of those box cars. The planks which he is ripping have been cut from the log by that big "rotary" in the room just behind us. How wonderfully man is assist ed by these boring and mortising machines and who would wish a return to the good old times even if machinery does occasionally work considerable hardship by throwing worthy and industrious men out of employment. This box car is a creditable piece of workmanship, everything nicely fitted and the material excellent. Those trucks with the "box" have been brought in for repairs.

Beside being a benefit to the place, these works, it is almost needless to say, are a great convenience and saving to the rail- NAVY BLUE, way.

Before their erection all repairs, however trifling, had to be executed either at Moncton or Rivier Du Loup and thus, besides the delay, there was a great deal of unnecessary and profitless transportation. IN THE "YARD"

A shunting engine is employed day and night in the sorting and making up o trains; running up coal cars to the top of the bins and carrying out any material that may be wanted for repairs for several miles on each side of the station. Freight for Halifax or St. John must go in the through train for those places and goods to be left by the way have also their special time and conveyance. Altogether the "maker up" has got to "have his eyes open." No car for any particular place must lie in the yard beyond the departure of the train by which it should go neither must it go before the time else it will surely go wrong, thereby causing great delay and confusion. Every facility is offered to the shipper by this road. We can easily see by an inspection of the cars which lie in the yard and are constantly passing, the great advantage of a uniform gague by the different companies. Here are Grand Trunk, Great Western and even cars from Michi-

If you want to ship fresh fish those patent refrigerator cars will secure you, as far as security in such perishable commodities can go, against loss, having all the recent improvements. There are cattle cars, box cars, oil cars and platform cars in readiness for any emergency with careful attention bestowed on live or risky freight.

In the Station is a branch of Molson's Bank. This may be an accommodation in some manner that we fail to see, to the financial department of the railway. It however, struck us as somewhat singular to find a private corporation furnished with rooms in a Government building where it was evident there was no room to spare, if enough. It may be that our Rulers tax the country for the purpose of erecting houses to rent and, if this is so the country should know it as soon as possible. We dont pretend to say that the matter is not all right not knowing the circumstances and the probability is that we never will know them.

THE BUSINESS OF THE ROAD. Nothing surprised us more than the business which this road is developing Although as yet it does not pay directly there is no doubt but that it will in time. In any case it is a national undertaking and, as such, the whole country will receive the benefit of it. No one pretends to say that the money expended on ordinary roads bridges, harbours etc., is returned directly to the Treasury and none will deny that, they are not only useful but necessary-a benefit to the whole people. There are two regular trains both waysan express and an accommodation-each and every week-day to say nothing of specials mostly carrying through freight. These latter are despatched to the extent of from three to six trains per week and are general y run by night.

THE UNCIVIL MAN. We may with rather an amusing contretemps while engaged in taking notes at the Station. C. J. Brydges' Palace car had arrived from Metapediac a short time and he, wich two other gentlemen, and his daughters were leisurely walking the platform when the evening Express arrived bringing an unusual number of passengers. Among the rest was a tall, dark, distinguish at looking gentleman of French descent who was known to Mr. Brydges. It was evident at a glance that he was no ordinary man. We asked several parties if they could tell us his name, without success. Noticing a stout florid gentleman (?) who occupied a chair tilled against the wall and was engaged in smoking a cigar we propounded the same question, seeing that, like ourselves, he was evidently interested in the stranger. "Do you know, sir, said we, that tall, dark gentleto Hon Wm. Taylor, Shippegan, from whom forms man who has just passed ?" The man looked at us with an eye which was just a trifle unsteady we thought and answered "I do, but do not see any reason why ber of the sam I should tell you." He had us there. We could actually give no reason why he should either. We thanked him politely, ventured the assertion that this was a free country and that no man could be compelled to speak unless he chose; that men differed in their ideas of courtesy etc. We tried to find out his name but nobody seemed to know him and we presume those who do will not be surprised at any rudeness of which he may be guilty. He was the same man we afterwards learned who made so, free with the waitnessess NO. 38 and insulted the money taker in the Dining Salcon. Should this meet his eye we should feel obliged for his card. THE END IRON PIPE, KENT DRIVING PARK For Steam, Water and Gas, Kingston, Kent Co.
