FARM CAPITAL.

The capital stock of any business ento the condition of the business. If much the colder. a manufacturing concern or a railroad company neglect improvements and repairs, and the plant "runs down," the value of the capital stock goes down until it may only be a nominal value. Nobody wants it.

The farmer's stock in trade is in his farm and farm animals. If he fails to improve the farm, if it lacks proper cultivation, and he fails to return the elements of plant food which his crops have taken from the soil, if he fails to keep his buildings and farms in good repair, or to give good care to his animals, his capital stock will immediately decrease in value, and nobody will want it even at a low valuation. If the farmer takes from the capital stock of his farm and puts it in the bank he is in the end the loser. This does not mean that the farmer should not have a bank account to his credit

"Mr. Daryl was with the mistress New WWW WWW WWW from the actual profits of his farm after keeping the capital stock of the farm at its par value. An exchange suggests that it is a good time to look over the farm carefully and see whether its capital stock has increased or diminished during the past year. Why not put a little of the thought force of the business man into the

A REMEDY FOR BAD LANGUAGE An ocean-going captain was so much given to using bad language that his first mate made a bet with him that squall came on, and the sailors were up aloft doing their different duties. their work. He stood it as long as he could, and then he threw his cap on the deck in a towering rage, jumped on it, and shaking his fist up at the men with an angry scrowl, he hissed: "Bless you, my dears-you know what
