The Second Marriage. "How cosy you do look!" I could not help saying as I sank into an easy chair opposite my two old friends whom I had not met in five years. "We are enjoying our second marriage," answered my friend with a merry standard high-grade wheei of Canada.

"Your second marriage!" I looked at her in amazement. I knew she had never married any man except the one beside her, and she has been his wife over thirty years.

"You see," she continued, tucking a silvery hair neath the dainty cap, "when Will and I first married, we had only each other to think of and care for. To this day I love to think of those first two years. Then a little one came to share our affection. What with making dainty little dresses and keeping busy hands and feet out of mischief, I could not always think to have my husband's slippe s by the fire, or his hat and gloves in just the right place. As the years passed and our children grew, our interest was centered in their welfare; we had less time to think of each other; now they are married and settled in homes of their own, and we have gone back just where we started, with only each other to care for."

"And do you enjoy it the same?" ] asked. "More," she answered quickly; "then we had to learn each other's likes and dislikes; now we know them and can gratify each other's wishes, almost before they are spoken." The first dose greatly benefits. 75 cents. Warranted by J. Pallen & Son.

I watched them during the day, and noticed how careful he was to do all little errands, to save her steps, and how quietly she arranged everything for his comfort. When he praised the lunch her eyes brightened, just as I imagine they did in those first years. We lingered long at the table, chatting of old times and old friends. His voice was as strong, and his laugh was as hearty and fresh as years ago, while she had lost none of her peculiar
