This great tower was planned and erected by Mr FP Loggie, one of the firm, and no architect could have guaged the proportions more accurately. The smelts are put up in the finest quality of oil and are quite equal as a table delicacy to the finet sardines. The blueberries are superb and quite equal to the argely increased through their noble directed. exhibit. The fair closes to-day, but the appearance of the Loggie Lighthouse will

A Veteran.

Capt. Smith, R.N. R., who is in Chatham holding an investigation in the matter the Miramichi-Osceola col'ision on 17th ult. has very favorably impressed all who have had intercourse with him, either in his official capacity or personally. He is no stranger to a few of our people, who have travelled to Europe, as he is well remembered as Commodore of the Allan L ne fleet and Captain of the steamship Parisian. He has crossed the Atlantic more than five hundred times, and the pilots and seafaring men recognise in him a master amongst. those who go down to the sea in ships, while all appreciate the courteous and affable characteristics which made him such a favourite with his passengers when crossing the Atlantic. Our veteran friend, Capt. Templeton, has found in Capt. Smith one who, like himself, served in the Crimea, although in a different arm of the service, and Capt. Smith bears testimony to the old army man's accurate memory of places, dates, and individuals connected with that famous campaign. Such officers as Capt. Smith inspire confidence in the Department they represent, and whatever may be the result of the investigation he is now holding, it will no doubt, be a fair and just one in view of all the circumstances.

Capt. Smith is accompanied by his secretary, Mr. A. E. Gilpin, who is a son at Bathurst owned by the St. Lawrence of Very Rev. Edwin Gilpin, D. D., Dean of Halifax, and an excellent vachtsman holding a master's certificate.

The Transcript's Frankenstein.

Very few persons have ever seen anything unusual in the Petitcodiac at Moncton when the tide is rising, but the Transcript of that town has, in the interest of the hotels, no doubt, endeavored to make it appear to outsiders that there is a phenomenon in that locality known as "the bore," which it has described as a moving wall of water of Mr. Smith is nominated by Mr. B. all heights up to six or seven feet, caused Stapleton, Mr. Connors by Mich'l Keoughan, by the incoming tide rushing up stream. So Mr. Kerr by Mr. Geo. Under these circumstances it is almost impossible to give its accurate arrival. To night it should arrive at 22,30 o'clock. On last Sunday a peculiar characteristic of the bore was noticed. As it turned the bend, its foam-crested breast was plainly visible, but almost immediately disappeared from view. Spectators on one of the lower wharves were surprised at this peculiarity but were as equally surprised to see it suddenly create almost in front of them. On another occasion a visitor to the c ty with kodak in hand descended the himself. river ba k in front of Dunlap's whaif waiting its approach—but what was his astonishment when he saw it create fifty yards past him. The bore will arrive to-morrow morning at 10.40; to-morrow night at 23.20 o'clock, and on Monday morning at 11.15 o'clock. This, no doubt, means that the Transcript will, hereafter, abandon the bore fake and exercise its peculiar Gehazic genius Dominion politics. Everybody knows that when the wind runs against a strong tide great waves are "created," and as the Transcript writer's experience of the salt water is confined to "The Bend," it is not hard to understand why he should "create" abore. Frankenstein created something of the kind, and it was his Nemesis. Our Transcript friend's "bore" may yet be hi Frankenstein creation.

Mr. Kerr is in a glowing, radiant and extatic condition of mind over that requisition paper and has an idea that the signatures on it are evidence of the popular ty of Messrs. McLichlan and Watt, whose protege he is! He ought to remember, however, that it was his brother inlaw-Mr. W. S. Loggie-who obtained the" pest of the names, and that they were secured under false pretences, for Mr. Bryan Moran's name was associated with his for the purpose of inducing many to become parties to the call who otherwise would not have done so. Mr. Kerr cannot congratulate himself over the fact that such tactics were resorted to in his behalf, and he can hardly feel that the paper is good for ts face value when those who carried it around well knew that Mr. Moran had positively declined to be a candidate. before it was prepared. Mr. Keir a requisition paper presented to him on another occasion, and he hardly needs to be reminded of the fact that there was a discrepency between the number of signatures and the votes he received, which caused him to refer in a quite uncomplimentary way to the signers. When Mr. Kerr finds a similar condition of things after the polls are closed next Tuesday, he must bear mind that the requisition was for Messrs. Kerr and Moran and that Mr. Moran declined to be made use of, white he didn't. Mr. W. S.
