CAGED BY A TIGER.

In its long course from Calcutta to Peshawar the great Peninsular Railway of India has innumerable offshoots and branches. With one of these I made personal acquaintance in a manner which I shall long remember. It happened in this wise:

I was going to Cawnpore, and when I reached Patna I learned that the wreck of a goods train a few miles ahead had effectively checked passenger traffic.

Twelve hours was the utmost limit of delay, according to the railroad officials; but I knew that this would safely be Patna was a dreary looking place on the lower side of the Ganges, and a detention there of a whole day was not a pleasant prospect. But there was no help for it, so I put my luggage in the station master's care, and started out for a stroll in the cool of the morning. In a tobacco seller's bazaar, where I stopped for a cheroot, I was delighted and amazed to find an old friend. I had last seen Lucius Robinson in England. Now, he told me, he was a Captain of the Third Bengal Cavalry, and was in cantonment at Gya. An earnest invitation to be his guest for a few days, and the promise of good sport, quickly settled my plans. Lucius disposed of the business that had brought him to Patna, and before midday we were traveling southward 60 miles through the province of Bengal on the branch line that led to Gya.

led to Gya. Gya was a mere bit of a jungle station, lying amid charming scenery. Captain Robinson was an admirable host, and his bungalow was fitted with all modern comforts. His fellow-officers were companionable men and enthusiastic sportsmen. Indeed, shooting was about the only way to pass away the time the time. During the first week of my visit I made more than one choice bag of game. Then occurred the adventure about which I am to tell you here.

Ten or twelve miles to the eastward were some jungle ruins of great beauty and antiquity. I was very anxious to see them, and Lucius concluded to gratify my wish. We started one morning at daybreak, accompanied by a native driver, and by my host's favorite shikaree.

For half a dozen miles we bowled over shady and well kept roads in a stylish English dog cart. Then the surried wall of the jungle called a halt.

Leaving the driver and the team, Lucius and I plunged into the jungle at the heels of the shikaree.

heels of the shikaree, whose name was He served as guide and gun Each of us carried a haversack of lunch. We found the ruins and spent several hours in admiration of their beauties. Then, after lunch, we were tempted to push on to some more ruins a couple of miles distant. On the way the spoor of a huge serpent led us a futile chase, as did also the tracks of a panther. Pandu protested in vain against our carelessness. When late in the afternoon we found ourselves in a fearfully tangled jungle and many miles from our cart and driver, we were ready to admit our folly.
"Tigers very plenty here, Sahibs," said Pandu, "all sleep now. When dark they creep out."

"That's a pleasant prospect," Lucius muttered to me. "The fellow is right though. This is where the Rajah bags most of his big game. I didn't think we had come so far. We must get clear of the jungle before sunset."

We relieved Pandu of our heavy bore rifles and started briskly back. For a time the dense undergrowth made a single file a necessity. Then we struck a patch of marshy ground. It was com-paratively open, and Lucius and I spread out to the right and left of Pandu aswe tramped saggily forward of through rustling weeds that came above our shoulders. These suddenly fell away and we emerged on the brink of a glassy pool of

As we instinctively halted, we heard a low furious growl. Glancing to the left we saw a sight that chilled the blood with horror. Twenty feet down the shore of the pool, in the shade of a rock and overhanging reeds, crouched a monstrous tigress. Beside her was a playful six-months-old cub. The beast had seen us and was making ready to spring.

For an instant I was petrified with fear. I heard Lucius and Pandu breathing hard behind me. The next my nerves were steady enough. I remembered I was nearest the animal. On me devolved the duty of defence. Up went my rifle, and with a hasty aim I pulled the trigger. Perhaps my arm trembled a little—anyway the ball hit the cub in the breast and stretched it lifeless beside its mother. The rage of the tigress was fearful to see. Her eyes grew like living coals, and she roared like a fury. The next instant she launched herself forward—straight toward me. I was actually fascinated by the sight. My limbs seemed to have lost the power of motion. As though in a dream I heard

"Down! down! Jump to one side!"
I think I moved a few inches, and that unconscious act saved my life. The long, tawny body of the tigress struck me sideways and pitched me headforemost into the muddy pool.

As I staggered to my feet, covered with filth and water, I heard the roar of a rifle. Then I saw the tigress quivering in her death agonies on the ground. She was quite dead before I reached the spot. Lucius stood over her with a smoking rifle in his hand. His face shown with triumph through its pallor.

"That was a splendid shot," I ex-

"It was a deuced lucky one," he re-plied. "You had a close shave of it. Jove! I thought you were never going to get out of the way. Where is your rifle?" I remembered that it lay at the bottom of the pool. "I'll soon get it," I said, and started back to the water. My legs were a little shaky and my back felt bruised. I waded out kneedeep and bent over to grope for the wea-pon. But just then a low cry from Pandu brought me stiffly erect. I heard a threshing noise in the dry reeds. It was yet at some distance. I hastily rejoined Lucius, and we looked in the direction of the sound. A second later a deep, awful roar echoed through the jungle. It fairly stood our hair on end. | year. Pandu's mahogany face turned livid.

"The tiger, Sahiba," he gasped. "It is coming to avenge its mate and cub. His teeth chattered with every word.

There was no time to pick our way. We unconsciously dashed at the pool, and floundered across, side by side. The water came only to our knees.

I remember falling inside in a heap and hearing the clang of iron as the door shot fast. And then came a moment of agony. With a stupendous roar a great tiger launched himself against the cage, and clawed in madness at the bars until they rattled and creakat the bars until they rattled and creaked. Again and again the huge paws

Lucius had dragged me to the very centre of the cage. There we crouched and shivered, while the beast spat and hissed and roared. Finally he drew back and prowled around the cage, peering in at us every

At last a glimmer of dawn streaked the jungle. This seemed to spur the tiger to a final effort. Without warning he leapt against the front of the cage and thence against the top. He glared down at us with open mouth and glared furiously. His two fore paws revolved about our heads.

Crack! Crack! the bars were creak ing and bending under his vast weight. They bent and bulged. Then to our horror, two of them snapped.

"Look out," cried Lucius. "He's dropping on us." The tiger's head and shoulders were actually inside the cage:
we could feel his hot, steaming breath materia

In desperation Lucius whipped out his pocketknife, opened the largest blade, and struck at the creature's paw and drew blood. The roar that followed drove us to the furthest corner of the cage. There we trembled for a moment, while the struggling tiger slipped deeper and deeper between the broken bars. Suddenly Lucius caught my arm in a fierce grip.

"The beast is stuck!" he cried. 'Don't you see? Now is our chance. We crept to the door and slid it open, and banged it shut behind us as we darted out and sped away across the clearing. Roar upon roar rang in our ears, and we heard the rattle of bars, and then a heavy crash, and knew very well that the liberated tiger had crept to the ground. At that moment all hope seemed gone, and yet our deliverance was even then at hand.

As we floundered into the jungle we saw flashing lights just ahead, and a circle of familiar faces. What followed was confusion. I remember a volley of rifle shots, and then a loud burst of cheering. The tiger lay dead, and half a dozen officers from the cantonment were crowding around us. Pandu had gone home, and guided a rescue party back to the jungle. Had they arrived a few minutes later they would have found only our mangled

Though Pandu had imperiled our lives by his frightened flight, he had also saved them. Lucius concluded to for give him and retain him in his service. But Pandu's reputation as a "shikaree" was gone forever. WM. M. GRAYDON.

Stomach Liver Cure

It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the

This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nervine tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver and the bowels. No remedy compares with this wonderfully valuable Nervine Tonic as a builder and strengthener of the life forces of the human body, and as a great renewer of a broken-down constitution. It is also of more real permanent value in the treatment and cure of diseases of the lungs than any consumption remedy ever used on this continent. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life, should not fail to use this great Nervine. Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them safely over the danger. This great strengthener and curtive is of inestimable value to the aged and infirm, because its great energizing properties will give them a new hold on life. It will add ten or fifteen years to the lives of many of those who will use a half dozen bottles of the remedy each year.

IT IS A GREAT REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF

Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, Sick Headache, Nervous Chills, Nervous Paroxysms and Nervous Choking,

Frightful Dreams, Dizziness and Ringing in the Ears Weakness of Extremities and Fainting, Scrofula, Catarrh of the Lungs, Bronchitis and Chronic Cough. Pains in the Heart, Liver Complaint, Summer Com daint of Infants.

All these and many other complaints cared by this wonderful Nervine Tonic.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired diges. tion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the bloom a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair: the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., June 22, 1887. My daughter, eleven years old, was severely a dicted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nervine and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause.

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever? discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the exaperience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the one and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic, HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: | MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says:

"I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shat. tered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen." can not recommend it too highly."

lungs I have ever seen." No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of falling health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon; if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and chiefly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses. and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.
