GOING TO THE BAD

BY EDMUND YATES.

CHAPTER IX .- TOO LATE. "Do you hear that bell?" " Hear it? I should think so; it has been ringing loud enough." "And ain't you going to answer it?" "Time enough; no hurry; it's them Yankees in twenty-eight. They're used to niggers in their own country, I under-stand, and think we have got nothing to do but to attend upon them. We must let 'em see we ain't to be drove; we must, Thomas."

"They are going to be married tomorrow, ain't they?" "Some of 'em, Thomas; not all. The young gal's going to be married; and a very nice-looking young girl she is."

"That's according as people thinks—there ain't enough of her for my taste." "You likes plenty for your money, don't you, Thomas? That's what they say of you at the ordinary—quantity be-fore quality is your motto. Who's the happy man, Thomas?"

"Sir Frederick Randall, baronet, answered Thomas, making a mouthful of the words. "Oh, oh, a tip-top swell!"

"Well, I don't know about that," said Thomas. "He was in the habit of coming to some billiard-rooms where I was waiter a year or two ago, and he used to be precious seedy then; trying to pick up flats, I used to think, and I have an idea that that is his game now, and that he has picked two good 'uns in these Yankees and their daughter.

All right; ring away, I'm coming.' This was the conversation carried on between two of the waiters of the Star and Garter Hotel, Richmond, a fashionable suburb of London, to which the Adams family had removed for a few days' sojourn, and from which the mar-riage of their daughter was to take place.

For all had been finally decided be-tween Minnie Adams and Sir Frederick; and her father and mother, duly appealed to, had not refused their consent, though it is only fair to say that Hiram P. had hesitated for some time, and only gave way under the extreme pressure brought to bear upon him by his wife. That worthy lady was in an ecstasy baronet for her son-in-law and a titled daughter; the only drawback to her happiness being that Sir Frederick had insisted upon the marriage taking place in a very quiet manner.

Mrs. Adams had hoped to have had a long list of aristocratic guests to grace the wedding, but her future son-in-law had informed her that this would not be in any case, as the members of the aristocracy had not yet returned to London, and it was not considered the "correct thing" to have fashionable marriages in the off season.

So the worthy couple had agreed to everything Sir Frederick proposed, and the baronet had succeeded so well, that, aided and abetted by Mrs. Adams, he had induced Hiram P. to settle a very large dowry upon Minnie.

"Only on one condition, though, Sin Frederick," Mrs. Adams had said, "and that is that we fix ourselves somewheres close by your up-town residence, and that I see Minnie every day. I don't loafers and dead-beats, which is always worrying Hiram's life out of him, to lend them a thousand dollars here and a CHAPTER X.-AN UNEXPECTED APPA- Mrs. Moreton?" thousand dollars there, or to scoop them a fortune out of Wall street; so I have concluded to locate ourselves in London, where we can get the worth of a wedding of Minnie Adams with Sir hundred cents for every dollar we Frederick Randall, and the London sea-

Fire! Fire!! HALL'S SAFES ALWAYS VICTOTIOUS-A HALL'S SAFE RED HOT FOR FORTY HOURS AND CONTENTS UNIN-JURED-BOOKS, MONEY AND PAPERS SAVED. Office of Davis & Haden, Wh'sale Liquor Dealers, No. 9 Main-st., bet. First and Second, Leuisville, Ky., Oct. 19, 1876. Messrs. Halls Safe and Lock Co., Louisville, Ky Gentlemen, -The large number 13 Double Door Fire Proof Safe purchased from you in March, 1872, was in the disastrous fire, corner Eighth and Main streets, on the night of the 16th inst., when over a half million dollars of property was burned, and stood nobly one of the most severe tests possible falling into the cellar with the walls of the build ing, and several hundred barrels of whiskey stored in the upper stories poured their contents into the A. B. Barnes & Co., Proprietors celler, keeping the safe literally boiling in burning whiskey for over forty hours. The bricks and stone were burned into ashes and lime, and it was the hottest fire ever known in Louisville. The safe was buried several feet under the bricks and ashes for two days, and after being dug out of the ruins was opened, and we are proud to say the books and papers were found uninjured, not even discolored or scorched. Several gold watches and some valnable jewellery were found untarnished. We wish you to deliver, to-day, a duplicate of the safe to our new store, No. 9 Main street, and we 146 PRINCE WILLIAM ST.,
