This 10-25 95 was the course which had to be adopted by Hayhurst and Boyd, and, as all the other competitors had finished firing, the whole of the interest, which by this time had at tained to a pitch of enthusiasm, was concentrated upon the possible outcome of the ITCHING PILES, ECZEMA, After conferring together, the two men SALT RHEUM decided that they would exercise the option allowed to them of taking a sighting shot NTMEN

With his, Hayhurst made a magpie (3) and when Boyd got a bulls eye signalled for his trial shot there was a suppressed Scottish cheer at so propitious an omen. The Canadian's first shot to count was an outer, to which the Scotsman responded with an inner, or two to the good. With his second Bridgetown shot Hayhurst followed the good example thus set him by his opponent, but to the indescribable mortification of the men from Chathan north of the Tweed, there was no responsive signal to their champion's second shot. Five shillings was cheerily paid as the cost of a challenge, but the verdict of the Dartmouth marker was inexorable, and Scotland's hope was dashed, for there was only one shot a side to fire, and alas their "mon" was two behind.
