BREEDING TO TYPE.

Some Points That all Careful Breeders Make a Note On. What is type? Webster defines 'the aggregate of characteristic qualities." Before we can breed to type we must therefore thoroughly understand what are the characteristic qualities of the breed we are cultivating. Celebrated breeders have always had a type of their own and they each succeeded in moulding their herds to such an uniformity, that the types are distinct even to this day. But here comes in the trouble—too many are breeding after their own type, Take the Leicester sheep for instance; there are Border Leicesters and English Leicesters, which have to compete in the same classes at shows, and yet the Lincolns and Cotswolds more nearly resemble each other than do these two branches of the house of Leicester. What are you going to do about it? Either divide the the classes, or have a standard and breed to it. If the latter, would not the course pursued by the early Shropshire Breeders when Shropshires were first given separate classes at the Royal, be advisable? This was to employ the same judges at the principal shows for same type, and in fact established it. How often do we hear such remarks as: How often do we hear such remarks as:

"Oh, so and so is to judge; I must send my biggest lambs. He does not mind if they are a bit rough if they have plenty of size and bone." Or it may be:
"I am not in it this year; Mr. —— will have quality; he would rather have a neat little one than a big coarse one."
Now, this ought not to be the case.
There should be one type, and that type There should be one type, and that type should be interpreted by the judges the same each year. Then instead of hearing such remarks as above, we should hear: "I am a little off this year; that ram I used last left the fleeces too open; I must change, or I In the West the Shropshire men are getting away off and are more nearly approaching the Oxford yearly. If the prizes are persistently given to the big, open coated sheep, it is easy to foretell the result. Instead of having the shortlegged, easy-feeding sort, with firm backs of good mutton, they will get slow feeders, with narrow chines, and the backbone never covered even when fat. I had my hands on some of that sort at Chicago. If the Oxford type is followed much longer, Shropshires will quickly lose the name so justly given them in England of "the rent-payers." Again, a close examination of the Hampshires shown at Chicago would indicate a variety of types—so much so that one might reasonably ask: "Are they all of the same breed?" How is this? On their native downs they breed as true to type as any, not excepting the South-Downs. But in the West the South-Downs. But in the West they deteriorate quicker than any sheep I ever saw. Is it because the breeders are not skillful, or are they groping in the dark, not having the proper type in their mind's eye? At any rate, the breed keeps up its English reputation for early maturity, as the first-prize yearling had a three-year-old mouth, and the second prize looked like a broand the second prize looked like a bro-ken-mouthed ewe. Contemplating a ram that was recorded, and by his owner considered purely bred, the thought arose, how could such a nondescript be possibly evolved within the limited time from importation, if kept in the pure line? Again, take some of the sheep on exhibition, not Hampshires alone; the question arose, how long would it take a skillful breeder with no other material than the ram in use, as shown, to breed for his best sheep. In 1784 and 1785,

What was the secret of his success? "He bred to type," and established it so much so, that one ram was like another, and no matter upon what they crossed they left their impress. In conclusion, a word to the young breeder: Before making up your mind as to what breed to go in for, well consider your market and also the adaptability of your farm. Some breeds will do better on rich soils producing luxuri-ant crops, others on hilly or rough ranges; but whatever the sort may be, thoroughly study and make yourself conversant with the acknowledged type of your choice and keep that in view, ever striving to perpetuate those dis-tinguishing features that have made your breed valuable and sought after, also bearing in mind that the same skill that was required to evolve your breed must also be used by you to maintain its present high standard, with this difference, that you have the material at hand if you will wisely make the right selection. You will then have the satisfaction of knowing, if you do not meet with the success of Bakewell and other noted breeders, you have at any rate not prostituted their efforts and made their favorite breeds a by-word and a mockery .- Rie and Gibson, in Country For the Ducks. A fence two feet high will confine the large ducks, such as Pekins or Rouens. To make a cheap, movable fence, cut laths in two pieces, which gives lengths of two feet. Nail the laths (top and bottom) to shingling strips (one by three inches) and nail a whole lath across the ends of the short laths to bind them. The panels should be eight feet. It is only necessary to place them on the ground, their ends touching, and fasten them in position with a stake on each side at the ends of the panels. Early Development. If you can turn the colt off, thorough ly developed, at four years old, it is better than handling and feeding him until he is six. Good shelter and good

feed in the winter help toward this

The Percentages of the Directions in Which Food Assimilates. Dropping the wool is a frequent different explanations for this annoyance to the flock master, but few of these hint at all at the fact that wool must be fed, or it cannot grow, and any failure in its nutrition must result in such a weakness that the fleece fails to keep up its connection with the skin, and thus drops off as if it were severed -as it really is at its root. The fleece of a hundred-pound sheep makes up ten per cent., or more, of the animal's weight, and it consists of a greater proportion of the most exacting elements of nutrition than the flesh of the sheep does. Flesh has seventy-five per cent. of water in it; wool has only fifteen per cent. The flesh has in its dry matter the following elements, and wool has the quantities set opposite to them. Thus the composition of flesh is: Car-bon, 51.83 per cent.; hydrogen, 7.57; ni-

Zegal Notices. trogen, 15.01; oxygen, 21.37; ashes, 4.23. Wool: Carbon, 49.65 per cent.; hydrogen, 6.93; nitrogen, 17.31; oxygen, 22.11; only one fifth as much water in it as the flesh, it is easily seen that it requires five times as much of the elements of nutrition for each pound weight as the flesh, and thus, if the fleece of a Merino weighs fifteen pounds, and the carcass, after shearing, weighs seventy five pounds, equal quantities of food are required for the production of each. This is, perhaps, never thought of by any feeder of the flock, for, so far, it seems to have been completely ignored by all writers ugon sheep husbandry; and yet the importance of it is paramount. The common ignorance of these urgent demands of the fleece for special nutriments is, doubtless, the cause why the sheep suffers so much for the exhaustive requirements of the wool. As the fleece must be supplied after the animal itself, the wool suffers while the sheep escapes, at least to some extent; and as the wool cannot exist without its necessary accompaniment of the yolk and grease, which naturally protect it from injury

Taking into account that the wool has ashes, 2.0; sulphur, 2.0.

by the rains, heat, or cold, this is to be considered as calling for requisite nutri-ment as well as the actual body of the animal. It is worthy of note, too, that as wool contains considerable sulphur, this is also to be provided in the food. Every time the sheep is underfed, or suffers from any other cause, it appears in the wool, the fiber of which shows a thin place in it, and each of these weak spots represent a fault in feeding, or other part of the management. This weakness in the fiber is ruinous to the wool, as it causes it to break in the carding or combing, and thus become too short for the spinner, and fit only for years, men who always went for the felting. This defect is known by the woolen manufacturers and buyers as 'break," and makes it unsaleable. Consequently, the matter of feeding, and the regularity of it, are special points to be regarded by the shepherd. Yet it must not be supposed that the wool only suffers: the sheep must necessarily suffer, for the damage to the wool is only one of the visible signs of injury to the

> In estimating the amount of food necessary for a sheep, all these points are to be taken into account, and the gross weight of the animal is to be increased, for estimating the allowance of food by the proportion to be added, on account of the extra dry substance of the fleece. To be on the safe side, it will be quite reasonable to add to the live weight of the sheep fully 100 per cent.; that is, to double the weight, and estimate the ration accordingly. The normal allowance of three per cent. of dry matter per 100 pounds of carcass may thus be doubled, without any fear of overfeeding. -S. Henry, in American Agriculturist.

A Good Point. An exchange says: "Don't get mad and kick the ram that uses his head occasionally; for a ram that can't knock a man down once in a while is not worth having; a sleepy ram is a poor sire."
This indicates that its author gets his part of a great animated landscape, the scenes of which are enacted for his amusement, Some civilized, self-respecting ram would like to get a whack at the fellow who thinks he must be cross in order to perpetrate his race .-Mirror and Farmer.
