THE DOCTOR'S MISTAKE.

Old Benjamin Westlake was very eccentric old man. He was wealthy, but lived unostentatiously. He had never been married, and was not known to have any relative in the world save a nephew, who lived on a farm some five or six miles away. About five years ago the old man and his nephew, Allan Eastly, had quarreled, since which there had grown a silent estrangement which had never been bridged over. Allan was of a proud nature, never given to toadying, and he consequently determined to carve out his own fortune independently of dead men's shoes, For a time things went telerably well, but bye-and-bye disaster followed disaster, and the young farmer was at length compelled to face the fact that, in spite of the resolute energy, he was losing ground year by year. Again and again his wife Hilda implored him for the sake of their young children | fresh testament this very night." to pocket his pride and endeavour to enlist the sympathy and help of his Uncle Benjamin.

"I would sooner perish," said Allan, "and see the children suffer him. I hate him and were I to go near him I would be tempted to strangle or poison him."

Things did not improve on the farm, and, to stave off an immediate and fearful catastrophe, Allan at length had resource to a firm of money-lenders. The result of these negotiations tided the young farmer over his difficulty for a time, but the reckoning day loomed on the horizon, and peace of mind thenceforth became an unknown element in Allan Eastly's life. He became moody and misanthropical, treated his wife with harshness and irritawhenever she attempted advice, and finally made sorrow worse by endeavoring to drown it in alcohol. He became a frequent visitor at the Black Bull, a licensed house in the adjoining village. The neighboring farmers who "used" the snuggery of this hotel were not slow in realizing the desperate financial condition of their confrere and, on several occasions, Allan, instead of disguising his position, openly avowed that he "was on his

Stomach Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years. It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indi-gestic 2 dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nervine tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver and the bowels. No remedy compares with this wonderfully valuable Nervine Tonic as a builder and strengthener of the life forces of the human body, and as a great renewer of a broken-down constitution. It is also of more real permanent value in the treatment and cure of diseases of the lungs than any consumption remedy ever used on this continent. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life, should not fail to use this great Nervine Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them safely over the danger. This great strengthener and curative is of inestimable value to the aged and infirm, because its great energizing properties will give them a new hold on life. It will add ten or fifteen years to the lives of many of those who will use a half dozen bottles of the remedy each year.

IT IS A GREAT REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF

NERVOUS DISEASES.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Disesses, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous de-
