JOHN McFADDEN, one of the ablest men on the police force, died at midnight at the home of his uncle, Mr. M. Quirk, 289 Brussels street. Officer McFadden was one of the best physical specimens even among the policemen. Typhoid fever set in. He was but twenty-nine years of age. He was born in Richibucto, where his father and mother reside. When about fifteen years of age he took up residence with his aunt, Mrs. Mary Gifford, at Milford, where he lived until 1898, working in the mills. There was a vacancy on the police force in May, of that year, and Chief Clark appointed McFadden. and he soon became a popular officer. He made a competent officer and a good patrolman, and will be greatly missed from the roll. Officer McFadden has been in every athletic event in which the police participated since he joined the force; in tug-ofwar, rowing and other competitions he has helped uphold their supremacy. His parents and a brother, railway conductor in the eastern part of the province, survive .-Globe, 6th.

A Veteran Honored.

Just before the Town Council meeting on Monday evening there was a fair attendance of citizens present in the Council Chamber to witness the presentation of a silver medal to Major Templeton. Had it been generally known beforehand there might have been a 1 rger attendance, but as it was everything passed off very agreeably. Mayor Loggie acted as chairman of the meeting and in his opening remarks said it was a great pleasure to him to be present on this occasion and to make this presentation. It would be remembered that during the Civil War there were certain dissatisfied persons organized for the purpose of an invasion in Canada. The New Brunswick border was a particular point to which their attention was directed. and no sooner had the alarm been sounded than our men took a stand to defend their home and country. We had present at the meeting to-night one of these volunteers in the person of Major Templeton. This was not his first act of devotion in the defence of his country. Fifty years ago he enlisted people and to find them the same here as fall of Alms and Sebastapol. In 1861 he was sent to Ca nada at the time of the Trent affair. It could be easily seen by the medals on his breast that he was truly a veteran, and a hero, and had always been ready and willing to defend his country. No doubt, if the circumstances permitted it, you would find him slong with our volunteers in the present South Africa war, and have found him in the front rank when Cronje surrendered. Mayor Loggie, continuing, said as a boy he remembered a man prominent in the militia, and colonel of the 73rd Battallion, Mr. Daniel Ferguson, He was always an efficient and able leader and always identified with military matters. He called on Mr. Ferguson for a short address on this oc-

Since that time the 73rd ought to be very grateful to him, for it was through his zeal and being always at duty that has that body as it is to-day. He has done his work remarkably well, and has given a lesson to our young men. He was sorry the 73rd Battallion was not present, and as that body was about to go into camp it would have been a fitting lesson on the eve of their departure. He has served his country in a civil capacity equally as well, and his ability in the discharge of his duties is exemplified in the charge he has at the present time. He would join with Mayor Loggie in congratulating Major Templeton.

Mayor Loggie then called on Mr. R. A. Lawlor, long connected with the artillery

His Honor proceeded to refer at considerable length to his first acquaintance with Northumberland and the North Shore in 1854 and his coming here at the invitation of the late Sir Leonard Tilley in 1856. This section of the province, from Kent to Restigouche was then generally referred to as the "Dark North", but it was no longer isolated as it was then, but accessible and "bright as day." On the occosion of the visit in 1856 of Mr. Tilley and himself, Mr. Tilley was the guest of Mr. Hawes and he of Peter Mitchell, and ever after, Mr. Mitchell had been his friend.

Proceeding, His Honor paid a glowing tribute to the late Mr. Mitchell, to his efficiency and zeal as a representative and his genial and generous personality. He was ever a strong personal friend, never a bitter enemy and no man had ever striven more faithfully to promote the interests of the people he represented. His Honor also alluded to ex-Sheriff

Mitchell and the esteem in which he was held by the community, regretting that he was not able, just now, to take his former active part in affairs, but expressing the hope that he would be long spared to enjoy life and the esteem in which he was held. Reference was also made by His Honor to a visit he made last year to the west and to his meeting Premier Tweedie's late partner, Mr. R. B. Bennett, in Calgary. He said Mr. Bennett occupied a prominent place in the public and social ife of that part of the Dominion and he, the Chief Justice, was indebted to him for most courteous and hospitable treatment at a time when, owing to a big exhibition being held, the hotels were filled to their greatest capacity. He found himself could spend no money in the place.
