

ber. You know," he added, parentheti-cally, "that I always keep a stock of material on hand ready for all needs and seasons." I took these Christmas things up one by one and brought them to his attention, and he accepted each one and made a place for it in this holiday number. Then he called his assistant in and gave instructions for making up the copy, and I took him away with me and gave him a royal good time for a week. When he got back to the office it was too late to make any changes, and so you see the number has come out with nothing but my work. And a very good number it is, too," he concluded complacently. "But what do you expect to gain by it?" I asked; "the story will surely come out. and it will do you no good, but quite the reverse.' "You are all wrong," replied Lightly, quietly; "the story will not come out. You can see that Aldeson must be the last man to tell it. "Yes," he laughed, "but it goes just the same. And now," he added, with a slight show of hesitancy, "for the other matter. "Go ahead," I answered, not very graciously, considering that I was dining with him: "I might as well hear it all now." "You asked me what I expected to gain by it. You know Lettie Underwood." 1 started at the name, but nodded with what composure I could command. "That dear girl," said Lightly, "has promised to mar-ry me as soon as I have won a place in literature—in fact, as soon as I have an established standing with any of the leadinn magazines. This settles that point.' To emphasize his meaning, he tapped All the World triumphantly. "But, surely," I said, "you would not consider this fair? You would not be willing that she should know-" "All's fair in love, my boy. And I want you to be my best man. I managed to get off with some half promise, and then, pleading an engage-ment I got out of the club as quickly as possible and into a cab, and gave the driver the number of Lettie Underwood's house. The dear girl-I could have choked Lightly for using the words; they were in my heart whenever I thought of her, which was all the time-was at home and receired me with her usual sweet welcome. But I held her at arm's length, and, with all the sternness that I could command, exclaimed : "Letitia, you are a wretched trifler. Give me back my heart."

"I began to get nervous, not knowing where it would end, and looked at my watch. It was twenty minutes past three. I went to the window, and could see a faint streak of gray light in the east. I was thankful for that, for I believed the garish daylight, which would soon be upon us, would bring the men to their senses, and stop the play. I thought Montgomery's punishment had already been severe enough. "While standing by the window I heard a sharp oath, and turned quickly enough to see Montgomery throw down his cards and settle back in his chair with a look of abject despair. Clifford was bending toward him, his eyes gloating upon his victim. I had not thought the man carried so much malice in his heart, and for a moment I liked him the less for it. But only for a moment. Montgomery suddenly started.

" 'I have one thing more, 'he said, 'the promise of Rachel Morris to be my wife. If I lose now, I leave you a clear field.' "Clifford rose quietly from the table. "'You hear this, gentlemen?' he said. "This cur has dragged the name of a lady into a game of cards. This hound,' he paused, I thought to give the other chance to resent his words, 'this hound,' he repeated slowly, 'has managed to get Dan Morris in his debt. He has agreed to cancel the obligations if his daughter would marry him. This, the brave girl, in a moment of despair, consented to do. This cur,' he paused again, 'holds her to this promise. And now he offers it as a stake upon a game of cards.' "Clifford seemed to grow in stature as he spoke, and the other to shrink to the proportions of a pygmy. When he had finished he took the money he had won, and the checks, and twisted them together and threw them into Montgomery's face. Then he went to the door and opened it. "'Go!' he said; and the fellow slunk out like a whipped dog. "You want the end of the story? Well, it is brief. The club's action was prompt, and Montgomery is no longer a member. "And Rachel Morris, did you say? Oh, yes. Here are wedding cards. She is to be married to Clifford this evening. I must go and dress. I am to be best man. That is my reward for remaining an old

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous derangement.

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITAS' DANCE OR CHOREA.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., June 22, 1887. My daughter, eleven years old, was severely a ticted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nervine and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause. ## INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the one and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the" wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: | MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, HARRIET E. HALL. of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doc-tors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nerv-ine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about and a few hottles cured me entirely. MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shat. tered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured It walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy com-pares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the mid-
