For men may come and men may go, but I'll go on forever

The deep, melodious voice came floating up to where a picturesque groop of young girls sat under a large tree. They evidently had been reading; but now consternation was written on every face. 'A Man, a live man. Wonders!'

Sh --! 'Oh, he's coming this way!' 'Say, Ida, do look at the cut of is trousers.

'Let me see; why, it is nearly five o'clock! It takes me at least an hour to curl my hair. I never will be ready for dinner, Hurriedly gathering their scatter-ed books, the girls made a rush for their cottages. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup positively cures Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hoarseness and Bron-Huronia Beach, usually so gay, is this summer very quiet, and is chiefly devoted to women and children. A man is quite a luxury. No wonder then at all this outcry.

'I wonder when I will ever come to the end of these foot-prints,' murmured the man.

He is very handsome, tall, broad shouldered, with blonde hair, deep blue eyes, a decidedly firm mouth, with a drooping mustache. He walks with quite a military air, and seems quite out of place in this Pectoral Balsam, and I am glad to say wild, picturesque reteat.

'Ah,' this is the first word that has passed his lips for some time. His eye suddenly rests on some writing in the wet sand. He spells | Cal., assessed the horses on Palo Alto farm it out slowly. "'J-A-C-K-., Well, at $500,000.

I wonder if I have been fool enough to be following some boy's foot-prints? But no, a boy would hardly stop and write his name in the sand, and besides, that little eases, from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore which has held popular foot never belonged to anyone but a pretty girl. 'Jack, evidently is her sweetheart, but as long as he is not with her I will keep on. He starts forward again, with a much more brisk walk than before. of her life is the knowledge that she is He does not have far to go, for just a short distance ahead of him he catches sight of a dainty little foot peeping out from behind a huge boulder. Fred McDermott thinks he never saw such a pretty picture in all his wandering, as he leans against the rock and looks at the sweet sleeper beneath. A mass of dark hair is thrown back from the white brow, and long lashes lay lightly on the flushed cheeks; the features are classical and her dress, of a becoming shade of blue, fits well the perfect figure.

At a short distance from the girl is a neatly covered basket. He lifts it carefully and takes off the ada beef, and soluble scale salts cover. Much to his surprise he finds a tempting lunch to be its contents. Surely she will never miss it if he takes a little of her lunch. So, forgetful of the eighth comandment, he seats himself on the sand with his back to the sleeper, and commences at a rapid rate (Next door to the Store of J. B. 'Well'! is all that escapes her lips ; then suddenly a bright light comes into her face, as she sees the blonde head of the stranger bent over her basket. She tiptoes her way to him, then suddenly throws her arms around his neck and says: Dear, old Tom, you really did come at last.' She is just going to kiss him when he rises quickly to his feet.

In an instant she sees her mistake: with a wild shriek she turned and fled. There was nothing left to do but to follow, so Fred McDermott starts in pursuit. It is very easy to keep the flying figure in sight, as she keeps along the lake shore. He soon gains on her, but just as he thinks he has her, she pushes a light boat into the water, and A gay laugh rings out on the water as she faces him. She certainly has got the best of him, but just as he is wondering what he shall do next, for there are no more boats on the shore, he sees her turn suddenly pale, and rise to her feet. 'Oh, my oars,' she gasps; sure enough, there they lie on the sand, at his very feet. By this time the boat had drifted quite away from The Peerless Creamer, the shore. He can but smile at her sudden change.
