EDITORIAL NOTES.

There has never been a time in the history of Christianity when a few of its followers were not ready to proclaim that it had reached its culmination and begun to decline. Often these signs of discouragement are a matter of temperament and can be dismissed as soon as the personal equation noted. Sometimes they are due to min-PROPRIETOR or differences about the creed of single sect or to an exceptional cident entirely transient in its mature and bearing. But to an observer who takes a station above these arities the fact is clearly seen that Christianity as a whole is moving at any previous time in the history ever be doubted or denied.

The first penetrate it were the missionaries and now a Christian host is following in their steps. The armies contending there are men of practically the same religion. The dying soldier no matter what his uniform, seeks Christian consolation, and the same Christian rites are pronounced at his grave. Whether he knew it or not. Christianity pervaded his whole life. As Asia opens to the outside world the spirit of Christianity enters and its nature and precepts are considered with increasing earnestness. In the Christian countries themselves the churches grow steadily. If France is an exception it must be remembered that that country is suffering from a material as well as a moral decline. There is forms of decadence. France was more powerful and prosperous in the days when religion had a stronger hold ed its growth must be sought with the harrowing subsequently given by charge of the craft. this truth kept in mind.

A misdreds of tribes that were savages fifty years ago. Against a Christian world-development, unprecedented in the past, why should any one seek to balance a local disagreement on some tenet or the defection of an individual on an obscure doctrinal point? Or why should some temporary, or perhaps inaccurate, showing of loss in the membership of a particular denomination be taken as the sign that the zenith has been passed and that Christianity is losing its hold on the hearts of men and the future of the world? Let the comparison be between the years 1900 and 1800 as the index to the trend and the destiny of the Christian religion.

EFFECT OF THE AWFUL SOLITUDE WHEN FIRST EXPERIENCED.

The Awe Inspiring Stillness Makes Sleep an Impossibility For Many and Brings Visions of Terror to Haunt the Tired Senses.

The awe inspiring stillness of the first night in camp! You lie on your back vainly courting sleep. Vainly, I say, because of the very intense stillness which should woo it, but does not, as you are unused to it. Your guide lies motionless, only his heavy breathond nature to him to sleep in the heart of the wilderness, and his tired body no more than touches the sweet scented pine boughs when he slumbers. It will be so with you when you have accustomed yourself to the preternatural quiet so different from the rumble of passing vehicles over paved streets and which affects you not. But tonight your eyelids are opened wide, and instead of the blissful forgetfulness which you anticipated, your every sense is on the alert to catch and divine the meaning of the strange noises which fill the woods of northern Maine. In front of your rude camp, which is left open, the smoldering fire smokes and crackles, each snap of charred embers sounding to your ears like the report of artillery. It is a strange sensation, this first night in the woods. Away up on the mountain side a fox barks. The weird howl echoes and re-echoes down the mountain side until it seems to reach the lake and float over its glasslike surface until it is swallowed up in the dark water. A night owl makes bold to disturb your already troubled mind by perching on a big pine not a hundred feet away and sending forth a screech that curdles your blood until you realize what it really is. Directly back of you Whether our patrons be RICH or
