How Grandpa Gray Fixed Up a Surprise For Young Industry. "I am going to try 'em," said Grandpa Gray, and his eyes were twinkling. He meant his three small grandsons-Hal, Herbie and Had. So at dinner grandpa said to grandma: "I wish I had time to take that rock out of the yard there. It's a real eyesore to "Can't we, grandpa?" asked the boys.

"Well, yes, if you want to," said he. "and I'll be much obliged to you." So, directly after dinner, they set work. It didn't look like a very large rock. But it was a good deal larger than it looked really.
"Pooh!" said Herbie. "I'll take it out in no time!" And he got a stout stick and tried to pry up the rock. But the stick broke, and Herbie got a fall, from which he jumped up red and angry. "Mean old thing!" said he, and he put his hands in his pockets and watched Hal and Had tug at it until their faces were red too.

Then all three lifted together, but wasn't a mite of use. "Let's get the hoe!" said Had.

And the littlest crowbar!" said Hal. "And the shovel!" said Herbie. So Had hoed around it, and Herbie shoveled, and Hal pushed the crowbar under the rock and bore down on it with all his might. The afternoon was very warm, and the three little scarlet faces needed a great deal of mopping. But the boys wouldn't give it up. "Poor little fellows!" said grandma. looking out through the vines. But just then a great shout announced that the work was done. And there-there where the rock had lain-were four silver dimes, one apiece and one for good luck! "Hurrah for grandpa!" cheered the boys, and at that very minute grandpa walked out of the house.

"Pretty well done!" said he, giving each little head a pat as he came to it. "Pretty -well-done! And now the boys are anxious to dig out another rock, but grandpa thinks maybe spirit much the same as that of the silver dimes won't grow under the next deacon in church who says "Amen" one.-Little Sower.

A Good Game For Fun. "Who's got the whistle?" is a game with no end of fun in it. Most of the party-at the fun is going on. Blindfold one of the girls or boys who haven't learned the trick whistle by a long string to some part of the dress of the blindfolded one. The game consists in getting hold of the whistle and blowing it while the blindfolded player tries to guess who has it. Of course he has the whistle himself, and until he discovers the trick the fun runs high. When he has found the whistle, another player can be called into the room and blindfolded and the trick played again.

Of their voices and throw the genuine old jubilee vigor of camp meeting into the song. If they are cutting logs for the saw mill nigh at hand they are apt to swing their axes in full time with the measure of the song, and this gives it all the more interest and peculiar charm.

One of the lively "jig songs" that are the trick played again.

A Boy and His Mother. Many a boy fails to rise from his chair when his mother enters the room, while he would get up at once if a stranger entered, and one would suppose that his mother, who is more to him than the rest of womankind put together, should, to say the least, have from him the same marks of courtesy as strangers. In fact, you can tell a boy's character pretty accurately by the way in which he treats his mother, for as a mother has probably done and will do more for her son than any Five cents is my pocket change, other woman—with perhaps one exception—will ever do, so he ought in return to treat her as his most valuable possession. His courtesy, his chivalrous and knightly bearing toward her are never thrown away .- Harper's Round Table

A FAMOUS STREAM, Made So by a Song Which Is a Household

To sit in a gorgeous box at some scene of life and brilliant glitter, and responds; hear the marvelous voice of Patti ripple away on the melody of "Way the locomotive, one looks from the window of a Pullman car and sees for the first time in all his life, the clear, silent waters of this stream, is quite a different thing. How many have seen the Suwanee River through the veil of sentiment and song, under the environment of the first named order; and how few, comparatively, have actually stood upon the banks of the river itself, listened to the soft, low murmur of its meandering waters, so clear, so beautiful and so blue in eddy places, with trees bending over its bosom, all festooned with long, waving Spanish moss, which so abounds in the western regions of Florida. Fewer still are those who have lived upon the banks of this river, known throughout the world of song, long enough to make a study of the people who dwell permanently in its long, sweeping vales-the land of flowers, song birds and sun-Just how a river, a narrow little sand-bottomed, blue-watered river, that plays so small a part in the map of the United States as does the Suwanee could ever have become so famous in this wide world, does seem strange, to one when he comes to think of it, all because of a mere song. But after all, it has a charm all its own, and the average visitor will find, when he once falls under its spell, that it will linger with him with surprising tenacity, and grow upon him like the shadow of some mysterious fascination. No doubt there was some such inspiration behind the lines:-Way down upon de S'wanee Ribber, Far, far away; Dar's whar my heart am turnin' ebber, Dar's whar de old folks stay.

Be that as it may, no such ideal picture book songs as this are ever heard on the Suwanee River in real life, unless it be, now and then, when some resident of this section chooses to hum a few lines of this same song in a spirit much the same as that of the when the preacher has finished the morning prayer—simply agreeing to what the author of this immortal song has written.

But there are songs along the Suwanee River that are characteristic and unique in all their plaintive melody, pathos and humor. The negroes who are found at work along the river, either on the little boats that haul timber up and down from the mills or phosphate from the mines, or out in the lumber camps and fields along the river bank, seem to be all given to song. They go about their work in the morning with a song and sing all the livelong day, crooning some plaintive air in a monotonous fashion, or else joining in a chorus where there are several of them, and making the woods around fairly reverberate with the echoes of their camp meeting hymns such as this:-Jes' look over yonder what I see-

Angels bid me ter come-See two angels callin' at me-Angels bid me ter come. Rise an' shine, mourner.

Rise an' shine, mourner. Rise an' shine, mourner, For de angels bid 'er me ter come!

How their rich, mellow voices do least all who do not know the game- melt away in the distance as they join should be excluded from the room where in this sweet old air, and how the plaintive strain seems to die away upon the sighing waters of the famed and place him in the center of a circle, in which all the other players are sitting, just as if "hunt the slipper" were to be played.
While the blindfolding is in progress let some person slip up quietly and tie the

One of the lively "jig songs" that are often heard in the lumber and phosphate camps along the Suwanee River runs something like this:-

Jaybird up de sugar tree, Sparrow on de groun', Jaybird shake de sugar down. Sparrow pass hit eroun'.

Shoo, ladies, shoo, Shoo, ladies, shoo, Shoo, ladies, shoo my gal, I'm boun' for Sugar Hill.

Ten cents is my bill; If times don' git no bettah heah I'm boun' for Sugar Hill. etc., etc.

The music of this song is much in the fashion of the common negro songs, lively, yet full of pathos and plaintive orders to melody. There is that in all negro songs that is plaintive, even their most exasperating foot-shaking and soulstirring "jig songs."

True, typical negro songs rarely ever show any particular effort at prepara-tion. They seem to just boil right out of the darkey's heart and soul, and if by chance they manage to get a fairly good jingle or rhyme to them, it is by no special poetical painstaking on the part of the author, and, in fact, is of but little consequence to him. Such are the songs that one hears on the Suwanee river, in these modern days of progress and material develop-

On the Contrary. "I hear you had a financial discussion with Deadwood Pete. Did you tind him open to conviction?" "No; but when I left him the doctor had to take fourteen stitches in him." Young Men's Popularity. To the query, "Are young men who
