A REPORTER'S MISREPRESENTATION : A citizen who was present at the Town Council meeting on Monday night, called at the ALVANCE office yesterday and pointed out the fact that the World displayed its spleen against Mr. Connors' nomination to the police magistracy, by misrepresenting the vote thereon, that paper stating that there were three pays. The vote is in our report exactly as it was taken. Under the rules it was unanimous and properly so declared. Not a single alderman stood up when the Mayor asked the nays to rise.

THE FORESTERS' DANCE at Masonic Hall Newcastle, on Friday evening last, was very successful and enjoyable one and the attendance was very large. The ladies were well and tastefully gowned. The Orange B nd under the pro tem leadership of Howard Cassidy furnished music as the guests were assembling, and the Orpheus Orchestra of Chatham, under Mr. Walter White, played the dance music, giving entire satisfaction to the dancers. Light refreshments were served during the evening, this important part of the arrangements being managed by Mr. Henry Wyse, who received great credit for the manner in which he discharged the duty.

ANGLO-AMERICAN: No. 8 of the "Anglo American," a new paper published in Boston came to the ADVANCE a few days ago. It is the first number of the paper that we have seen, but we are glad to get it, even at so late a date. Its pages indicate that it especially appeals to the class of Americans who properly realise that they owe much to British ancestry and traditions, and do not, in the absorbing admiration the typical yankee generally feels for the United St. tes and its institutions, forget the Mother Land or cease to admire it. The Maritime Provinces are represented in the Anglo-American's pages and we have no doubt that it commands the support of a large and loyal constituency.

The hall on Tuesday evening was finely decor ated, the assemblage was large and representative of our best people of all classes, the toilettes of the ladies were such as to impress onlookers with the fact that it was a more than ordinarily well dressed assemblage, the music was perfect and the supper entirely satisfactory, in its menu, preparation and serving. Meeting of the Chatham Town Council

Our town council celebrated its moving into the big town building-planned and imposed upon the former and first council by an outside architect, who seemed to know or care little about the town requirement in a characteristic way. We are qui a sore that the unusually large number of citizens present-some 200-expected to see a kind of model meeting, and when the council pro ceedings did not begin at the usual hour there were congratulations amongst th crowd that the aldermen must be considering matters to be presented, so as to avoid the usual verbosity and absence of preparation which have characterised Chatham counci meetings, and, that there was-after the council meeting-after all, to be a proper celebration and entertainment at the open ing of the much criticised building. The big flag floating all day from the staff at the top of the tower was publicly accept as a general invitation for everybody who could do so to be present. If some of our lecturers on "sentiment" or "expectation" or "uneasiness" in politics and literature could have such an audience as there was in the council chamber on Monday night, in stead of the chairman and janitor who where her many virtues endeared her to the usually greet them, they would feel that their game was working admirably. However, the crowd was there, and the talking members appeared to throw off all restraint Northumberland as well as nearer to her in testing their patience, to say nothing of unnecessarily imposing on the reporters' time and the unpaid-for space in the papers. visits were much appreciated and a source they represent. The business to be trans acted was not out of the ordinary course, Overseer John G. Williston of Bay Du Vin | but the discussions which took place plainly died at his home last Thursday of heart indicated that the aldermen had not con trouble. He was 47 years old, and was sidered and digested in committee their revery highly regarded in the community in | ports or other business to be presented, or, which he lived. He leaves a widow and if they had done so, they were disposed to nine children, as well as many other relatives | do a lot of unnecessary and time-wasting to mourn their loss. The funeral, which | talking, either for effect upon the unusually took place on Sunday was very largely large audience attracted by the opening of the new building, or in the expectation that the press representatives' former warn. ings against civic verbosity meant nothing. They transacted business which required. perhaps, an hour's session under a usual modern system, but it took them just three hours to do it. We saw the reporter of Chatham's semi-weekly lay his head wearily on the table in front of him and pretend to talking about, or, if they did, had got their tongues and brains at variance. For instance, during a long discussion on a ire committee report, which dealt ambiguously with certain bills connected with the "Blair Barracks" fire, the chairman of the committee tried to talk himself out of position of indecision which is so often assumed by aldermen who don't exactly understand themselves. After he had paralysed his tongue by unnecessary talking-which should have been done in committee and not the council-he made the astounding tatement that "Ryan had to haul the horses to the engine to put the fire out." Now, if he had said that the engine had had to haul the fire to the horses to put the engine out, or that the horses had to haul the tire to the engine to put Ryan out, or that the fire had to haul Ryan to the engine to put the horses out, or that the horses had to haul the fire morning at 2.30 just this side of Petit | the haul out, or that the fire had to put the

But, his tongue, from excessive use, became tangled, as he seriously dec'ared that they should ascertain what it would cost "to place a large tower in the bell." As there is no bell of any account for fire-alarm purposes in question was put. Chatham in which to place a large tower, and as a hammer, properly adjusted by one of the well-known mechanical devices in use the driver if the flangers were down on the for such purposes and electrically connected, rails. Haines then heard a crash and that the council board the desirability of conducting the public proceedings of the body to which they belong more in keeping with modern and accustomed usuage. Surely Mr. McCulley was heard. Carried. they can do better if they try!

It is of course impossible for the ADVANCE any other country weekly to publish all report of the discussions which took lace at the town conneit on Monday night. Sach a report would occupy our thirty two oumns and, therefore, leave no space for reference to any other subject, so we can only refer briefly to the business transacted. The mayor referred in a congratulatory way to the new town building and the fine, first time. He also noted the presence of ex-mayor Dr. J. B. Council resumed business and the assessment asked by ald. Loggie was voted.

The Mayor referred to his having directed the attention of the Council at its last meeting to the law on the subject of the Scott Act fines collected by the acting Police Magistrate, and to the order of Council directing that official to hold the money collected on that account in his hands for the present. He referred to the efforts being made to organize the Town's services and said that every department thereof should be administered under the law. Whatever the law required should be done by all, without any distinctions or favors to any interest. Some gentlemen seemed to think that members of Council should not speak out their minds on the subject of the administration of this or that, but he could see no reason for any such attitude. The acting police magistrate had utterly disregarded the Council's order and held himself independent of it, while he hastened to obey an order of the Municipal Council to pay over the amount of fines in his hands. It was time that a regular police magistrate was appointed under the Town's Incorporation Act, who would be in sympathy with the Town and its rights under the law. He understood that the local member of the Government had said he would appoint any man the Town Council might nominate to that office and he hoped a nomination would be made without delay so that an appointment would be made and the interests of the Town be efficiently and properly served. Ald. Maher moved, seconded by ald.
