company which will stand superior to any hitherto brought to the city. The company includes the McDonough-Drole Trio of pantomimic grotesque artists who are engaged as a special feature at this exhibition; they are exceptionally clever, and have been identified with some of the best companies. They were the leading feature for two seasons with Hanlon Bros. "Fantasma," and their human ladder, which is twenty-one feet high is simply marvellous.

The two boys who were sons of John Lavigne were thrown out and fell under the wheels and received terrible injuries. One died two hours after and the other, in addition to having his leg broken near the ankle was otherwise seriously injured.

Mr. John A. McPherson, a graduate of the ADVANCE Office, now of Boston, Mass., and Chairman of the Book and Job Branch, and Vice-President of the Boston Typographical Union, No. 13, is making a short visit to his home.

SHOOTING AFFAIR AT SUSSEX—Thursday evening, while under the influence of liquor Roland Dryden went into Holman & Erb's store, and after getting a pipeful of tobacco pulled out a revolver, saying it was not loaded and pointing it at Mr. Holman. Hardly had he done this when the revolver went off, the bullet striking Holman in the mouth and knocking out four teeth. The bullet could not be located and it is thought Holman swallowed it. Dryden is under arrest. He says he has no recollection of the shooting.

BROKE HIS NECK—Thursday last, Charlemagne Richard, of St. Ignace, about twelve miles north of Richibucto fell from a load of grain and broke his neck. Dr. Bourque was summoned and found the patient completely paralyzed, in which state he remained until Sunday afternoon, when he expired. Mr. Richard, who was 47 years old, was one of the most highly esteemed and well-to-do farmers in the neighborhood. He leaves a widow and family.

COMPLIMENTARY DINKER—Mr. A. H. Miller, who left Chatham last evening took up his residence in England was given a complimentary dinker at Landry's on Tuesday evening. Mayor Winslow presided and Prof. Secoy, Tweedie occupied the vice chair. There was a large company present and many toasts were given, and speeches made and songs sung. It was not until after midnight that the company sang "Auld Lang Syne" and after that they separated well pleased with their evening's entertainment.

MATRIMONIAL—Mr. J. Gardner, of Seranton, Pa., was married to Miss Ada A. Mowatt of this town by the pastor of St. Andrew's Church on the evening of Tuesday last. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's father in the presence of the family and a few guests. The bride received many handsome presents. After the wedding supper the happy couple left for their future home by the Maritime Express.

Mr. James Kay, Stipendiary Magistrate of Moncton, was married at Chatham on the morning of Tuesday last to Miss Sarah M. Copping. The Rev. George Young performed the ceremony at the residence of the bride's mother. Immediately after the happy couple had partaken of a wedding breakfast they left for their home in Moncton.

Sabbath School Missionary Service. A Sabbath School Missionary Service was held at Sweeney's school, Lower Napan, on the evening of Sunday last. There was a large assemblage of young people and others. Mr. Albert Sweeney of Boston, played the organ and some fine musical selections were rendered by him and by Miss Maggie Sweeney. Appropriate hymns and recitations were well performed by the children.

At the close, the Rev. J. Robertson, the pastor, addressed the meeting on Home and Foreign Missions and showed that it was the duty of all Christians to take an interest in missionary work, to be influenced by a missionary spirit, and to do what they can to extend the Kingdom of Christ throughout the world. The service, altogether, was interesting, instructive and edifying, and was much appreciated by those assembled. Lower Napan is privileged by having distance of fifty feet. The bridge was practically completed. It was fortunate the accident occurred when it did, otherwise the number of victims would have been much larger. The exact cause of the accident is difficult to discover, William Simmons, Chief Engineer of the Phoenix Bridge Works, which was building the bridge, had just come ashore. He said: "I was looking towards the bridge when all at once the pier in the center of the two south spans seemed to crumble away and two completed and finished spans with forty men working on them tumbled into the water."

The British in China.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The correspondent of the Standard at Constantinople says:—"M. B. Kropovnikoff, of the Russian embassy here, announced M. Pavloff, the retiring Russian charge d'affaires at Peking. Russia, it is said, has given satisfactory assurances that she will respect the British sphere in China. It is asserted that the British admiral had orders to seize the remaining Chinese ships and custom houses in the event of the Tang-Li-Yamen refusing to comply with the British demands."

A Popular Home Work.

Successful Only When the Diamond Dyes are Used. In thousands of happy and thrifty homes in the Dominion and in the colony of Newfoundland the work of rug and mat making is becoming very popular. Homemade rugs and mats are more highly esteemed just now than imported goods. This is not surprising when we remember the fact that the home articles are the best wearing and prettiest.

If you want to save money. He is offering his business for sale, and people are astonished at the bargains he is giving in Boots and Shoes and Groceries. Don't lose any time in taking advantage of this cheap sale, as it is liable to close at any time; as some one has said, "it's a good thing to be near the door when the store is closing."

FOR THE AGED.

Paine's Celery Compound gives the needed stimulus to good digestion and assimilation, and keeps the blood pure. Nature's medicine brings health and happiness to those in advanced years. King David, the sweet singer of Israel says: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength, labor and sorrow."

at the same time commenting upon its excellencies with the volubility of an experienced auctioneer. "I believe, ammie," she continued, "that this is the finest perfume ever manufactured." Fust you said colour, but now you done let out dat it's perfume nobly, but it's de best I want to see."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Valuable Ware.

At the Savenon sale, in London, a few years ago, a set of old Sevres ware was sold for $5,000. The genuineness of this set was proved by certificates issued to the owners by the French government, writes F. Vitzeloff in Godley's. But by far the most valuable service turned out by the Sevres pottery (in 1778) was made for the Catharina Catherine II of Russia and consisted of 745 pieces, which cost $65,630.

The Sevres ware, old or modern, is usually light in color and daintily decorated with flowers or figures subjected to a tastefully arranged. The porcelain itself, although of good texture, is inferior to that of the English pottery. Decorated pieces generally bear pictorial panels on white ground, surrounded by fine fretwork or scrollwork. These, as well as the tall vases, are quite in keeping with the national character. Although the Sevres wares are still in operation, they are kept busy in copying ancient Chinese and Japanese models instead of increasing their reputation by the manufacture of the wares which made them famous.

So He Could See.

Mr. Barclay: Yes, I'll get a box and take Billy to the pantomime. Billy (who has never been to the theater)—You'll let me look out of the top of the box, won't you, papa?—Harper's Bazar.

A London fog absorbs 11 per cent of the rays from an ordinary gas lamp and 21 per cent of those from a lamp with an incandescent mantle.

General McDowell.

I have never met any one who gave me a stronger impression of honesty and sincerity than Irvin McDowell. He was then in the prime of life—40 or 45 years of age, tall, well built, and rather nervous in movement, kindly and simple in manner, with a very pleasant, soldierly face, a water drinker and almost a vegetarian. After the cruel war was over I met him one day in some foreign city. I think it was in London, where we were conversing he said, "Strange, isn't it, our encounter today?"

"Have you forgotten? This is the 21st of July—the anniversary of Bull Run. Had you not that battle would have been one of the most popular men in the United States and you would have been another. I need not say how much it is the other way with us now." "But I do not think his countrymen blamed him after all. When I went to the United States some years ago, I found him in command at San Francisco—much changed, aged and sad, but courteous and kindly as ever. I told him that I had in a place of honor at home the photograph which he gave me an evening in Washington the day he was looking for Barry's guns. "And I suppose," he said, "your friends ask, 'Who on earth was General McDowell?'—Sir W. H. Russell in North American Review.

A Great Seesawer.

More than 50 years ago Lachlan McDonald left his home in Stratpey, Scotland, and went to the shores of Lake Winnipeg. He did not neglect to carry with him his beloved bagpipe, and many an evening he would sit down and play to him of the old home beyond the seas. Even in the daytime, when he was busy in the woods felling trees, he would have it by his side, and on one occasion he had reason to be glad that it was so near.

Drinking in Medieval Universities.

The relation which the universities sustained with reference to the municipal government, which they were supposed to form a large chapter in their early history. The university was a state within a state. Every person connected with it even remotely, down to the servants in the families of the professors and those who waited on the students, were amenable only to the academic council. The student was the citizen of a nation of scholars, whose flag overshadowed him wherever in the kingdom he might be.

Members of the student world were among the first to receive the benefits of many cases from all municipal tax. They might receive their books and furniture, wine and beer, free of duty. The students of Leyden availed themselves of this privilege to so great a degree that the city was obliged to furnish quantities by private arrangements with the publicans that a law was necessary prescribing how much a student might legally receive without payment of excise. The wise legislators, animated with a generous sense of the privileges of a university, after due deliberation fixed the proper drinking capacity of a student at 80 gallons of wine and 12 half casks of beer, which he could receive free of all tax.—Professor W. T. Hewitt in Harper's Magazine.

An Unworthy Trick.

In a recent Pall Mall Gazette we find a good story of a landed proprietor in Switzerland, who was very much interested in a railway matter upon which the Swiss government was to be voted. He wanted it to vote affirmatively, and so he let it be generally understood that every voter would become the recipient of a liberal hamper of wine, provided there was no negative vote to the contrary. The hamper was filled with wine, including the German man himself, totaled 108, and on the day when the voting was to be taken every one of them went to the poll. Not only that, but every one of that crowd went to the poll with the conviction that that hamper of wine was his certain.

Two Classics For Them.

A resident in a small suburban town quite a long distance from Boston had a visit from a German friend who knew very little English but played the violin well. One of this resident's neighbors, "the great city," and of course he and his visitor were invited. The German took his violin, and when his turn came he played one of his best pieces, from one of "the great masters." When he had finished, there was an awfully long time of hesitation. The people were still looking expectantly at the German, who looked disappointed and flustered. "He silence grew painful. Finally the hostess, quite red in the face, edged over to the side of the German friend.

Don't Put Things On.

"I cannot too strongly impress upon you, Philip," said Mrs. Graetzer, "the fact that things in general are not automatic—that is, they will not do themselves, and the longer you put off the attack upon the matter, the more you are to tackle. Don't put things off, Philip. To things that require deliberation you will give sufficient thought; but as to the run of things that come up, acquire the habit of disposing of them as they come along. You will find that this will help in many ways. Don't cord 'em up, Philip. The first thing you know you will have more stacked up than you can saw, and then, too, the pile is liable to fall on you at any time and hurt you."

First, Second, Third.

A correspondent calls attention to the various methods of abbreviating "second" and "third." His position seems to be correct, and the use which he recommends should prevail. Standard authorities, he says, are "overwhelmingly in favor of 2d and 3d, instead of 2nd and 3rd."
