CIRCULAR.

Starts Nov. 1, 1877.

We are happy to inform our numerous friends that notwithstanding the late disastrous fire, which destroyed our warehouse and Manufacturing establishment, we have reopened at No. 21 KING STREET, and we expect our customers with a full assortment of

GOODS,
CLOTHING, &c.

Our buyers have left for the English and American markets, and from their known capabilities our customers may depend upon having a

WELL-CHOSEN STOCK to Select From.

We would respectfully request you not to place your orders for Fall Clothing elsewhere, as we are in a position to complete them in our accustomed good style, and at our USUAL MODERATE PRICES.

We hope within two months to once more meet you in our New Building, now undergoing erection, on Canterbury Street.

Yours Respectfully,
T. H. JONES & CO.

Miramichi Advance.
CHATHAM, THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1877.

von Moltke's Wife.

When Von Moltke returned to Holstein, after reorganizing the Turkish army, he found living there with his sister—who had married Mr. Bute, an Englishman—a young girl between 15 and 16, a daughter of Mr. Bute's first marriage. The pretty little girl loved already, before seeing him, the soldier who had sent from the Orient such interesting letters to his sister. As for Von Moltke, he had until then seen in a woman only a being constantly interfering with the methodical life of a worker. But when a man more than 40 years old is loved by a bewitching girl of sixteen, he is lured by returning her affection. From that time there was but one woman in the world to him, as there was but one work. He married sweet Mary Bute and when she died in 1863, the great field marshal could say that his life as a soldier being more also ended; only the social remained. The countess was buried in his beautiful park in Silesia, and on the marble above her is written, “Love is the fulfilling of the law.” Mary Von Moltke was a lovely, very charming, very merry, and it is told as a pathetic truth that since her death the field marshal has not been seen to laugh.

The Brute.

The grasshopper;
He cometh;
He cometh numerously;
He bringeth his family;
Also his relatives;
And his friends;
Likewise his mother-in-law;
And her friends;
As well as all that hate her;
And they are legion.
The wisdom of men computeth them not.
They are wiser men of Nebraska;
And there is no place where they are not.
They nip the spring grass;
They devour the fragrant onion sprout;
And the savory celery.
The wheatfield is desolate;
And no green thing remaineth where the hopper hath been;
His pathway is the abomination of destruction.
The ranchman mourneth for his green fields that were, but are not;
Mayhap he sweareth;
Possibly he saith audibly, and crieth aloud—
“What careth the hopper grass?
It troubleth him not.
Ask the prophets of Kansas;
And the wise men of Nebraska;
And they will answer likewise.
But the relief committee agent lifteth up his voice and calleth the hopper blessed.
The patriarch grasshopper cometh from the mystical western land;
The realm of Brigham;
The land of the Mormons;
Whence come many bad things and some that are good;
The hopper is one of them;
Several of them;
But he is not good.
He cometh in the latter summer days, in sun-darkening twilight;
As the winds come when forests are rended;
As the waves come when navies are stranded;
Like unto a Democratic victory.
He alighteth on a potato vine;
And on the fragrant tomato tree;
And on the succulent roasting ear, whilst it is yet in the milk and toothsome;
And upon all other fruit of the field that cometh late into market;
And they all disappear and are seen after that evil day no more forsooth;
And the lady grasshopper maketh straightway her nest “down in the cornfield.”
And in the wheat-stable;
And upon the hillside;
And all over the sandy plain;
And everywhere else under the sun;
And filleth the nests with eggs;
And then she continueth to make nests and fill them likewise with eggs, every day until the winter days cometh and the ground freezeeth hard, when no grasshopper can make nests.
And the eggs, are they not rash eggs;
With double yolks?
And warranted to hatch?
Yea, verily, and the warranty is good.
And the lady grasshopper's mate—what of him?
Verily, I say unto you, he sitteth upon the sweet potato vine and singeth all the glad summer day;
He climbeth up the cornstalk and lopeeth off its verdant branches;
He taketh no heed of the morrow;
Nor of the groans and curses of the irate ranchman.
And in the hottest autumn days he leatheth the fisherman beside the babbling waters;
And up the steep mountain side;
And upon the hillside;
And through soap-weed;
And among thorny bushes;
And when at last the fisherman falls upon his knees and puts his hands upon Mr. Hopper's head;
Alas! he is not there;
But he saith above:
And cracketh his heels together;
And laugheth out of his left eye at the fisherman, who is seated on the hillside, Digging cast-iron tubs from hands and knees.
And framing cuss words.
Alas! he never will climb any more.
And when in the fullness of time
