A DARING OUTRAGE:-The postmaster of Ottawa, J. A. Govin, was set upon on Sunday night about half-past ten o'clock on Cooper street near Elgin in that city and garrotted and robbed of his $200 gold watch and chain. His two assailants after dealing him a stunning blow between the eyes stuffed a handkerchief into his mouth and went through his clothes. There were people on their door steps within half a block and the daring act of the robbers is amazing. Govin was confined to his house on Monday.

A STORM'S PRANKS:-In a severe thunder and lightning storm last Saturday two tenders for removing the old engine house houses in Wellington, P. E. I., were shattered. A man lying beside a stove was struck by falling bricks from a flue and stunned, and a horse was struck and etunned. F. S. Arsenault and wife, in their house at Abrams Village, were thrown out of bed and injured. The side of the house was torn badly. In some parts of the country deep trenches were torn in the road. The telephone lines were considerably damaged.

THE LAWN SOCIAL, to be held under the auspices of St. John's church congregation on the attractive grounds of Mr. R. H. Anderson's residence, Chatham, on Thursday of next week. 2nd August, gives promise of being a very attractive gathering. The ladies and gentlemen composing the committee in charge of the preparations are working very effectively, and several new features calculated to contribute to the interest and enjoyment of the occasion, are devised. The gates will be opened at 2 p. m. and tea will be served, commencing at six o'clock.

A. J. W. The New Engine House.

Only the other day, when the World wa a billious mood, it attacked the Stree and Fire Commissioners for their selection of the Wellington-St. John street site for the proposed new engine house and even ntimated that there was some jobbery contemplated in connection with it. Having since learned that the commissioners are really working hard to secure for the public the best possible service that can be vided for the money at their disposal, the World, while not expressing regret for its former attack gracefully takes it all back in an indirect way, in the following paragraph adopted son of Philip Richard, of St. Mary's | which appeared in its issue of last

"The street and fire commissioners have commenced to get their new fire engine foundation ready. Tenders will be invited at once for the total erection as well as for the tank foundation. The old building at present on the site will be sold, to be removed at once. The new building, when order, will, without removing the engine, cover a radius of from 2000 to 3000 ft., and will command all the most valuable build facilities for water, considered this more feasible than taxing the ratepayers for a new site that could not be got without a further sum of $1000 or more, and as it would cost another $1000 for piping to the river, and digging for a level to the tank under the building; all these things being considered it was a wise thought of the board. The ADVANCE did not refer to them in any way, yet Mr. Adams falsely states that we did and, after enivelling over it like a whipped baby, proceeds to write the foregoing most indelicate sentences which are as true an indication of his general makeup as is the language entering into the composition other portions of his remarkable letter. They suggest to the reader's mind the plaints of the luzzuroni who exhibit their bogus sores and whine over them to enlist the sympathy of those from whose pockets they wish to extract means of sustinence which they are too lazy to earn by honest work. Now, who wants all this mixture of mendacity, medicine and malacissation paraded in public to screen a neglectful official from the consequences of his own follies? He has to pay his family physician just as every other citizen has to do, and ought to have more 'sand" in him than to snivel over it. He lost $200, "in another way" as he puts it, or as he has told scores of people, -on his interest in the Neguac wharf contract with the Dominion government. That goes to show that was not equal to the task of looking after his private interest in the bargain which his partner made for him and his public duties as postmaster, for which he was well paid with the people's money. The results, according to the disclosures which he has himself, so whiningly and peevishly made-have been unsatisfactory all round. He has been obliged to devote $200 of what he received finished and the apparatus in working as postmaster, to the payment of his loss as a sleeping partner in that contract, while he w turns round and cooly tells the ings and stores. But when it is known that he gets much more money from the office than he states, the service he gives and the proposition he parades appear the more inadequate and unworthy. He knows very

Having, however, directed attention to the neglectful treatment of the public at the Chatham post office, with the object in view of securing a restoration of the service to something like its former status, we propose to follow the matter up until that object is accomplished. Neither Mr. Adams' plaintive appeals for sympathy over his doctor's bills, his losses as a public contractor, his misstatements respecting his income. "Round the Empire. London. Cassell & his crocodile tears over his "little family." his lugging in of his "brother", nor his resort to the congenial vulgarity which characterises his personal references to the editor of the ADVANCE, will cause us to lose sight of the one little point involved. Mr. Adams must keep that post office delivery window open as the late Mr. Vondy did, and as he himself did until he thought he could impose upon the public with impunity. That is all he is asked to do. It is the right of the public to have it done and they will be satisfied with nothing less. Our friends. no doubt, think we ought not to be called upon to bear with the insolence and impertinence of Mr. Adams, but some one has to bear the brunt of such vulgar onslaughts when reforms are to be effectively demanded at the hands of such persons. We shall have our compensation in seeing him compelled-through our treatment of his case in a decent and proper way-to serve the public as we have asked that it should be served, and repenting over the fact that he was so silly as to think he could continue to shirk his duty by simply resorting to his "natural vocabulary."

satisfied with what they had seen. The cages and animals were of a costly and superior class that showed what care and expense had been lavished by the proprietors in providing a high-class exhibition under canvass. The elephants, camels, yaks, sacred oxen and other denizens of tropical forest are not surpassed in the country. But by long odds the horses and ponies excel those ever possessed by any of the motley aggregations that spread their posters broadcast and promise a thousand attractive displays which remain conspicuous by absence. The live stock attached to the Cook & Whitby Circus is drawn from the leading breeding farms of Kentucky and England and a glance at the horses in the parade will convince any critical observer of this fact.

The Jockey races, elephant, tandem and the grand Roman chariot race and the boys' pony contest are inspiring and fascinating in their interests, unlike the cut and dried performances of similar character whose tameness excites the derision of any respectable audience. The Cook & Whitby Circus stimulates rivalry by offers of costly premiums awarded at the end of the season to the rider or driver who wips the greatest percentage of contests.
