British Columbia is the largest of the Provinces and embraces an area of 382,000 square miles.

Prince Edward Island is the smallest-2,000 square miles. The smallest of the seven is the most densely populated, having a little over 54 people to the square mile, while the largest is the most sparsely peopled, with a little over three square miles to each per-

There is coal in four out of the seven Provinces, Nova Scotia being the greatest producer with an output of about two and a quarter million tons per annum. British Columbia is the greatest gold producer, the produce of her mines for thirty years having been valued at fortysix and a half million dollars. Nova Scotia has the most valuable fisheries, her annual catch averaging about seven million dollars in value. Quebec takes the lead in the supply of timber, her output of saw logs amounting to 5,000,000,000 feet board measure, and of square timber to three and a quarter million cubic feet. Ontario is the banner cheese Province, the production running up to about eight million dollars a year. Combined, the whole seven have resources unequally by those of any other country in the world. WORDS FROM THE SAGES.

For where we love is home, home that our feet may leave but not our hearts. -Do the duty which lies nearest to you. Every duty which is bidden to wait returns with seven fresh duties at its back.

It is an old proverb that he who aims at the sun, to be sure will not reach it, but his arrow will fly higher than if he aimed at an object on a level with himself .-

Every vice and folly has a train of secret and necessary punishment. If we are lazy, we must expect to be poor; if intemperate, to be diseased; if luxurious, to die prema-

It is the most momentous question a wo-man is ever called upon to decide—whether the faults of the man she loves are beyond remedy, and will drag her down, or whether she is competent to be his earthly redeemer and lift him to her own level. - O. W.

SEVEN STEPS TO HEALTH.

A noted physician says if you want to be healthy and to live to a good old age you must climb up stairs and live at the top. The stairs consist of but seven steps, and you must make a pause on each step and follow his directions: First Step-Eat wheat, oats, corn, fruits, beef and mutton, plainly cooked, in moderate quantity, and but two meals a day. Second Step-Breathe good air day and Third Step-Exercise freely in the open Fourth Step-Retire early and rise Fifth Step-Wear flannel next your skin every day in the year, and so dispose your dress that your limbs shall be kept warm.

Sixth Step-Live in the sunshine. Let your bedroom be one which receives a flood of light, and spend your days either out in the sunlight or in a room which is Seventh Step—Cultivate a cheerful temper. Seek the society of jolly folks. Don't be afraid to laugh. Go up this flight of stairs. Live above, Catarrh cannot climb up there.

CYCLING PROVERBS.

Grit makes a man, but mars a bearing. Neither men nor bicycles steer well with tight heads.

Like a friend in need, the handle-bar is only appreciated when the road is rough. The world, like a bicycle, would soon come to a stop were it not for the cranks. has to do is to repeat three times the words "I put you from me," and the legal Ambition is like a bicycle saddle; though separation is complete. much sat upon, it generally manages to be Politeness is like a pneumatic tire; there isn't much in it, but it eases many a jolt in the journey of life. A pleasant disposition, like oil in a bicy-cle bearing, reduces friction and prevents a world of wear and tear. Like a link in a bicycle chain, we may not amount to much individually, but collectively we make the wheels go around. Like balls in a bearing, the lives of many of us must be one continued grind that others may enjoy themselves. Life is like a bicycle run; some worry, fret and scorch along, and soon reach the end, while others take it easy and enjoy themselves as they go.

But after she has had two or three, and they come so close together they can wear each other's clothes, she begins to recall occasionally, while washing and ironing and mending, the friends she used to enjoy before she had so many cares.

MARRIAGE MAXIMS.

Never taunt with a pat mistake. Never both be angry at the same time. Never meet without a loving welcome. Never allow a request to be repeated. Let self denial be the daily aim and practice of each. Never let the sun go down upon any anger or grievance.

Never talk at one another, either alone in company. Neglect the whole world besides rather than one another. Let each one strive to yield oftenest to the wishes of the other. Never make a remark at the expense of the other-it is meanness. Never sigh over what might have been, out make the best of what is. Never part for the day without loving words to think of during absence.

Never find foult, unless it is perfectly certain that a fault has been committed and always speak lovingly. The very nearest approach to domestic happiness on earth is in the cultivation on both sides of absolute unselfishness.

After her father's death ten years ago she became sole manager of sixty-eight acres of land. At that time a school teacher, she quit directing the shooting of young minds and then went to farming it.

Friends and neighbors shook their heads and said: "Don't you do it, Mary." But Mary said, with a plucky and decided air, that she would and she did. Fruit and vegetables are the chief crops.
