

General Business.

The Best Food For Children? is worthy every parent's study; not only what they can eat, but what gives the most nourishment. No children are better, and most are worse, for eating hard-cooked food. If, however, their food is prepared with healthful vegetable shortening, instead of lard, they can eat freely of the best food without danger to the digestive organs. You can easily verify this by a fair trial of Cottolene. Sold in 4 and 8 lb. tins. Made only by The N. K. Fairbank Company, Wellington and Ann Sts., Montreal.

50 YEARS!

For the last 50 years Cough Medicines have been coming in and dying out, but during all this time...

SHARP'S BALSAM OF BOREHOUD

Never Left the Front Rank for Curing Croup, Coughs and Colds. All Druggists and most Grocers sell it.

ARMSTRONG & CO., PROPRIETORS.

NOTICE TO HOLDERS OF TIMBER LICENSES

Chatham, N. B., 12th Decr. 1894. The attention of all holders of Timber Licenses is called to Section 10 of the Timber Regulations, which reads as follows: "No license shall be out for any license under any license, not over 100 acres in length and not less than 15 feet in length and ten inches at the small end; and if any license shall be out, the holder shall be liable for the same."

Splendid Farm for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale his farm at Napau, containing 100 acres more or less of land well known and well watered, besides about 100 acres additional well wooded with poplar, cedar and birchwood.

FOR SALE.

Four Horses, one Moving Machine. Apply at station farm to WM. DIXON or Mr. B. SNOWBALL'S Office.

IMPROVED PREMISES

Just arrived and on sale at Roger Flanagan's. Wall Papers, Window Shades, Dry Goods, Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishings, Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c. &c.

PROFESSOR LEICESTER.

organist of St. Luke's church, professor of the PIANO, ORGAN, VOICE PRODUCTION and whose pupils have taken the highest honors including the Brown Medal and Bennett's Bursary.

Shanty, Camp and Boat Stove.

From Miramichi Advance of Dec. 13. Mr. George Marquis of Chatham will be looked upon as a benefactor of small fishermen, sportsmen and others who may have the good fortune to be hooked upon a "shanty" pattern designed by him.

FISH!

Never say you can't get fresh fish in town and that they are all spoiled. We are offering FRESH SALMON, MACKEREL, SMELTS, SHAD, EELS, CODFISH, BASS ETC.

Miramichi Advance.

CHATHAM, N. B., MARCH 21, 1895.

Manitoba School Question.

Grand Master James L. Hughes, of Toronto, in his annual address to the Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West, recently in session at St. Catharines, reviewed the Manitoba school question, and made the following among other recommendations:—

"That in case the Governor-General-in-Council shall decide that the Roman Catholic minority be entitled to a remedial legislation, the following principles be followed in giving effect to the decision:—

(1) That the Legislature of Manitoba be requested to provide a remedy which shall satisfy the just demand of the minority. This will avoid the very undesirable course of interference by the Dominion Government with the educational acts of a provincial legislature; and may prevent possible conflict between the Dominion and provincial authorities.

(2) That no remedial legislation be recommended which would weaken the Manitoba school law of 1890 as a basis for a national system of schools, or establish Roman Catholic separate schools, on the same footing as public schools throughout the province of Manitoba. The Privy Council in its recent judgment was very explicit in stating that it is not desirable or expedient that the statutes repealed in 1890 should be re-enacted.

(3) That, in restoring the just rights and privileges held by the Roman Catholic minority of Manitoba in 1890, care be taken to maintain the principle of equality between the Roman Catholic schools which were in existence at that time. Section 22, subsection 3, of the Manitoba Act of 1870, which is identical with section 30 of the British North America Act, requires that remedial legislation be so framed as to maintain equality so far only as the circumstances of the case may require. To deal fairly with the Roman Catholic schools existing in Manitoba in 1890, is a very different thing from giving the right to Roman Catholics to establish new separate schools in other parts of the province.

After reading carefully the arguments of Mr. Blake and Mr. Ewart, counsel for the appellants in England before the Privy Council, the Grand Master, in his address to the province of Manitoba, at the latter address of Mr. Ewart and Mr. McCarthy before the Governor-General-in-Council, I am of opinion that the remedial legislation proposed by the Roman Catholic minority living in Manitoba, in 1890, is entitled to some consideration. They are clearly entitled to as much consideration as Protestants would have been if the Roman Catholic minority of Manitoba had increased more rapidly than the Protestants. They are clearly entitled to as much consideration as Protestants would have been if the Roman Catholic minority of Manitoba had increased more rapidly than the Protestants. They are clearly entitled to as much consideration as Protestants would have been if the Roman Catholic minority of Manitoba had increased more rapidly than the Protestants.

It appears from the foregoing that even some prominent orangemen have discovered that there are two sides to the Manitoba school question.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week Sir Donald Smith of Montreal was waited upon by a large number of prominent merchants of that city with an address and request for him to allow himself to be a candidate for St. Antoine (city) division. Sir Donald accepted and in his speech in reply to the address recalled events which have an important bearing on the much debated Manitoba schools question. He said:—

"There is one other matter which I think I should say one word about. We have a very vexed question here before us as regards the settlement of which will be, as I believe, a long one."

"FOR THE REAL GOOD OF THE COUNTRY. It is a difficult question, but I believe that there is enough good sense among Canadians as a whole to secure a satisfactory solution of this vexed question."

"It happened that some, five and twenty or more years ago I was commissioned to carry out a mission to the people of the North-West with a message of good-will and of peace. At that time I had, besides a commission from the Canadian Government, a letter from the then Premier, Sir John Young, and also a direct expression from the Queen herself of her regard for her subjects of the Dominion of Manitoba, and in their loyalty. That, in a letter that was called from England, and I was instructed to convey this expression to the people of the North-West. All these documents gave the pledge that right and justice would be done to the people of the North-West in a short time, and, perhaps, explain, because some of you may not be able to look back so well as I can, to the circumstances of the case at the moment; I may say that we were at that time in the same happy relations towards our friends on the other side of the line as we are at the present moment. It was just after the Alabama difficulties and before the meeting of the joint high commission in Washington, which took place in 1871."

"THERE WAS A GREAT DANGER IN THE NORTH-WEST, due to the bitter feeling of the United States towards England and Canada, that was well understood. We know that over three years were made to these people of the Red River settlement, and the State of Minnesota, at any rate, and that money would have been forthcoming, if necessary, to aid any action on the part of the settlers of the North-West to stir up the country. We know that our friends on the other side would have been glad to have had the whole of that North-West, and we know that the Government of Canada was anxious to get to know the inside of it before we came to arbitration. I think we have been convinced that on several occasions, and with all this before us, it was felt by the government that it was its duty to give to the people of the North-West, both French speaking and English speaking, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, and all denominations, that equal right would be done to all. In the conventions that took place, a bill of rights was put forward, and as representing the Dominion Government, which was empowered to do, I answered to the different articles contained in that bill of rights. I have here

"THAT BILL OF RIGHTS, at least as it was published at the time. This bill of rights, as you see, is a very complete copy of the bill of rights of the Dominion Government, the only copy of the bill of rights in the Dominion. Among other things, it gives what we call the bill of rights, and it gives a draft that they put forward, and my answer to them. One of these things, I need not detain you to quote the exact words, but it says in effect that I have preserved to them everything they had had in the past with all rights and privileges they had enjoyed in the past. I was authorized to say such would be the case. I did say it would be the case. (Hear, hear.) But I think in connection with that I should make one explanation. At that time there was some 11,000, certainly not 12,000, people in the whole of the Red River country, the boundaries of which were defined in Art. 17 of the bill of rights, which reads as follows: "That the Local Legislature of this territory have full control of the public lands inside a circumference having an upper

"FORT GARRY AS A CENTRE, and the radius of this circumference be the number of miles that the American line is distant from Fort Garry, or 11,000, or 12,000, perhaps 6,000, were French speaking Roman Catholics. The other 5,000 were English speaking and Protestants. As we have just seen, Manitoba was then a comparatively small area, which would be sixty to sixty-five miles on either side from Winnipeg. While I think that THAT PROMISE CERTAINLY APPLIED TO THAT DISTRICT, of course it is a matter for consideration whether it should be made to apply equally to the extended Manitoba. But I have every hope, I think I may say, regarding myself individually, I have confidence in the great good sense of the people of Manitoba, and I think that when they come to consider the matter calmly and earnestly, devoid of and apart from any political prejudice, that they will feel satisfied in their own hearts and consciences that this themselves and to do substantial justice to all parties in the community. (Hear, hear.) This, it appears to me, would be the very best solution of it we could possibly have."

"Sir Donald's statement of the feeling prevailing at the time the guarantees of the perpetuation of the French language and separate school rights were given to Manitoba is in keeping with the recollection of those who were in Ottawa at the time the Red River delegates were there. These representatives—chosen for the purpose by the people of the disturbed district—were then in Ottawa at the invitation of the Dominion government. Their country had been in arms against Dominion authority because of the mismanagement of its mission by Hon. Wm. Macdougall, and the Dominion government was acknowledging the mistakes it had made in its method of treating them. It paid the expenses of the delegates from Red River to Ottawa; they were its guests while there, and it paid their expenses back to their homes. While in Ottawa, the Dominion Act creating the province of Manitoba was agreed upon between these delegates and the Dominion government—an act which was subsequently ratified by the Imperial parliament, so that it has the same force and is as solemn a pledge for the good faith on our part as any act of parliament in which its guarantees shall be adhered to as the British North America Act. No one has ever denied that from the first settlement of the country, up to the time of passing the Manitoba Act, the schools were denominational. They were distinctly under Roman Catholic, Church of England, Presbyterian and other sectarian control—according to the religious preferences of the people amongst whom they were established, the civil government authority—from the time of Lord Selkirk in 1817, when the Roman Catholics were given aid to their schools, making regular grants to each. It was in order that this privilege of separate schools might be secured to them by law that the Red River delegates to Ottawa in 1870, had the following provision in their bill of rights:—

"7. That the schools be separate and the public money for schools be distributed among the different religious denominations in proportion to their respective populations. It has always been acknowledged, we think, that the bill of rights formed the basis of the constitution of Manitoba. The foregoing section 7 of the bill would, of course, be a meagre provision to appear in an Act of parliament, but it is evident that the intention on all hands was to secure to the people of that country what they had been accustomed to in the matter of denominational schools, so we find the following in Sec. 22 of the Manitoba Act:—

"In and for the province the said Legislature may exclusively make laws in relation to education, subject to and according to the following provisions:—

(1) Nothing in any such law shall prejudicially affect any right or privilege of the Protestant or Roman Catholic minority of the Queen's subjects in relation to education.

(2) In case any such provincial law as from time to time accords to the Governor-General-in-Council requests for the due execution of the provisions of this section is not made, or in case any decision of the Governor-General-in-Council on any appeal under this section is not duly executed by the proper provincial authority in that behalf, then and in every such case, as if only the circumstances of each case require, the Parliament of Canada may make remedial laws for the due execution of the provisions of this section and of any decision of the Governor-General-in-Council under this section.

"It is not a matter of wonder that Sir Donald Smith, or any other fair-minded man who is acquainted with the circumstances of the people of the Red River country in 1870, and remembers the jealous care they exercised in guarding against any diminution of their privileges in regard to religious education, as well as the use of the French language, should sympathize with the minority who have had to struggle against great numerical odds and organized prejudices to maintain the rights which seem so clearly guaranteed to them by an imperial statute. What was promised to them in the Queen's name, at a time when they might have ceased to remain the Queen's subjects, ought not to be denied to them now, even though the bargain then made was an injudicious one.

"Politics in Northumberland. It was, of course, a foregone conclusion that Mr. Mitchell was to be nominated at the Liberal meeting of Monday last in Masonic Hall, Chatham, and there was, beforehand, a determination to have it done there and then, regardless of the standing rule of the Liberal Association of the County prescribing the mode of making nominations. The disposition of the gentlemen controlling the meeting was disclosed a few days before it took place, when an old Liberal of the County, and former worker in the party ranks, directed the attention of Mr. Kerr, who was made president of the organization on Monday, to the desirability of permitting all the parishes to have a say in the matter through their duly accredited representatives, as provided in the rules of the association. His reply was that the gentleman making the suggestion and another, who he named, wanted to run the party, but they couldn't do it and the party could get along without them. The same spirit was manifested towards Mr. Wilson, when he asked a question which bore on the same subject. He was simply sat upon. The wheels of the machine were started and it had to roll on. The bulldozing game ill accords with the spirit of true liberalism. No election had been announced when the meeting was held and it is not known whether there will soon be an election or not. It was well to reorganize the old party and again place it in working order. It was well to avoid the mistake of 1891, when Mr. Mitchell was nominated without even going through the formality of calling a meeting of the party for the purpose, but was not right to call a meeting for a Monday afternoon—of all other times in the week—when liberals from the remote up-river parishes could not, save at great inconvenience, attend and rush a pre-arranged nomination through with out even rescinding the rule of the Association on the subject.

"There never was a time in the history of Northumberland when the people generally were so apathetic over the subject of a pending Dominion election. There are, doubtless, numbers on both sides of the politics who have not been earnest in supporting the candidatures of Messrs Adams and Mitchell, respectively, but they, at the most, comprise only a small portion of the voters of the County. It has been realized, for some time, that Mr. Adams, notwithstanding his many excellent qualities, has failed to meet the reasonable expectations of those who worked and voted for him in 1891. In many cases, it is probable that almost any other man would have similarly failed, but, in many others, he has displayed lack of aptitude, or of judgment, and industry, and an almost total disregard of the duty of placing himself on an equal footing with the people of the County—not showing himself to be interested in them and their concerns, or personally seeking to find out their wishes in regard to local public matters within his province as a member of parliament—thus alienating their interest in and personal regard for him. It is true that for a month or two past he has shown a disposition somewhat different from this, and extended the circles of his visits and conferences in the County, but it is also true that there is an election not far off, so the people will judge for themselves the real motive for this sudden interest in their affairs and his apparent desire to be their candidate and helper. It would be unreasonable for Mr. Adams and the half dozen gentlemen who, if they have not controlled his policy as a representative, have been almost exclusively the custodians of his confidence and his advisers in County matters, to expect any degree of enthusiasm among the people over the idea of his again being a candidate. Indeed, it may be said that there is a general feeling of regret that he has not realized his failure to meet their expectations, and, even in the interest of his party, assist in placing in the field some more efficient and acceptable man.

"It is, of course, of no practical use at this time to say that in view of the comparative absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.

"The condition of things we have outlined brought again into the County the absence of party feeling in Northumberland, there is good reason to believe that Mr. Adams had the opportunity to make himself almost invisible in the County. He was taken up four years ago by men of all shades of politics, who were tired of Mr. Mitchell and his absenteeism. They hoped that Mr. Adams, being with them and of them, would be always within reach and in contact and sympathy with them. Had their expectations been realized, he would not only have retained the support of those who voted for him in 1891, but won that of many who did not do so. To his own neglect in this matter is due the fact that as the time has passed supporter after supporter has been alienated until, now, the great majority of the electorate are looking for some other candidate.