ASHORE: -The Newcastle ferry boat, the because she had not a certificated captain on board, was beached on the shore opposite Newcastle to effect some needed repairs to her bottom. Unfortunately she settled down on a rock which broke through, rendering much more extensive repairs necessary than was expected. And now persons with teams are unable to cross here and have to leave their teams on the other side or go round by the bridge. Individuals can cross in a small boat. [Ad-

The "Rustler" Matter.

The Newcastle Police Magistrate's en quiry into the charge against Capt. John Russell in connection with the Rustle disaster was continued on Monday last and yesterday. No new feature of the affair has, so far, been developed.

W. J. Meneilley, Esq., chairman of the Dominion Board of Steamboat Inspectors, held an official enquiry into the disaster last week. He examined quite a large number of witnesses and is to report the testimony and results of his observations to the Minister at Ottawa for his decision. Meneilley appears to be the right man for the important position he occupies and a decision based on his investigation will probably be as nearly right as possible.

Death of Mr. James Fitzpatrick.

It is my painful duty to record the death of Mr. James Fitzpatrick, one of the well known farmers of Napan, which happened very suddenly on the morning of Friday last. He rose as usual that morning and was in the act of pulling on his boot when he fell forward and expired. There was nothing to indicate that his end was near. He was in Chatham a few days before looking hearty and well. His sudden demise could hardly be believed by his many friends. The subject of our sketch was a genial, warm hearted Irishman, and in whom was no guile, generous to a fault and died with. out an enemy. His weekly visits to Chatham were his delight; being well posted i history and politics he was ever ready to debate the live questions of the day. Home Rule and Behring Sea troubles were the subjects that most interested him. Ireland's journed. wrongs he left to the G. O. M. to be righted. -Conservative in politics. he was a life long supporter of Sir J. A. Macdonald but latterly the had little faith in the present supporters of his favorite Government. He held offices of trust in his native Parish. Was C. for years, and was also agent of the Fisheries Department for District No. 7, for the past ten years, and was a terror to bass poachers in that district. His funeral last Sabbath was attended by a large number of friends and acquaintances in some forty carriages. His remains were brought to Chatham and Interred in St. Michael's Cemetery. - Com.

Loss of the "Adelina."

The crew of the brigt "Adelina," of Jersey, wrecked at St. Margeret's Bay during the great storm which occurred some time ago in the Lower St. Lawrence arrived here yesterday afternoon, per Intercolonial Railway. The men, in conversation with a Chronicle reporter, stated that their vessel is a complete wreck, being driven high and dry up on the beach. They stated that they were loading with fish, near the Seven Islands, when the storm burst upon them with terrible suddenness, carrying the vessel bodily before it, and landing her so far up on the shore that the tide never reached her again. In the easterly storm that prevailed Northumberland Straits since last Wednesday, a good deal of damage has been done along the shores. The most serious in this County is the stranding of the British barque Gatineau, Capt. P. Quaile, hailing from Greenock, but owned by Messrs. Thos. Dickson & Sons, Belfast. Northumber and County Teachers'

The Northumberland Co. Teachers Institute met in the Temperance Hall at Newcastle, Sept. 21st There was an enrollment of sixty-six members. In the absence of the President, Mr. Loggie, Inspector Mersereau occupied the chair and made the opening address. He spoke with his usual enthusiasm, graphically describing the teachers' difficuties and showing how these difficulties should be met and overcome. He likened the child, when placed in the teacher's care, to the block of marble in the hands of the sculptor. As the sculptor with skilful touches fashions the shapless stone until the finished statue stands forth embodying the workman's ideal of perfection, so should the teacher, with patient zeal, mould each pupil, always keeping in view the end of the teacher's work-the production of the best men and women. Inspector dwelt at length upon the fact that the child was to the faithful teacher a handle of possibilities; that there were latent energies to be called into action and directed aright; that the pupils should be impressed with an idea of the dignity of labor; that any calling that has for its object the betterent of mankind was truly a noble one; that these things should cheer and encourage the teacher amid the tedious routine

After Inspector Mersereau's admirable address, the meeting proceeded election of officers: -F. P. Yorston, B. A. President: D. L. Mitchell, B. A., Secretary: James McIntosh member of the executive

The next paper, 'How can Social Culture effectively be taught in our schools', by Miss M. B. Carter, while not so practical as Mr. Yorston's, was yet replete with wholesome suggestions. GLENELG. The contest in this parish attracted more than local interest by reason of the course taken by Councillors McRae and Dickson to secure their re-election. Last year they were handsomely returned, but this year they thought it necessary to have Rev. Neil McKay of St. John's Presbyterian church Chatham, and Scott Act Inspector Menzies-who is sometimes travelled as an inspector, and at other times as an elder of the church-to address meetings in their behalf against Mr. Wm. V. Ullock ex-councillor, and Mr. James Cameron, who has for some time, been an assessor of the parish. There was really no question at issue between the candidates save that of personal fitness, but the presence and efforts of the missionaries from outside, who labored to make their friends believe that the temperance cause was involved and the resident minister not working as hard as he should do in the matter, was resented by the more independent ratepavers-temperance men as well as others. The wiser friends of Messrs. McRae and Dickson knew that the inspector had placed the Scott Act cause at a disadvantage by allowing himself and his office to be used for ulterior purposes, detrimental to the interests of the County at large. They would, therefore, have preferred that their candidates should have had the courage to say that the inspector must hereafter realise that he is a servant of the municipality and not a manager of elections of those whose return he wishes to secure for his own purposes. Messrs. McRae and Dickson, however.

preferred other counsels, and the result is that they are beaten, or, rather, that the people of Glenelg have said to Messrs. McKay and Menzies that even the ladies of the parish fail to see the affinity between parish politics and that oft told story about the inspector's wonderful whiskers.
