WONDERFUL COINCIDENCES. Time and the Fates Play Strange Chances

With People and Things. One of the most extraordinary coincidences that have ever occurred was the trial of a man in London a short time ago. The prisoner, who was deaf and dumb, was tried on an indictment of brutally assaulting a deaf and dumb girl. The fact that both prisoner and fashion, he told him to go to sleep. Imaccusant, without even being distant mediately the subject fell under the inrelations, were afflicted with deafness and dumbness, is in itself most extraordinary; but it seems like flagrant fiction when coupled with the fact that all the witnesses-and there were seven-were also deaf and dumb! The case is probably without a parallel in the whole history of the world.

A sad and strange coincidence oc curred in a provincial town recently. While a man was walking past a house in a quiet neighborhood, a woman hurried out and suddenly fell dead up- face, in the same mesmeric manner, and on the doorstep. The man ran off im- said "Wake up," which the soung man arriving at the house of one, rang the bell, but before his summons could be answered he feil dead upon the doorstep, the shock of what he had seen, accelerated by the speed at which he had run, acting uron a weak heart.

A most remarkable incident took place in a London coroner's court not long ago. On calling out the names of the jury summoned to attend, it became evident that all the twelve "good men a little waving of the hands, or wha and true" were named either Jones, Smith or Brown, and that one member of the Brown section was not present in court. His name was called the proper number of times, and as he failed to appear, the coroner called for a substitute, A man rose from the body of the court and offered his services, and in answer to the coroner said you wake up all desire for it will be his name was Robinson. The circumstance caused considerable astonishment and amusement in court, as it temperance and told him how to get rid well might.

down the street, when she happened to see a ring lying upon the pavement in years. He put him under the hypnotic front of a jeweler's shop. By the peculiar pattern of the ring, and the motto inside, she immediately recognized it as one she had lost only a few days before and had bought from the very shop outside which she had found then the hypnotist said: "How do you it, Thinking she must have lost it like that?" "That's fine tobacco." it, Thinking she must have lost it tell the manager of her extraordinary good fortune.

The manager expressed his astonishment at the coincidence, but answered the lady that it was not as she thought, for a man had been into the shop a few minutes before to have the ring valued (without a doubt this particular ring), but when asked to produce it, found that he had lost it, and thereupon left the shop. He had probably dropped it on entering the shop, and the lady had picked it up, just as she must have dropped it for him to pick up a few days before. The lady's story, which is corroborated by the jeweler, knocks fiction into a cocked hat.

HYPTNOTIS'S POWER.

IT IS CLAIMED MEN CAN BE RE-FORMED BY IT.

Desire for Liquor, Tobacco, Opium and Morphine and Other Drugs, the Use of Which Becomes a Habit, Vanish Before the Power of the Hypnotist's Spell.

Professor Charles D. Brouyette, a young hypnotist who has just been discovered, is said to possess mesmeric powers of a most wonderful character. And these seemingly supernatural powers he intends to exert for the good of sor is a young man-hardly more than a mere boy in his teens, as far as personal appearance goes — and yet he claims to have accomplished hypnotic feats that have startled some of the oldest and most experienced students of this strange art, occult science, or whatever one chooses to call it. His pal, smooth, almost girlish face is framed in a shock of jet-black hair, which is wavy but not absolutely curly. But to the observant stranger the supreme feature of his noble face is his eyes; they are big and as black as the blackness of basalt. And while these eyes are apparently drowsy or sleepy in expression, they have a certain weirdness, too; they fascinate you in certain moods like the searching, soul-piercing eyes of the basilisk; they fix their gaze upon you, rivet your attention, and try as you will you cannot break the spell; you cannot get away from their mysterious power.

In physical build this remarkable young mesmerist is slender and boyish. His manner in repose is also youthful diffidence. But when placing a patient under the spell of his hypnotic power this seeming diffidence undergoes a wonderful transformation; the boy becomes the man, all animation, earnestness, enthusiasm and will. So much for the personal appearance and attributes of this latest prodigy who has come to notice in the much exploited field of mesmerism. He is of French extraction. He received his education in the public schools of Chicago, but never had any particular consciousnesss of gifts in hypnotism until one day, when about sixteen years old, he came in contact with an experienced teacher of mesmer-ism, who recognized his latent strength in this direction and induced him to become a student of the rsychic phenomena, develop his innate powers, and use them for the good of mankind. Young Brouyette has recently established himself in a modest flat in the quiet, prohibition suburb of Englewood. Any pedestrian or trolley car passenger passing in the vicinity will hardly fail to notice a big yellow sign fastened to the side of a house which proclaims to the Englewood prchibitionists and all wayfarers who chance to travel in that dry district these glad tidings:-

HYPNOTISM Cures liquor, morphine, tobacco, cigarette, and all useless habits. Stammering in speech, catching of the breath, etc. I remove all ideas that cause trouble.

If any man is a slave of the drink habit let him consult hypnotism and there find a panacea. Hypnotism in its modern phases has accomplished won-ders. There has never been discovered a

In

France this science of hypnotism is much better understood than it is here; but this boy not only studied here but accomplished some of his most wonderful results among the friends who knew him best. For example, he recently took as a patient a young man who was addicted to tobacco. This young man was The Sick and Suffering do not Appeal in the habit of smoking 150 cigarette sin a day. After placing him in a chair and waving his hands over him in mesmeric fluence of the hynotist, and seemed to be under complete control. The weirdness of the hypnotist now became apparent. Nothing could be seen but the glitter of his big black eyes and sinuous movements of his long, skeleton-like arms. Soon the patient was apparently in a sound sleep. The cigarette fiend was then asked if he would like to smoke. Of course he would like to smoke. And the hypnotist handed him a lead pencil. which he smoked with manifestations of the greatest enjoyment. Then the hypnot- THE VICTIMS OF DISEASES WHO HAVE BEEN ist passed his hands over his subject's mediately in search of a doctor, and did without delay. He was again put to sleep and told that smoking was injurious, that he would no longer desire to smoke after waking. This was the mode of treatment. In the next place a man with a big bottle nose and a strong whisky breath was brought before the hypnotist. Upon examination it appeared the bottle-nosed man had been drinking for twenty-three years. Professor Brouvette put him in the cataleptic state in a few minutes by some ignorant people call pow-wowing Then he said: "Here is a glass whisky," when as a matter of fact it was nothing but a glass of water. He drank the water with as much relish as if it had been old Kentucky whisky. Then the hypnotist said: "What I'm giving you is injurious to your health; you must give it up; it is kliling you. When gone." The subject was brought out of his trance. Thereupon the lecturer described to his subject all the evils of in of the trouble. The hypnotist in the A short time ago a lady was walking | next case took a young man who had been a slave to plug tobacco for fifteen influence without the least difficulty, and then offered him an ordinary business card, telling him it was the finest brand tell you that you don't want any more tobacco: you don't desire it any more, do you? You wouldn't take a chew now if you could, would you?" In this way, says Professor Brouyette, the desire for habits that are injurious are removed. In regard to how soon he can accomplish a cure, it is all owing, he says, to the temperament of the patient. Sometimes, he claims, he can cure a slave in one or two treatments, and then again there are cases which require from three to ten treatments. Of course, where a habit has been fixed on a man for several years, he says, you would not expect it to be removed in a minute. Habits are of slow growth, but they become second nature to a man. Habits often lead a man to the grave. Professor Brouyette said that of all the fiends he has ever had to treat the morphine fiend is the worst. In a case where a man has been using morphine or opium in any form for any great length of time, it requires the greatest skill in judgment and often weeks in treatment before he can get them divorced from their trouble. It is a great thing to remove ideas that trouble the mind. Hypnotism, according to Professor Brouyette, is a thing that anybody can practice, but not all with the same degree of success. He made a study of the science under an advanced teacher right here in Chicago. He says that almost every person is able to hypnotize a man or woman that is amenable; and then again there are other operators who have much more magnetic power. So far as he much more magnetic power. So far as he and backward almost to the point of himself is concerned, he is able to put nine persons out of every ten under the hypnotic influence. This is his record. There is nothing new in the bare idea of hypnotism. But never before has a man advertised that he would cure liquor, morphine, and tobacco habits by the application of this science. He claims to have cured a good many patients troubled with these different complaints. Professor Brouyette tells of one case that is very interesting. A lady of great wealth, whose husband was one of the most prominent business men in Chicago, had secretly become a slave to the morphine habit. She had tried all kinds of remedies and failed. She was in despair. She went to Europe and visited the different health resorts and consulted the most famous physicians. Then at last she heard of this hypnotism and To the Farmers of Northumberland County and Bree

> "There are two cardinal principles in my method of treatment." said Professor Brouyette. "The first is, as I have already remarked, that while the patient is in a cataleptic state I remove all desire from the mind for the particular form of indulgence with which he or she has become afflicted. I do this in an impressive and permanent way that is only known to one who practices hypnotism. In the next place, wh n I bring the patient out of the cataleptic state, I carefully explain the evil effects of the habit and leave nature to build up the broken system. Sometimes this can be done in a single treatment, then again a case may require several treatments. But the one fixed idea which I never allow to depart from the patient's mind is that the desire is gone, and gone to stay forever. Professor Brouyette has many funny experiences in removing troublesome ideas from the minds of some of the persons who call upon him. One day last week he received a call from a young woman who wanted to get rid of the idea that she was destined to become an old maid. After applying the mesmeric force he had no difficulty in convincing her that her notion was erroneous-that fortnight she was cured, and she has been free from this habit ever since.

she would be a happy bride at twentyfive and that her husband would be a rich man. There was not a happier young woman in all Englewood the next day. She was so elated that she told her friends about the seance, and thus the secret leaked out. One treatment was Building adjoining the Post Office, Chatham. sufficient in her case. Perhaps the most remarkable case which has yet come within the young hypnotist's experience is that of a man who lately consulted him in order to escape from the idea which had fixed itself on his mind that he was about to commit an unconscious murder. This man was in no way vicious, nor was he an inebriate, though it may be that he was on the borderland of insanity over business troubles. At any rate he became sleepless over the idea that he was in danger of murdering a fellow man without knowing it. Professor Brouyette still has this strange
