shall, with your kind permission, Mr.

The Pacific Railway.

On Friday last, says the Toronto Globe,

Mr. Mackenzie explained to the House of Commons, from a purely business point of view, the position of the Pacific Railway operations. He referred to the original obligation incurred with British Columbia, and the sense of that obligation imposed on the present Government, and to the qualification to the contract embodied in

The cost of constructing the line from Thunder Bay west to the furthest point now under contract, and from Rat Portage or Keewatin to Selkirk, on Red River, including rails, buildings, right of way and rolling stock, making 2281 miles in all, would be $5,603,093, or about $24,521 per mile. The intervening portion might cost more, being more remote, but it was not expected to present any great difficulties as to curves or gradients. The length of this link would be approximately 160 miles. The cost of the Intercolonial, inbers to do so in obedience to the wish of cluding all appliances, was $48,000 per those they represented, altho' personally mile, or nearly double the cost of the 2281 opposed to the measure introduced. They get out of order at times in the British Parliament, as well as in those of Canada, Halifax and Quebec. A cable despatch says that the British House of Commons and the public have of late been shocked by scenes of a disgraceful character, and instances of violent conduct have occurred between some of its members which are not at presented at all. The case was simply all in keeping with the customs and stated to the people. An Act, they were traditions of that august assemblage. Mr. Philip Callan, member for the borough of Dundalk, Ireland, a few days ago made a violent attack upon A. M. Sullivan, member for Louth county, and Mr. Mitchell Henry, member for Galway. A bitter personal feud has existed between Callan and Sullivan for some time, arising out of some disclosures in connection with the last general election, and Callan is on bad Council to stay the proceeding for the terms with most of the home rule memtime.
