

Miramichi and the North Shore etc.

CAPT. CURRIE—a well known old-time St. John river steamer captain died at Fredericton on Friday last, aged 92.

BARF FALKER, Capt. Olson, Dalnauis, N. B., Nov. 18, for Carmanah, G. B., has been given up as lost.

WED GERRIE—A St. Andrews despatch of Friday last says:—"A flock of wild geese bound north passed over the town on the morning of the first last."

FIRE AT BROCKTON: The house of Malcolm McPhail, situated at Dixie's Point, about three miles below Brockton was burned on Thursday. It is understood that the loss will be partially covered by insurance.

MILITARY FOR EASTERN: Miss Joan-Nolan has returned from New York, where she has been for several weeks. Her trip was in connection with her growing military business and she is ready to give her far customers the benefit of her knowledge of the latest and best styles, so that they may be ready for Easter.

THE SIOUX:—S. L. Peters of G. G. town, Quebec county, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Peters is a zealous advocate of the New Brunswick farmers. Last year he erected a very large and well fitted goose and goat satisfaction that he has been induced to put an extension to it this year—1893.

MR. HES BATH:—Carla being the inscription: "Bethel, Julia Lichtenstein, Aaron Harris, at Home, Sunday, March 5, 1893, 120 E. 53rd St. indicate that our young friend and former citizen has met his fate in New York. We wish him good luck and the happiness he so well deserves.

ANNUAL MEETING:—At the annual meeting of St. Agnes' Guild held at the Rectory on Thursday evening last, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Gregg, President; Mrs. Perry, Vice-President; Miss Forbes, Secretary-Treasurer. The secretary-treasurer's report for the past year was very encouraging.

THE DEBILIT DISPENSARY, of New York, the forty second annual report of which, we received last week, is one of the great benevolent institutions of that great city. I treated 30,111 new patients last year, and dispensed 59,704 prescriptions. In this list of visiting physicians we observe the name of one "Miramichi boy," Dr. Wm. L. Russell, who is in charge of the heart and lung department three days out of every week.

PERSONAL:—Rev. Father Power of Nelson, Miramichi, arrived in the city last evening, and is the guest of Mr. M. F. Mooney, of Carleton. Father Power completes around a new church in his parish at an early date.—St. John's Telegraph.

Messrs. Jacob White, John S. Wright, M. P. P., T. F. Keary, A. J. H. Stewart, Saml. Bishop and Percy Wilbur of Bathurst were in town on Tuesday.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY ENTERTAINMENT:—St. Michael's C. T. A. Society are to give their annual St. Patrick's Day entertainment in Masonic Hall, Chatham, on Friday of next week, when they will present the attractive domestic drama, "Fleasly Accidents," together with a farce, character sketches, etc. The members are making every preparation to present an entertainment well worthy of a bumper harvest. Reserved tickets are for sale at Noonan's, MacKenzies and Coleman's.

A MIRAMICHI CASE:—In the Equity on a Showbill vs. Felt, on application of George Barcill, a creditor of the debt, and to set aside a judgment by confession given to Supt. Bait, on the ground that the same was signed to defraud Barcill and other creditors, Judge Palmer intimated that he will not probably refer the matter to the full bench, as he regarded it as a matter of great importance to the community at large. W. P. Aggle, Q. C., and W. A. Macrae for the applicant; the attorney general, contra.—Telegraph.

CLAMS:—Those who are partial to clam soups, on either beaches, etc. will find first-class article in the Lepreau restaurant now kept at the store of W. T. Harris, T. Flanagan and T. H. Fountain. They are put up in pound tins and are not the watery salt-soaked things usually sold, but a genuine, large, well prepared and finely flavoured clam, in quantity that fill the tin and has only the juice of the clam contained in it, which makes fine flavoring for soups, chowder, etc. There is nothing better for soups and really made dishes. Try them.

The La. Brigade Sergeo Street. News of the death of Brigades Sergeant Joseph Petrie Street, which took place at Clapham, England, on 20th Feb'y, reached here last week and was heard with sincere regret by a very large number of our people, by whom the deceased gentleman was highly esteemed. Dr. Street was many of our readers know, a retired officer of the imperial army in which he served with distinction in the Crimea, India and elsewhere. He was the third son of the late Hon. John Ambrose Street, who was a representative of Northumberland in the Legislature some forty years ago and attorney general of the province in 1854. He married the daughter of the late Henry Canard—who was a brother of Sir Samuel Canard—the founder of the Canard line of steamers—and after his retirement from the army, Dr. and Mrs. Street lived for several years on the old Canard homestead, a mile above Chatham, but removed to England a year or more ago.

The immediate cause of Dr. Street's death was a double, the accident he met with a few weeks ago, by which he was seriously injured. Amongst the relatives left in the province are Messrs. E. Lee Street of Newcastle and Alfred E. Street, collector of customs at Fredericton, who are cousins.

Dr. Street was a former vest-man of St. Paul's Chatham, and his death was the subject of appropriate reference in the sermons of the rector, Rev. Canon Forsyth, on Sunday last.

Presentations and Address. A deputation from Napas, consisting of Mrs. James McKnight, Miss E. McKnight, teacher and W. W. McKnight, called at the house of Black River, on the evening of Sunday last. Miss McKnight read the following address in connection with the presentation of a handsome ornate chair:—

LOWER NAPAS, N. B., March 4th, 1893. REV. JOHN ROBERTSON,

DEAR SIR:—We, on behalf of the members of Napas congregation, desire to express in small degree our gratitude for the interesting manner in which you have always carried on the Master's work.

As we look back over the period since you became our pastor, we call to mind the assistance and aid which you have always rendered us in our spiritual journey.

We would wish to tender our sincerest thanks to you for the personal manner in which you have always carried on the Master's work, and we hope and pray that the Lord may bless you and your partner, Mrs. Robertson, as well as the rest of the family, with health and strength and that for many years you may be spared to labor among us.

As a slight token of our gratitude and esteem, we would ask you to accept this ornate chair.

Signed on behalf of the Napas congregation. MRS. JAMES MCKNIGHT, MISS KATIE MCKNIGHT, Mr. Robertson, in a few words of reply, said to the effect, that he felt humbled rather than proud for the very kind words in which his services had been spoken of, and regretted that his labors in the work of the Lord had not been carried on more faithfully than they had been.

He hoped that the kindness of his friends would not make him forget to lay in his important duties. It is a happy day to see the members of the congregation at the house and would have been happy to see them, though they had brought no such valuable gift along with them. He offered to them and to their friends his best thanks for the unexpected present.

Rev. Mr. McCoy of St. Andrew's. Rev. Joseph McCoy, M. A., pastor of St. Andrew's church, Chatham, has received notice of his appointment as a member of the Advisory Council on Religious Congresses, of the World's Congress Auxiliary, in connection with the World's Columbian Exposition. Specially reserved places in the Parliament of Religions will be assigned the members of the Advisory Council and his address at that phenomenal meeting will be delivered before them, while active participation in the Parliament will be limited to members of the Advisory Council and those especially invited by the general committee. The membership of the council includes theological scholars and also eminent laymen interested in religious philanthropy work all over the world. The data arranged for the several congresses are as follows:—

The Lutheran general conference, Sept. 2, 1893; The Lutheran synodical conference, Sept. 3, 1893; The Methodist conference, Sept. 4, 1893; The Catholic congress will begin Sept. 5, and the world's parliament of religions will open Sept. 11 and continue for seventeen days. In this parliament representatives of the great historic faiths will sit together in frank and friendly conference over the great things of the moral and spiritual life of the world. Buddhists, Moslems, Hindus, Gnostics, Parsees, Jews and Christians from all parts of the world will participate in the proceedings and discussions.

Amongst the members of the Advisory Council on which Rev. Mr. McCoy is placed are Mr. Gladstone, and a number of British and Irish bishops, the Dean of Canterbury, General Booth, Editor Stead, Rev. John Smith of Edinburgh and others, as well as eminent divines and scholars of European and Asiatic countries. Mr. McCoy and St. Andrew's church are to be congratulated of the honor thus conferred upon them.

Deaths of F. R. Morrison. One of the most sad and sudden deaths that has ever taken place on the Miramichi was that of Mr. F. R. Morrison, manager of the agencies of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Chatham and Newcastle, which took place at the residence of Mr. C. S. Ramsay, Newcastle, on Friday, Mr. Morrison left Chatham on Tuesday, after less than five minutes' rest, he was found dead on his bed, and his death was attributed to heart failure. The announcement of the sad event was received with unusual surprise and most profound regret wherever Mr. Morrison was known. He was one of the most genial and companionable of men, of general nature and fine abilities. He was exceedingly popular with the customers of the bank and had the happy faculty of accepting of the best of every business with equanimity. His death is a positive loss to the business community.

The remains were taken in charge by Rev. Neil McKnight, Chatham, and his daughters were Mr. Morrison's first wife, and brought home on Friday night. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from Rev. Mr. McKnight's residence, where the service was conducted by Rev. Wm. Atken, of St. James' church, Newcastle, assisted by Rev. Joseph McCoy of St. Andrew's church, Chatham, the interment being in St. James' churchyard, Newcastle. Amongst the tokens of respect to the deceased was a beautiful floral design from the manager and staff of the bank of Montreal. The pall-bearers were Messrs. John S. Wright, R. Lewis, Geo. Dean, John McKee, Jas. O. Fish and W. A. Park. The funeral procession was one of the largest ever seen on the Miramichi and there were representative citizens from nearly all the North Shore towns in it.

Mr. Morrison was about forty years old. He was twice married, his first wife being, as he was stated, the daughter of Rev. Neil McKnight. Their two children by a second wife with Mr. McKnight. His second wife was Miss M. Lagan, of Newcastle, who is also dead. Their only living child is with the family of his brother, Mr. Patrick Morrison, manager of the Merchants' Bank, Summerside, P. E. I.

At the monthly meeting of the Cypress Club, Chatham, held on Monday evening, the following resolution, moved by W. J. Lague and seconded by J. C. McCulley was unanimously adopted:—

Resolved that the club receives the announcement of the death of Mr. Frank R. Morrison—one of its honorary members—with profound regret. We beg to tender to the mourning relatives our sincere sympathy, and also to place on record our sense of the loss the community has sustained in the removal of one who was closely identified with the promotion of its interests and who made up for his somewhat generous impulses won for him those of friends who will long mourn his early death.

Further resolved, that it is the wish of the members of the club that every member possible attend the funeral to-morrow at 9 o'clock as a further token of respect.

Mr. Sinclair's Observations. (Moncton Times 4th inst.) Mr. E. Sinclair, of Miramichi, and Dr. Smith of the Tracoev, last night, reached Moncton on the C. P. R. train, from this week's North Shore, Boston, Albany, Ottawa, Montreal and other small cities in the United States and Canada. Mr. Sinclair remained overnight in Moncton, while Dr. Smith took the Quebec express for his home in Newcastle. In conversation with a Times reporter at the Brunswick Hotel last night Mr. Sinclair gave his impression of the people he came in contact with not only on his recent trips, but speaking from observations he had made in his travels. Those who have had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Sinclair know that he is an interesting conversationalist and his extensive travels coupled with his intimate knowledge of affairs generally, render him competent to speak intelligently regarding existing conditions in Canada and the United States. Mr. Sinclair says he made it a point this trip to compare Boston with Montreal and he came to the conclusion that there was no city this side of New York equal to Montreal, all things considered. The business ability of New York, he attributes to the Irish element there.

Asked concerning the people of the Republic as compared with Canadians, Mr. Sinclair replied that he considered every class of our men were superior to those in the United States. Maritime Province men he considered to be the most world wide to be found anywhere. Laboring men in Canada have advantages that those of the United States have not. As Mr. Sinclair said:—"While Canadians may have more cold weather yet the Americans have more cold feet." A beggar is one of the strangest things he has seen while traveling in Canada, but in the United States they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at the same time help to build up their own country instead of trying to get it done for them by a great country they are to be met with in the large cities at every station. There is more misery to be seen in one day's travel in American cities than can be found throughout the whole of Canada. The men who have risen in the American Republic, he says, have worked three times as hard there as they would in Canada. That, he considers the great trouble; if people would only go to work at home and do what they would do in the United States, and at