The wind was south, and although light at first it soon increased and made fair sailing. The course was from Call's wharf to a mark boat off Burchill's wharf, Nelson, thence to Canadian Marsh Point buoy and back to Cali's wharf, sailed over twice. The start was made just before half past two. Maude leading Oriana by 25 seconds and Kittoch by one minute. Maude held the lead for the greater part of the first round, but was forced by Oriana to go about on the first beat up to the home line, the latter having the right of way. When the yachts reached the Burchill turning point the second time, the mark boat had been removed. There were no protests, however, and Oriana was declared the winner although she carried a spinnaker while Maude did not.

A Big Project.

THE ENTERPRISE OF THE TRACADIE LUMBER CO., RECENTLY ORGANIZED IN BANGOR,

The Tracadie Lumber Co. which this week completed its organization and its plans has so large and important a venture. undertaken an enterprise of considerable magnitude and one that promises very satisfactory returns. The Commercial has several times referred to the plans of this company. It has acquired ownership of an admirable mill site of 30 acres at Tracadie, Gloucester county, N. B. and also purchased 10,000 acres of timberlands on the headwaters of the Big Tracadie River. Tracadie is located at the mouth of the Big Tracadie river, on the south shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is about 200 miles north of St. John, being reached from that city the Intercolonial railway to Bathurst and thence via the Gulf Shore & Caraquet railway, the latter line having recently been extended through to Tracadie. A branch line of three miles is to be built to the mill and the shipping port will be Shippegan on the Gulf Shore & Caraquet railway, where there is an admirable harbor accomodating the largest vessels that sail the ocean.

A Maine expert who has recently explored the tract found on one acre four pine trees that would scale 4400 feet and on the same acre five scaling 5000 feet and on the whole acre 13 scaling 13,000 feet. The tract is a virgin growth never having been cut over and the estimated age of the trees is 150 years. The same expert investigated the driving facilities and affirms that the conditions for driving ogs on the Big Tracadie and its branches are the best he has ever seen. The track is an elevated plateau and the banks are

The Tracadie Lumber Co. will at once commence extensive lumbering operations on the lands. They are to have three camps, with a crew of 50 men to a camp and will probably cut about 10,000,000 feet of logs during the winter. The new mill will be ready to commence operations in the early spring, and the manufacture of long lumber and clapboards will be carried on on an extensive scale. The long lumber will be shipped to European and South American ports largely. The principal product however will be pine clapboards and for these a very profitable market is anticipated. Henry B. Foster will be the general manager and he will make his headquarters at Tracadie and will give personal attention to the supervision of the extensive operations of the new company.
