misapprehension as to any understanding upon which the conference was proceeded with. As to the first of those matters school district. We must again direct your attention to the evident advantages in point As to the first of those matters of economy in the system we propose over mentioned by you: we understand the facts the old system, over schools under the to be that you insisted that no further con- Remedial Bill, and particularly over the sideration of the Remedial Bill should be existing state of affairs where an important pressed for by the Dominion Government section of the public has to pay school taxes. until to-day (Tuesday), and that we direct- and in addition feels compelled from coned your attention to the announcement to scientious motives to educate their children that effect in the newspapers of the day, and having every desire to meet your wishes we further promised to comlocal. The utmost that can be said is that municate with the Dominion Government it would cost the whole community the asking that the bill be not taken up on increase in expense, if any, which would Friday. This communication we sent, and necessarily be involved in the Roman we were as much surprised as yourselves to Catholic children being educated together find that late on the night of the Friday in one room or in one building as compared sitting the bill was advanced a stage. We with educating them scattered amongst the cannot say what consideration forced the rest of the school children. It is only in Government to the conclusion that this step small mixed communities that this could be was necessary and we sincerely regret that a serious item. We note your objection any misunderstanding has arisen as to a that this would be an offensive method of point upon which we carried out what we compelling one portion of the people to pay believed to be our engagement, and upon for the education and sectarian religious which we did all we could to have your training of the remainder, and must again wishes observed.

"As to the second matter which you mention there seems to have been a clear and perhaps not unnatural misunderstand. ing between us. We understood you to stipulate that when the school question was settled the remedial bill would be withdraws, and we did not mean to lead you to elieve that this was to take place as soon as flagrant injustice f the present system, a agreement was arrived at between us. and the concluding paragraph of our suggestions therefore expressed our understanding of what was originally agreed upon. We refer to these questions which are in themselves unimportant in order to remove from the controversy all matters of a personal character.

"A few words are necessary as to the character of our memorandum. It was put matters which would meet the observation in general terms as a suggestion based upon which our future discussions might proceed with a view to a possible agreement of all you from the necessity of going as far this. parties interested. It is therefore open to It is perhaps impossible to devise a system some of the objections raised by you inas- that would be entirely unobjectionable some of the objections raised by you inas-much as it does not deal with details, and

"In addition to this we must premise that sufficient weight is not given by you to the undoubted legal position of the Roman Catholics. Under the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and the remedial order they certainly have important legal rights in counection with separate schools, and while the Domin ion Parliament may have jurisdiction to en force some or ail of those rights, it is universally acknowledged that this could be done with more advantage to ail parties by the Local Legislature, and for this reason we are holding this conference. A discussion of the disadvantages of separate schools is, therefore, in our view not relevant to the pre sent situation, and is likely to raise misleading issues. In our view much of your argument misses its mark because you have not recognized the present position of affair and dealt with our suggestion as compared of the propositions which you make would with a regular system of separate schools such as might be established under the Remedial Bill, or under the old system, bu have rather confined your attention to maintaining that our proposition would involve some of the drawbacks of these other schools. We deeply regret that you have felt obliged to reject our proposition, and with all deference it does not appear to us that the objections, general and special. which you urge are such as to necessaril involve so serious a step. It would serve no useful purpose for us to support ou. view with any detailed argument, bu some general considerations may be a vancen as to the three objections upon principle which you mention, viz.: "1. That our plan would divide the population into two classes, Roman Catholics and Protestants, giving the formclass privileges as against the latter. "2. That it would establish a system of must further draw your attention to the which compels Romas Catholics to contribute to schools to which they cannot conscientionsly send their children, and we beg to submit that this fact deserves due we, ht and consideration in this connection. "It is to be further noted that the Roman has had no return of them and highly Catholics earnestly desire a complete system of separate schools, on which only their own money would be expended, a state of theoretically and in the abstract. We had professes only to lay down broad lines upon which legislation might be drawn. "In addition to this we must premise practical scheme doing reasonably substantial justice to all classes, and securing that harmony and tranquility which are perhaps more than anything else to be desired in a young and growing community, such as is now engaged in the task of developing the esources of Man toba. "The ground taken in your fifth objection has been touched on in the preceding remarks. As to clause two of our memoran um your objections could be met by provisions as to detail. If desired the privieg-s of teaching religion could be limited to a certain time in schools attended by Roman Uatholics.

would be modified to an unusual extent and bring it into accord with the separate school principle.

"As to the first of these objections, we may observe that the separation of the Roman Catholics as a class does not arise from our suggestion. It is made by un constitution and arises as to them becaus they happen to be a minority of the popu-lation. It is inaccurate to say that any privilege is given to them as against the rest of the population. It is only the righ conferred on the minority by the constitu tion that are in question. The poblem presented in the school question is to secuto them their just and lawful privilege noder the constitution in such a manner a to cause the minimum of interference wit the public school system of Manuoba, a d in that view we think that our suggestion has merits.

"As to your second objection we man observe that the Roman Catholic populat contribute their share of all taxation fo schools, and in return are entitled to obt education for their children. It is now question of the mode of that educa ion view of the rights held by the mourt under the constitution. The content that the system we propose would be an iu expensive, and the limitations on ordinary separate school privileges embodied in ou proposition, will be considered later on. In so far as there is any principle violated b the application of taxes to the support of schoo's in which Roman Catholic doc rine are taught your alternative sugges ion would seem to be quite as objectionable a
