> fever has invaded the household and laid daughter. its iron grasp on the family treasures. Within a fortnight I have consigned to the dust seven wives and eighteen children. I have shed barrels of tears, leaving my body and skin as dry as a piece of old parchment. I've worn crape around my Capt. Ridout was lost on the French shore hat and on my sleeve, and bunches of the of Newfoundland in 1874. A St. John's same sable woe indicator cling like burrs paper of Thursday last says a person from all the way from the nape of my neck and Bonne Pay gives the following informadepend from my coat tail. My presence, tion relative to the loss and disappearance like a moving hearse, puts a damper on of the crew:-"Captain Ridout had £200 all amusements, and I am pointed out in with him at the time he was supposed to the most tender consideration from the ladies. Under their cheering influence his griefs-great as they undoubtedly are -will become a thing of the past, and he will again take his place as one of the pillars of the Church and State. The Lord taketh away wives and the Lord will yet bestow more according to his promise. Our brother hath our sincere condolences." How could I put myself in the way of such a fearful train of affliction. Under ordinary circumstances the woes of humanity are quite sufficient without multiplying them by wholesale and voluntarily. Death in the family, at all times solemn and trying, cannot surely be lessened by applying the principle that familiarity breeds contempt, nor do we think we would be doing justice to the finer feelings of human nature by supposing the average man can reconcile himself to the loss of loved ones by applying the doctrine that they "are not dead but only gone before," however agreeable such a course of procedure may be to the doctrines of Christianity.

Again, suppose we attend some social gathering-a ball for instance. The saints dance-David danced. Fortunately for our sense of modesty all the woman cannot go. The children have to be attended to and the domestic machinery cannot be allowed to come to a stand still. Then the question of fitting dresses promptly fixes a limit to the number of my escort. To fit out the household in novelties in the shape of dresses, bonnets, ribbons, gloves &c, would speedily bring on a financial crisis in my business. My stand had best be one of neutrality, tor if I interfere, I am in a worse position than the representative who tried to please the temperance people by an adjustment of the liquor tariff. For a week the household has been in state of feverish commotion. My wife Dorintha has been dressed in smiles for two days only to be driven into despondency by some new complication not choosing, like good, sensible Sarah Ann, to present herself for criticism in her last year's finery. Lucity Ann who has money in her own land: One day, while "gathering in" the GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS, Insurance effected on Dwellings, Stores, Mills of all kinds, Outbuildings, Furniture, and all other insurable property in Town or Country at reasonable rates. Information turnished on application.

Miramichi Advance.

What the Spring Winds are Saying. Do you know what the winds are saying. Like the voice of a child that grieves, And creak at the cottage eaves;

"We hear, we are broad awake."

No matter, Susie, my darling, Though the Spring winds drearily blow, I am sure that the daisies are stirring, Down under the sheltering snow, In spite of the blustering weather The trees are budding again, And the daffodils whisper together, And wait for the April rain.

-ELIZA J. FAYLE.

The people firmly believe that the crew were all murdered by the same gang. Many other vessels and crews, he believes, meet with a similar fate. He further states that at Port au Port the people do little else than plunder, and expresses the opinion that they would not nesitate to use lights to decoy vessels on shore. The matter has been placed in the hands of the Chief of Police of St. John's
