THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVE TONIC AND Stomach and Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years. It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nerve Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nerve Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public.

It is a GREAT REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF Nervousness, Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, Sick Headache, Female Weakness, Nervous Chills, Paralysis, Nervous Prostrations and Nervous Choking, Hot Flashes, Palpitation of the Heart, Mental Despondency, Sleeplessness, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervousness of Females, Nervousness of Old Age, Neuralgia, Pains in the Heart, Pains in the Back, Falling Health, Broken Constitution, Debility of Old Age, Indigestion and Dyspepsia, Heartburn and Sour Stomach, Weight and Tenderness in Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Frightful Dreams, Dizziness and Ringing in the Ears, Weakness of Extremities and Fainting, Impure and Impoverished Blood, Boils and Carbuncles, Scrofula, Scrofulous Swellings and Ulcers, Consumption of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Lungs, Bronchitis and Chronic Cough, Liver Complaint, Chronic Diarrhea, Delicate and Scrofulous Children, Summer Complaint of Infants.

NERVOUS DISEASES.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nerve Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nines-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied, and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of proper nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutrient necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nerve Tonic has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous derangements.

CRAWFORDVILLE, IND., June 20, 1887. REBECCA WILSON, of Crawfordsville, Ind., says: "I had been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia, and Indigestion, and my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly, with no result. I bought one bottle of South American Nerve Tonic, which does me more good than any other medicine I ever used. I consider it the greatest remedy for nervous weakness, and I will advise every person to use this precious tonic."

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITUS' DANCE OR CHOREA. CRAWFORDVILLE, IND., June 22, 1887. My daughter, eleven years old, was severely affected with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nerve Tonic, and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Falling Health, from whatever cause.

INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA. The Great South American Nerve Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the OXE and ONLY ONE GREAT CURE in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of an unimportant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nerve Tonic.

TRY TO MAKE IT DO. My home is good and made of wood. And all the room that I require. For I can't have more than one store. Of course to feed the fire. On very cold days there is a blaze. I keep the winter through. If not enough to keep me warm. I try to make it do.

My cupboard is bare, but not so bare As Mother Hubbard's own. A little more of the good bread. And may be a chicken bone. It is visible to sight, my appetite. Just what I need, and I am glad. Yet I must have a crust. I try to make it do.

THE SCHEME WORKED. Fred Burgess was a young fellow of twenty-four, and, after the fashion of youngsters of that number of years, he was desperately in love. The young woman who had led him captive was four years his junior, pretty, popular, and poor, and just contented enough to keep Freddie on the ragged edge most of the time—a not unusual characteristic of young women under similar conditions.

Fred's father was a handsome widower of forty-five, and was more elder than father to his boy, and their comradeship and community of interests were the subjects of many pleasant conversations.

"Which girl?" smiled Fred. "The best one," said the father. "You mean Harriet?" "Fred's face grew longer. "Well, pop," he said familiarly, "I don't know exactly, and I don't like to say what I think."

"Out with it, my boy," urged the father, "between us we ought to be a match for any other man in the library. "I don't want you to be a match for this one," ventured Fred shyly. Mr. Burgess bowed his acknowledgments.

"Permit me to say equal to any woman," he smiled. "Granted," said Fred; "and I think we are, but you can't most always sometimes tell."

"The father indicated some surprise. "She isn't going to fly the track, is she?" he asked. "No, not that,—she's going to stay on and make the race, but I'm afraid it's entirely for the purpose that she's making a shy at the shekels, is she?"

"No, pop," protested Fred, "I wouldn't say that, only I'm afraid I might be. Mr. Burgess became thoughtful, and Fred was silent for some time. "Frederick, my chicken," said he after a while, laying his hand on the young man's shoulder, "I have a scheme or grand scheme, and I tapped his dome of thought with much personal pride."

"Where did you get it, papa?" asked Fred banteringly, "import it?" "No, my son, I manufactured it right here at home, using tapping his forehead. "Now you sit down, and let me tell you all about it."

"Wait till I brace myself, in order to resist the shock," said Fred, seating himself deep down in a big easy chair. "Let her go, pop, I'm ready, and pop thereupon proceeded to let her go.

SCRAPS OF SCIENCE. The earth's lowest body of water is the Caspian sea, which has been sinking for centuries. Fruit cannot stand freezing, because it ruptures the cells of the fruit and decay takes place.

It is a curious fact, as noted by Sir Samuel Baker, that a negro has never been known to tame an elephant or any wild animal. M. Moissan, the distinguished French chemist, has made some new crystals of diamond by plunging the electric crucible containing the carbon at a temperature of 2,000 degrees C. into cold water.

Small dinner parties of four or six are often most enjoyable. Be sure the servants understand just what is expected of them. It is no longer obligatory to serve or to drink wines or other liquors.

It is no longer obligatory to serve or to drink wines or other liquors. Attempt no more than can be certainly and perfectly carried through. Have a system, and follow it—much unnecessary labor will thus be saved.

Utter silence is better than to be bored; but a golden mean in conversation is vastly better than either. A dinner may be varied from three to fourteen, or more courses, but from five to eight will usually be found the most desirable number.

Pop, old boy," he exclaimed joyfully. "Yes, my boy, I know it," sighed Mr. Burgess, "but you've taken the trick, and I'm going to deduct from your wedding present what it cost me to court the girl, and what you've got away with, and wish you would tell her so with my compliments."

Mother. Visit with me a pleasant home like cottage not far distant. In a large easy chair I sat before the grate where a coal fire is burning brightly reclines an elderly woman; it is the calm hour of pensive twilight, the child of day and starlight. At this season in the curtailed niche, gazing dreamily into the quickly descending gloom, stands a young girl of some seventeen years. The woman sits intently studying the girl. She sees a profile outlined in the deepening twilight against the window-pane. It is her own face, as she would think that the fate of the woman depended on the correct reading of that profile, so breathlessly and thoughtfully does she gaze. But what has she to do with a woman of forty, fifty, sixty; it matters not for the exact number of years that only youth with its dreams and hopes is a thing of the past with her. Let us fancy that the musings in her mind are audible to us. Listen!

I had planned a lonely and quiet but calm life for my dear girl. However, this young girl must change that life's complexion. A new element has come into it. It is her love, her love! Time will tell. She, who had been my chosen friend in girlhood days, has passed away and to me with her dying breath, she has left a child in her stead. How am I to fulfill my task? I seem so little of her mother about the girl to guide me with past memories. In her childhood I knew her not, now just verging on womanhood she comes to me. Can I remember enough of my own youth with its wild imaginings, its impetuous and unbridled longings, to sympathize with and enter into her thoughts and feelings—to check, to guide, to help forward, upward? There is beauty in the face even in the dark, irregular outline that is now falling away from my sight—in the smooth line of the white brow, the sensitive curve of nose and lip which bespeak restlessness, feeling and passion. It is not a peaceful face and I fear that she will not be content with the free use of their necks by checking while at work. Checked horses sweat more and grow thin faster than free horses. The maner of the team show the temper of the driver. If for any reason the horse have not at their own will, they will not be content with a little oil used in their feed daily. Begin with a tablespoonful and gradually increase until feeding a pint twice per day. "Mother, the girl listens unwearyingly again and again to the tale of the happy youthful days long since passed away, but still fresh in memory, fond memory which brings the light of those other days around her. "Mother, she is the one name, the one tonic that over other skills her in passion and in grief, and fast and firm on that foundation will grow the love of each for the other, and the girl will lead to the declining days of the man's life their brightest radiance and to the dawning years of the girl's life, the assurance that experience can give to youth. —NAOMI.
