Patrick Purcell's Body Found.

News has been received from Dundee. Ontario, (opposite St. Regis) that the body of Patrick Purcell, which was stolen three years ago, has been found in the St: Lawence river just below Hopkins' Point. Purcell had become immensely wealthy through government contracts. He was buried in the Purcell family private cemetery near Cornwall, where he lived and, the next night, the body was stolen. Two of the three men who took the body were arrested, but the third, who knew where it was hidden in the river, escaped, hence it was not found. It had evidently been tied to something, for there was a rope around the neck. I was in an excellent state of preservation. Dr. Clouston says the body had been embalmed. The body was stolen from the gravevard on May 7, 1891, by body snatchers, who got the body presumably for the puroose of levying money for its return. All forts to trace the body failed, though the est detectives were put on the case. Now t is supposed the theives, giving up all hope of gain threw the body in the River. After. being stolen it had been embalmed and in this way they were enabled to keep it for so

Boating at Richibucto

The Globe's Richibucto correspondent

"An interesting boat race took place on the Richibucto river during the the afternoon of the 23rd of July. No prizes were given. The race was to decide the frequent discussion as to which was the fastest boat on the river. The interest was fastest boat on the river. The interest was Betts, fish two-fold greater, as one of the stars of the Miramichi fleet, the yacht Oriana was to compete. The breeze, although rather light, was steady. Six boats entered the J. L. In the last half of the course Oriana got first position, but did not hold it long; U and I again passed her and held her place to the finish. Oriana came in second, Lord Wellington third, Nimrod fourth and No. 9 fifth. The Gleaner did not finish the race."

Referring to the winning boat and Oriana the local paper-the Review says:-"Opposite Coy's Block the Oriana ran aground and was delayed for a short time but succeeded in getting off before she was passed by any of the boats in her rear." "The race between these two boats [Haines' U and I and Oriana] was very exciting and though it is quite probable that size in the two boats. Altogether the race showed that while the Miramicui can show some very fast yachts, Richibucto's lobster boats can give them all they want in the 25-Sloop Beaver, 23, Dignard, Chatham, A. & R. way of racing."
