As a for Mr. Pottinger probably knows the first step toward this object provincial plebiscites were asked for by the Prohibi-Intercolonial in all its departments tionists, and votes were accordingly taken in nearly every province. It was in the midst of this plebiscite phase of the Prohibition movement that the National Libera! Convention met in Ottawa in 1893. The Prohibitionists have always based their argument upon the statement that the people are in favor of a prohibitory law, and would enforce one. The Scott act familiarized them with the idea of taking a vote to decide whether the people of a country wanted Prohibition. "Doughty temperance men like Principal Grant have emphatically declared their intentions in this matter; they regard Prohibition as practically coercion, an unwarrantable invasion of the liberty of the subject, and as quite ineffectual; they will not give their support to any measure that will Russianize Canada, . . . It is a question whether Prohibition would not foster traits of character the reverse of honest and manly: it is not conducive to self-respect in men who are not Prohibitioniste (and there are a few such) to have to partake of the forbidden beverages by stealth and to obtain them surreptitionally from secret sources of supply.

Acceptance of the tenders of Mr. Snowball and Mr. Stothart was moved by ald. Robinson, seconded by ald. Flanagan. A discussion then arose in reference to some cedar which Mr. John Maloney, of Rogersville, had sent to Chatham under an alleged contract therefor with the town. Ald. Loggie explained that as a member of the public works committee he had stated i writing that if the cedar were required by the late street commissioner, and the other members of the committee signed the order for it, it should be bought for town use. appeared that the then street commissioner had said the cedar was required and ald Maher, a member of the committee, had signed the order for its delivery. Ald. McIntosh, another member of the committee had not eigned the order, he being away at the time, but Mr. Maloney sent the cedar the council, here and ald. Loggie thought-under the circumstances-that it should be accepted and Mr. Maloney paid for it. Ald. Snowball said the cedar was not merchantable and of no use for town purposes The council should not accept it.

Ald, Flanagan thought the town could not acknowledge Mr. Maloney's claim in any way. The street commissioner had notified him that the cedar would not be Mayor Winslow said the Town Clerk had notified Mr. Maloney that the cedar was at his (Maloney's) risk, but had received no answer. The matter had been placed by Mr. Maloney in Mr. Tweedie's hands and Mr. Tweedie, as Mr. Maloney's counsel, was desirous of placing it before the board. Ald. Mr. Tweedie complimented the council the public spirit and enterprise it manifested in improving the streets as it was now doing and said it was his desire to assist Chatham in every way. This fine, new hall and its arrangements for the accommodation of the different town services lent dignity and a sense of method and order to the conduct of affairs that were very gratifying and in pleasing contrast to the old condition of things The new road maker had arrived and he had asked street commissioner Wyse to take charge of it for the present. These machines are in almost every parish of some of the counties of the province, but in some others the commissioners fight against them because they do work well and cheaply and reduce their commissions. He was sorry to hear the Mayor say the council had determined not to entertain Mr. Maloney's claim. He then proceeded to lay it down as a principle that no town should invite law suits and he cited St. John as having a large debt, much of which had been incurred in useless litigation. Mr. Maloney had cedar for sale and found the town needed cedar. He went to the street commissioner and made to him proposition in writing to sell the cedar $6.50 a thousand feet. The commissioner went with him to the acting chairman of the committee having charge of such matters and that official conseated to the purchase

Could any one of them give a just reason for rejecting his claim? Let them act fairly and honorably by Mr. Maloney! If the chairman or any other member of committee made a mistake, was that a reason why an injustice should be done to Mr. Maloney? It was said corporations have no souls, but could they as honorable men evade their liability to Mr. Maloney by hiding behind technicalities? They were morally and in conscience bound to pay Mr. Maloney. The Mayor said that neither the road commissioner nor any member of committee was authorised to make purchases in this way without authority of the council, and it was not necessary for Mr. Tweedie to instruct the Mayor and council as to their moral duties and responsibilities.

of the council presenting his client's case, and was endeavoring to show what, in his view, should operate on their minds in regard to the justice of Mr. Maloney's claim and he had the right to put his client's case as strongly as possible. It was not for the Mayor to argue with him as he went along, but after he had presented his views, to consider their value together with the gentlemen of the council. Mr. Tweedie proceeded to further argue the matter and said that any man would deliver goods of any kind on town account if he had an order therefor such as Mr. Maloney had been given, and he asked whether any man at the board would not agree with him? The council should be careful not to get into litigation, and he would tell them that in

WESTERN MAGAZINES ITS CIRCULATION IS GREATEST.

The most noteworthy example of the growth of western periodicals is FACTS AND PICTION, a monthly magazine published by The Dominion Company, Chicago. In less than three years it has attained a circulation exceeding 140,000 copies. No other western monthly legitimately circulated on its merits has ever reached this figure. The reasons for this phenomenal growth evident. The magazine is distinctly western and enjoys the patronage of all whose blood tingles with pride at the grand achievements of that part of the country lying west of the Alleghenies.
