A LIFE SAVED BY TAKING AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL
"Several years ago, I caught a severe cold attended with a terrible cough that allowed me no rest, either day or night. The doctor prescribed by my friends, and the use of many remedies, failed to give me any relief. I was then advised to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. By the time I had used the whole bottle, I was completely cured. I believe it saved my life."

FRANCIS A. GILLISPIE, AGENT.
Cochin China, where the remarkable discovery was made, or Annam, occupies the greater part of the eastern portion of the Indo-Chinese peninsula. It lies in 123° north lat., and 102-109 east long., having an area of 200,000 square miles. A mountain range of considerable height runs through the country parallel to the coast. The climate is extremely variable, and changes of temperature and weather are very sudden. The country of the Mo is but little explored, though certain of the inhabitants dwelling near the Annam border have become partly civilized by contact with Annamites and Chinese.
In the month of May M. d'Enjoy left Bien-Hoa, where he had an official residence, on an expedition to this country. Not knowing what strange adventures he might meet with on the way, he went fully prepared for trouble. He was accompanied by a number of Annamite coolies, selected with an especial view to their courage and strength. The little party was followed by carts drawn by oxen. Mr. d'Enjoy took the only available road to the Mo country, that leading from Bien-Hoa to Tri-An. The roads in the north of Cochin China, are not very good at their best, and the one which M. d'Enjoy and his party were forced to traverse was even worse than the average, as it was then only in course of construction. For miles at a time the tracks that had been made by other vehicles would be obliterated, and the carts were forced to cut their own ruts through the soft clay. In some places the coolies were obliged to stop and clear away the brambles that blocked their path. But it was much worse when they quitted the road entirely, for then they had literally to cut their way with axes as through a forest.
At last, after four hours of slow marching, worn out by fatigue covered with mud and leeches, the party arrived at the village of Tri-An. This is a hamlet of the Annamites, lost in the desert of forest, on the border of the country of the Mo is.
He found himself at the extreme front of the country of the Mo is. The village consisted of rude huts constructed of straw, like those of the poor farmers of Cochin China. The roofs were supported on the posts of wood shaped in the form of a bow. The sides of the huts bristled with barbed arrows having poisoned points. The poison used was of a peculiarly deadly kind, and it attracted M. d'Enjoy's attention at once. He
