The "Avon's" Fate.

In the gale of Wednesday, 6th inst. Messrs. A. & R. Loggie's schooner, Avon, was at anchor of Tracadie Gulley. She was in light ballast at the time and could not hold on, and her crew is supposed to have got one anchor up and slipped the other. the gale in a southeasterly direction and it was supposed that she would be blown out into the gulf. Much uneasiness was felt for those on board and, apparently, not without good reason, for on Saturday last as some fishermen were about four miles off Malpeque, P. E. I. they discovered the Avon, dismasted with rails level with the water at anchor in fourteen fathoms of water. There was no sign of any of the crew, and it is quite certain that they were all lost.

It is evident that the vessel was blown clear of the North Cape, P. E. I., by the northwest gale of Wednesday, which, it will be remembered, hauled to the north on Wednesday night. This would blow her into the bight of the north side of the Island where she was found.

The Avon was of 49 tons measurement. built in Lahave, N. S. in 1893 and commanded by Capt. John Leet. She had just taken a cargo of canned blueberries to Charlottetown and was returning to Tracadie for another when she was blown off. Besides Capt. Leet there were two other men. The Adams House, Chatham, which was destroyed by fire last winter, has, to use a trite phrase, risen from its ashes. Not only so, but it is only the old Adams House in name, for it is much larger than the former one, more imposing and handsome in appearance and supplied with modern improvements and conveniences which were not in the old hotel.

When the smoke of the fire had cleared away there was practically nothing left of space to put in heating apparatus, it was the old Adams House but the portion in decided to raise it to a height of eight feet which the kitchen and some store rooms and | above its former level. The additional area of the floor plan is secured by extending the building west, to the line adjoining the bank of Montreal property. There is an excavated basement, or cellar, the full size of the building, which is enclosed by substantially-built foundation walls of cemented masonry, and this will contain the heating apparatus, and storage for the usual hotel supplies, etc. The hotel proper is three storeys high, including the mansard roof. Its front elevation presents a fine appearance, the central third of it being composed of a section which stands out eighteen inches beyond the line of the walls flanking it, and is finished by heavy oranamental corner-pilasters, the capitals of which support the cornice of the pedimented roof.

A verandah extends the whole length of the front, the lower part of which is reached by two short flights of steps from the street, and communication is had with its deck from the second floor of the hotel. The windows and doors of the second storey above the verandah, and of the third storey of the central portion of the front, are finished with scroll and turned ornamentation; all the cornices are heavily bracketed and the general exterior finish of the front is heavy, substantial and pleasing to the eye, a feature being the radials below the upper portion of the pediment entablature.

A noticeable feature of the central portion of the front is the window of the general office, which is 8 ft. 6 in. x8 ft., in one square, ed by double street doors leading off from the verandah and is 22x25 feet. This room -like all the hallways, the dining room, writing and private rooms on the first flooris floored with clean, tongued and grooved birch, 2½ inches wide. It is also wainscoted with birch. about the 28th.

The work of making the repairs and improvements on St Andrew's church was commenced June 14th, and will be practically completed before the re-opening of the church next Sunday. In order to improve the architectural appearance of the building, aad also secure the necessary basement screws and many thousands of short deals in two and a half feet, making in all ten and a half feet of basement height, which, when floored and finished, will give a fine auditorium of over nine feet to ceiling. In building in the space between the former foundations and the walls of the church when raised, two 12-inch courses of solid rock-faced freestone were placed on the stone foundations, and the remaining six feet of height was framed in with heavy timber, boarded over and clapboarded in same finish as the upper part of the walls. Eighteen windows have been placed in the basement walls, insuring sufficient light in this part of the sacred edifice. The stone and masonry work was furnished by Mr. C. E. Fish, of the French Fort Cove quarries, Newcastle, and the wood work was done by Mr. John McDonald, of Chatham. The roofs of the church building and the Sabbath School Hall adjoining, have been re-shingled by Mr. James Mowat. The two side entrances of the church has been closed up and the front entrance has been enlarged to a width of eight feet, giving ample access and exit for a large congregation, such as they have in St. Andrew's. A door has also been placed in the rear end S. S. Hall, and swing-doors, covered with crimson cloth, are placed between the vestibule and the auditorium. A graceful flight of steps in the front of the church leads into the vestibule, where a further flight of four steps brings one to the auditorium floor level.

The contract for painting the exterior of the buildings and interior of the church was and of heavy plate glass. The office is enter- given to Mr. John Johnston, of St. John whose men, under the superintendence foreman Reid, have done very artistic and creditable work. The flat ceiling with central recess made a fine ground for the decorator's skill, and has been laid off in panels and ornamented with lines and stencil-work in harmonious colors. FEW MEN ORIGINAL.

Did you ever notice how few people are original in things they say and do? For instance, one man makes a fortune out of a simple thing; immediately hundreds of others try it. This is human nature. While it is gratifying to be the "first man" to bring out an idea, the great mass must be content to follow their leaders. There is one line that is always original, however, and that is the business of Bradley-Garretson Co., Limited, of Brantford, Ont., because landable work which was undertaken by they continually bring out publications, to suit the times and seasons, thus their agents are kept steadily at it and make big money. In fact, no other occupation is more honor able, healthful, lucrative, or offers half a many opportunities for promotion. It is life school. Many men and women in Canada, to-day, testify to the truthfulness of his claim, in fact, it is conceded on all hands, that one year's experience with this Firm is worth more to any young man or woman, than two or three years at College, from an educational point of view, and financially, it is all that can be desired.
