

"A Word To the Wives Is Sufficient." For Rendering Pastry Short or Friable.

COTOLENE Is Better than Lard Because it has none of its disagreeable and indigestible features. Endorsed by leading food and cooking experts. Ask your Grocer for it.

SHARP'S BALSAM OF HOREHOUND AND ANISED. GROUP, WHOOPING COUGH, COUGHS AND COLDS. OVER 40 YEARS IN USE. 25 CENTS PER BOTTLE. ARMSTRONG & CO. PROPRIETORS. ST. JOHN, N. B.

SHERIFF'S SALE. To be sold at public auction on Saturday, the 24th day of March next, in front of the Post Office, Chatham, between the hours of twelve noon and five o'clock p. m.

Weights, New Style, Double AND SINGLE. I have on hand a first class stock of weights of different styles of my own manufacture, which I will sell cheap.

9 GORDS IN 10 HOURS. BY ONE MAN. Send for free illustrated catalogue from 600 to 1000 yards daily. It shows down trees, folds like a bath towel, and is made of the finest material.

HOUSE TO RENT. A furnished house in a good locality in Chatham. Rent moderate. Possession given 1st November. For further information apply to this office.

GEO. W. CUTLER, GENERAL INSURANCE AGENT FOR FIRE, LIFE AND ACCIDENT COMPANIES. Travellers' Life and Accident of Hartford, Conn. Norwich Union, of England.

FOR SALE. That pleasantly situated house, lot and premises situated on the east side of King Street in the Town of Chatham, N. B., consisting of a two-story house, a barn, and a large lot of land.

EVERYBODY ought to see copy of "DONAHOE'S MAGAZINE," the great popular Catholic publication, that is revolutionizing economic thought and wiping out religious bigotry. $2.00 A YEAR.

Miramichi Advance. CHATHAM, N. B., FEBRUARY 1, 1894. The Bathurst School Matter Again. Peaceably-inclined people are sorry to find that the holiday season had hardly closed when correspondence in reference to the Bathurst school question reappeared in the St. John papers.

Our readers are acquainted with the circumstances under which this Bathurst school question has been created and had been kept in irritating existence up to last November, when propositions for a settlement were made.

These propositions were rejected in behalf of the Catholics principally because, if entertained and an attempt were made to carry them out, it would be contrary to the spirit and intention of the Common Schools Act and regulations made thereunder.

He then argued the matter fully from the standpoint of both parties and said that, in his opinion, the resolution should be mutually acceptable to them and he hoped the meeting would agree to it.

When the Protestants were asked by Mr. Burns what it was they wanted, Dr. Bishop stated he was appointed to speak for his Protestant associates and he said they wanted "absolute and unquestioned control of the two schools and the selection of a teacher. If we are not given that we cannot settle."

Trustee does wrong who will put him out and elect another who will do what is right. It was then suggested to Dr. Bishop that a trustee is elected for three years and he would probably have something to say about retiring. This seemed to be a new idea to the doctor, and he said no more.

Trustee McMannus spoke for the Village. Everything in connection with their schools was working harmoniously and well. The Protestant on the Board had selected the efficient teachers there. No change could be made there without impairing the efficiency of the schools.

The church trouble at Montebello is attracting a good deal of attention at present. The cure proposed to build a new church to cost $20,000. Mr. Papineau, seigneur of the place, and the largest proprietor, objected, maintaining that a new church was not necessary; that repairs to the amount of $2,000 would be sufficient to make the old building last for half a century yet, and offering in the latter case to contribute himself $500.

There is no greater injustice that can be inflicted upon a girl than for a mother to allow a daughter to enter womanhood or widowhood without a practical knowledge of a household and its requirements, writes Edward W. Bok in 'At Home with the Editor' in the January Ladies' Home Journal.

Discussion took place on the expenditure of the school moneys on the basis proposed by Mr. Lawlor and although no vote was taken it seemed to be the general opinion that the plan could be worked satisfactorily, although it was shown that the Protestants wanted the disposal of all their own funds if possible.

When the Protestants were asked by Mr. Burns what it was they wanted, Dr. Bishop stated he was appointed to speak for his Protestant associates and he said they wanted "absolute and unquestioned control of the two schools and the selection of a teacher. If we are not given that we cannot settle."

Another gentleman expressed his opinion on the resolution that if it were accepted by the Protestants they were getting nothing at all. Rev. Mr. Thompson referred to a rumor that he had heard, viz: that this conference met at their request. This he repudiated and said the Protestants had nothing to do with it.

Trustee McMannus spoke for the Village. Everything in connection with their schools was working harmoniously and well. The Protestant on the Board had selected the efficient teachers there. No change could be made there without impairing the efficiency of the schools.

The church trouble at Montebello is attracting a good deal of attention at present. The cure proposed to build a new church to cost $20,000. Mr. Papineau, seigneur of the place, and the largest proprietor, objected, maintaining that a new church was not necessary; that repairs to the amount of $2,000 would be sufficient to make the old building last for half a century yet, and offering in the latter case to contribute himself $500.

There is no greater injustice that can be inflicted upon a girl than for a mother to allow a daughter to enter womanhood or widowhood without a practical knowledge of a household and its requirements, writes Edward W. Bok in 'At Home with the Editor' in the January Ladies' Home Journal.

Discussion took place on the expenditure of the school moneys on the basis proposed by Mr. Lawlor and although no vote was taken it seemed to be the general opinion that the plan could be worked satisfactorily, although it was shown that the Protestants wanted the disposal of all their own funds if possible.

When the Protestants were asked by Mr. Burns what it was they wanted, Dr. Bishop stated he was appointed to speak for his Protestant associates and he said they wanted "absolute and unquestioned control of the two schools and the selection of a teacher. If we are not given that we cannot settle."

When the Protestants were asked by Mr. Burns what it was they wanted, Dr. Bishop stated he was appointed to speak for his Protestant associates and he said they wanted "absolute and unquestioned control of the two schools and the selection of a teacher. If we are not given that we cannot settle."

THE GREAT FIGHT! $30,000 at Stake! The Governor of Florida and the Sheriff of Duval County declare they will stop it, and call out troops!

A Judge, however, grants an injunction which quies the Governor and Sheriff. Corbett and Mitchell in the Ring! Mitchell is Knocked Out in Three Rounds. The two Men's Records! Etc., Etc.

On Wednesday, however, Judge Call issued an injunction order forbidding the governor, sheriff, militia and all others from interfering with the fight on the ground that it did not come under the law relating to duelling, as had been alleged, but was a contest with gloves and, therefore, a trial of skill between the men.

At the time appointed, Rev. Messrs. Thompson and Sellers put in an appearance, in addition to the three other Protestants agreed upon and Mr. Lawlor remonstrated with the other counsel as it was understood between them that no clergyman should take part. He was told, however, that unless Messrs. Thompson and Sellers were permitted to be present the other three Protestants would not remain and he had to explain the situation to his Catholic clients, who were aware of the understanding that the meeting was to be one of laymen only.

At the time appointed, Rev. Messrs. Thompson and Sellers put in an appearance, in addition to the three other Protestants agreed upon and Mr. Lawlor remonstrated with the other counsel as it was understood between them that no clergyman should take part. He was told, however, that unless Messrs. Thompson and Sellers were permitted to be present the other three Protestants would not remain and he had to explain the situation to his Catholic clients, who were aware of the understanding that the meeting was to be one of laymen only.

At the time appointed, Rev. Messrs. Thompson and Sellers put in an appearance, in addition to the three other Protestants agreed upon and Mr. Lawlor remonstrated with the other counsel as it was understood between them that no clergyman should take part. He was told, however, that unless Messrs. Thompson and Sellers were permitted to be present the other three Protestants would not remain and he had to explain the situation to his Catholic clients, who were aware of the understanding that the meeting was to be one of laymen only.

At the time appointed, Rev. Messrs. Thompson and Sellers put in an appearance, in addition to the three other Protestants agreed upon and Mr. Lawlor remonstrated with the other counsel as it was understood between them that no clergyman should take part. He was told, however, that unless Messrs. Thompson and Sellers were permitted to be present the other three Protestants would not remain and he had to explain the situation to his Catholic clients, who were aware of the understanding that the meeting was to be one of laymen only.

At the time appointed, Rev. Messrs. Thompson and Sellers put in an appearance, in addition to the three other Protestants agreed upon and Mr. Lawlor remonstrated with the other counsel as it was understood between them that no clergyman should take part. He was told, however, that unless Messrs. Thompson and Sellers were permitted to be present the other three Protestants would not remain and he had to explain the situation to his Catholic clients, who were aware of the understanding that the meeting was to be one of laymen only.

At the time appointed, Rev. Messrs. Thompson and Sellers put in an appearance, in addition to the three other Protestants agreed upon and Mr. Lawlor remonstrated with the other counsel as it was understood between them that no clergyman should take part. He was told, however, that unless Messrs. Thompson and Sellers were permitted to be present the other three Protestants would not remain and he had to explain the situation to his Catholic clients, who were aware of the understanding that the meeting was to be one of laymen only.

At the time appointed, Rev. Messrs. Thompson and Sellers put in an appearance, in addition to the three other Protestants agreed upon and Mr. Lawlor remonstrated with the other counsel as it was understood between them that no clergyman should take part. He was told, however, that unless Messrs. Thompson and Sellers were permitted to be present the other three Protestants would not remain and he had to explain the situation to his Catholic clients, who were aware of the understanding that the meeting was to be one of laymen only.

upon and crash his victim. Suddenly Mitchell bends forward and thrusts his left fist at the pit of Corbett's stomach. The champion guards the blow with his right forearm. Up comes the Englishman's head, and he follows with a right hand drive at the point of the jaw. Corbett guards this, too, with his omnipresent right arm. Mitchell jumps away backward out of distance, looking much surprised than ever. The long, low, ducking head at the body has been, hitherto, one of his favorite attacks. He landed it on John L. Sullivan almost as often as he chose, but Corbett threw off the blow and laughed at it. Still Corbett's failure to hit a counter or even a return blow was encouraging; so quickly shifting his ground the Englishman tried for Corbett's short ribs with the right fist. The champion gave ground so swiftly that the glove barely reached his body.

With a pleasant smile Mitchell tried trick again, and with the same result. Next he drove his left fist at the "mark" or pit of the stomach, but the Californian guarded it easily. This angered the little fellow, for he ran in, swinging his right for the chin, but landed it on Corbett's shoulder and quickly clinched.

The champion thrust his left forearm against Mitchell's chin at the moment he closed in. Now he thrust Mitchell's right arm away with a movement of the left arm and drove his head backward with the palm of his right hand. Rapidly following his victim Corbett landed a hard left hand punch on the mouth that drove him still further away. But the champion was careful. He waited a moment, then tried the left again at the head. Mitchell ducked under it and ran away. Just then Time-keeper Garrison whacked the gong, signifying the end of the round.

Mitchell looked relieved, walked to his corner and sat down. He wiped his mouth with his right hand. His seconds worked over him vigorously, sponging, rubbing and fanning him. He talked earnestly with Delaney. "I've got me merrisard right now and I'm going at him," the champion remarked as he left his corner for the second round. Mitchell's face did not show a mark.

Corbett was upon him in a moment. Feinting swift and straight for a few seconds he suddenly half swung his left fist and landed it on Mitchell's cheek. Mitchell replied with one of his ducking leads for the "mark," but the champion stepped backward and the blow fell short once more. Corbett half swung his left fist at the Englishman's right cheek, Mitchell rushed in and landed a hard left hand blow with his right hand. Charley ran away and his relentless enemy kept boring in upon him.

In Corbett's corner Mitchell turned, sadly mixed up. The punishment he had received had jolted him a great deal. He was in such a hurry to hit Corbett that his left foot slid out in front of him and he almost fell. Recovering himself he tried again, this time an attempt to get over the champion's guard for the face, but missed completely. He clinched and worked his way out, but Corbett thrust him away gently but firmly, like a big schoolmaster struggling with a fractions boy. Now Corbett missed one of his short left hand swings at the head but jabbed his right fist hard on the short ribs.

After a moment's sparring Mitchell made a wild swipe for the body with his right fist, but it did not go within a foot of Corbett. The Englishman was bluffing to save himself and to gain time to think.

Now came sparring for a few seconds. Then Corbett jabbed his victim in the ribs with his right. Mitchell bucked into Corbett's corner, but slipped out unharmed. The champion tapped Mitchell on the nose with his left fist, drawing a trace of blood. He followed with a right hander on the ribs. Mitchell ducked and led for the body with one of his ducking leads, but Corbett put an awful upper cut on the mouth from Corbett's right hand. The pace now became furious. Bulldog-like, the Englishman rushed and succeeded in landing his left fist on Corbett's cheek. The Californian gave way and as the Englishman ran savagely in pursuit stopped him with a right hander in the ribs. Once more Mitchell tried his duck lead for the body and plunged against a right hand upper cut that staggered him. Gently he charged on Corbett again, and this time the champion lunged him on the jaw with his right, knocking him down in a sitting position. Corbett was on top once more above Mitchell like an angry hawk.

Slowly and carefully the Briton turned round, balancing himself with both hands on the floor. He paused a moment, then got his left foot under him. With a last effort at his usual sneering tactics he looked upward and winked and grinned at his infuriated conqueror.

Corbett almost loses a foot. Corbett's corner could not be controlled. He swung his right fist in an upper cut that would have ended the business then and there if it had landed. As it was, the blow barely grazed Mitchell's cheek.

and propped him up on his stool. It was a long time before he was revived. Corbett left the ring laughing.

Corbett and Mitchell were arrested as they were leaving the grounds. Sheriff Broward, under the advice of Attorney General Larnar and County Solicitor Christie, swore out a warrant in the County Court charging them with having met by previous arrangement and engaged in a fight.

The men were escorted to their hotels and allowed to change their clothes and then they were taken to the Court House. Warrants were also served on "Billy" Thompson, W. A. Brady, J. E. Bowen, Lou Schiller, B. F. Blake, C. W. Richardson, Joseph Vendig, Harry Mason and Charles E. Smith. The last seven are Duval Club members.

When they appeared in the County Court the County Solicitor stated that information had been filed before the Criminal Court against all the parties, Corbett and Mitchell as principals and the others as aiders and abettors. He asked that the first charge be dismissed from the County Judge's Court.

Colonel Corbett, for the defence, applied for a writ of Habeas Corpus before Circuit Judge Call. The latter said that it being a criminal case it was out of his jurisdiction and he could not have anything to do with it.

Both Corbett and Mitchell, after nearly two hours delay, were admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000 each to appear at nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Senator Genovese, of St. Augustine, was Mitchell's bondsman, and J. D. Burbridge became Corbett's.

Corbett and Mitchell MAKE UP WITH EACH OTHER. When Mitchell and Corbett met in the court room they looked rather crestfallen. Mitchell sat over in a corner looking bristled and battered and full of remorse. Corbett was all right physically, but it could be plainly seen that he was mentally perturbed.

When Corbett was told what Mitchell wanted he walked quickly over to the Englishman and held out his hand.

"I want to say that I think you are the dearest big man I ever saw," said Mitchell. "The man that is able to whip you is not yet born. You can whip any man on earth."

It was well that the fight had commenced and one of the party exclaimed— "Now let us pray!" HOW THE BAD NEWS WAS RECEIVED. "Corbett led off and landed on Mitchell's chin," the instrument then said.

This threw a shadow over the hopes of the waiting woman. Mrs. Mitchell was visibly excited, and placing her hand to her side, she said: "My heart is jumping up and down."

Merrily the little instrument tickled, telling about boy "blows," "sparring for wild," "clenching" and "honors even," and to it all Mrs. Mitchell eagerly listened.

There was no mistaking it. The fight was on, and the news from the scene of battle was not very encouraging for Mitchell.

There was a faint suspicion of tears in the eyes, but a brightly colored handkerchief would be dashed across them and the eyes would be dry in a moment.

The gentleman who conveyed the message to the ladies displayed some hesitation in telling when Corbett's blows were landing on Mitchell. Mrs. Mitchell, noticing this, remarked:—"Don't be backward in telling me. I am not a bit nervous."

IT TRY TO CHEER HER UP. Mrs. Pastor and Mrs. Moore, seeing the excited thoughtfulness of their companion tried to cheer her up. They laughed and chatted, but it was in vain.

Every one had settled down for several hours of waiting when the message came over the wire:—"Mitchell knocked out. Corbett declared the winner. Time, nine minutes."

At first it was thought there was some mistake, and the ladies were advised to wait before accepting the message as true.

It was too true—subsequent messages confirmed it, and the truth had to be accepted. "Charlie" had lost the fight. How did Mrs. A. differ in the report? Like a non-juror. Not a change in the pretty face.