANDALOUS NEGLECT.-Mr. Thomas Ramsay of Redbank, informs us that he was driving from the Chatham Ferry to Newcastle oue night not long ago, having picked up a commercial traveller on the way, and would have driven over the front of the abutment erected for the new Douglastown bridge but for a woman shouting to him to turn back and take the road to the right leading over the temporary bridge. Mr. Ramsay says the approaches to the chasm on both sides were not protected by any fence, while the highway led directly into the danger. Such criminal neglect is almost incredible.

The result of the enquiry was that no bass licenses are to be granted for fishing below the bridge at St. Louis. and that the fishermen whose places down the rivers had been taken from them are to receive back their old privileges.
