The farmers of Napan and vicinity are to be congratulated on the important move they have undertaken and it is to be hoped the halince of stock will be subscribed by the patrons. Estimates are being asked for the erection of the building, which will 50x25 ft., also for the necessary equipment for an up-to-date butter factory. The work of erecting the buildings will be pushed along rapidly as the directors hope to have everything in operation by the first of July, Already a large supply of ice has been stored adjoining the site.

Town Council

A special meeting of the newly elected Town Council of Chatham was held on Monday evening last at the council chamber, His Worship Mayor Loggie presiding. The clerk read the returns of the late elections for mayor and allermen, all of whom were present. Mayor Loggie congratulated the alder men on having been the choice of the people as their town council for the current year and ventured to hope that their meetings would be for the benefit of Chatham : that they would be punctually in their places at meetings: that the committees would be always weil prepared with their reports that all would work together and show respect for each other during their term of office. His Worship then called on the alderman, each in his turn, to say something, and a kind of love-feast followed Ald. Maher first responded, reciprocating the mayor's sentiments and expressing the hope that there would be a united effort to promote the town's welfare. Ald. Watt, being next called upon com plimented Mayor Loggie on his return and felt that he would do justice to the interests of the town. The gentleman who had preceded Mayor Loggie in the chair had given much time to town affairs. It was not expected that the present mayor could so devote himself to the towa's service, but he hoped he would do nearly as well, at all events. He regretted that some of the members of the preceding council had fallen by the wayside, and while he would have liked to see them in their old places. yet those who were here would, no doubt. do what they deemed to be in the best interests of the town. He was personally glad to

The people did not send them here to quarrel, but to agree upon all matters of interest to the town, and they should pay all due attention to those matters. He felt that His Worship would join with the aldermen and help towards this

Ald. McKay was next called and said he hoped that everything would go on quietly and in order for the benefit of the town. Ald. After the round of pretty little speeches had been made, business was thought of, and the clerk began to read the minutes but this was pleasantly interrupted strains of the Citizens' Band playing in honor of the newly-elected council in front of the town hal!. The band's first number being ended, His Worship Mayor Loggie appeared on the balcony and made an excellent and appro priate address, in which he thanked the band for their demonstration and referring to the large assemblage of people on the street and in the council chamber (where every seat was occupe i) said the interest displayed in those who had been chosen to manage town affairs was gratifying. They might rely on the members of the new council applying their best energies to the discharge of their duties. The council, having resumed its business session, the reading of the minutes was again proceeded with and after a minor correction they were approved.

Communications were read, amongst them being one from the school trustees of the town notifying council that the school assessment determined upon for the current year was $7,000. Referred to Fina ce Com-

A discussion took place on a suggestion of Ald. Maher to the effect that there were no deductions from the bill on account of street lamps out during the quarter. Ald. Watt admitted that some were out and the police had failed to report them. As soon as he was aware of the lights being out he notifi d the company and they were made good. The report was received and the bills ordered to be paid. The Mayor, referring to Ald. Wat.'s renarks complimenting Clerk Gaynor, said he had occasion last year to speak in the same terms of him in the performence of his duties, and he fully endorsed what Ald. Watt had said on the subject.

say four members of council as a nominating The aldermen, however, seemed to be favor of what some members and the mayor called the "committee on the whole." One alderman suggested a five and another a ten minutes adjournment. Ald. McIntosh: "You might as well make it fifteen minutes."

Then it dawned upon the council that it could retire as a committee of the whole without naming a time : so it was voted to retire, and the retirement took place. It has transpired that the attitude of the 'committee on the whole" was as belligerent n retirement, as the whole council was amiable "before filks" at its opening. There were no interchanges of confidence in each others' fairness and desire to sink all other considerations in the general and particular desire to harmoniously work for the benefit of Chatham and the interests the rarepayers. There was no manifestation of the spirit of harmony for the promotion of the town's interests which was the theme of the speeches at the opening. Ald. Murdoch's expectation that they would be like brothers did materialise. All that both and meaningless sent mentality was thrown to the winds and there were "razors in the air."

The council having reassembled, the mayor announced that being unable to agree "in committee on the whole" the appointment of committees would be dealt with in

There were eight members on the first fire committee appointed by Chatham Town Council-five allermen and three citizens from outside-and it required the whole eight to properly do the work. Ald. McKay was nominated because of his special fitness for the work. He was a practical man at it. There couldn't be too many assisting at the management of fires. It was presumptious for Aid, Maher to come with a state of not only the members who were to be on committees, but also chairman of each, as he did at the informal meeting of the council on Friday, and to throw it at members and practically say there should be no change. When he went to that meeting he knew there was a slate and that Ald. Maher was down on i chairman of the Police Committee. Ald. Gallivan here claimed that Ald. Watt was out of order. Ald. Watt, however, continued, saying the composition of the Police Committee as slated was dictated by outsiders-by violaters of the Scott Act -- and when such persons coma so dictate as to who should be on that committee of what kind would the administration of the committee be? He had, at the meeting of Friday, tried to get a change and was refused. Was it not absurd that two gentlemen could come here and dictate what should be done in such matters? We e other have their say? If the names proposed were not added public will know what to think. Ald. Murdoch said ald. Watt was that committee at request and ald. Maher's name withdrawn, when ald. McIntosh objected. He. Murdoch, then said if it would please all parties he would serve. He saw ald. McIntosh and he objeced to having the committee increased to four and said he would retire on the understanding that the committee should remain at three, as heretofore. He thought ald. McIntosh's proposition was ressonable and he voted that way. Ald. Maher said whoever was on Police committee the work must, at lea t. under ald. Watt's chairmanship. Watt was instrumental in having a marshal appointed without any authority, who was not fit for the work, and had ordered a suit of clothes for him also without any proper authority and had to cancel the order afterwards. Ald. Watt had no right to assume that he, Maher, would not do his duty if he were chairman of the police committee. His oath of office was as sacred to him as that of

ald. Watt or any other member. Ald. Watt said he never ordered a suit of clothes for the marshal, but the full committee said if he ordered them the town would pay for them.

Ald. McIntosh said the committee had agreed to allow Mr. McCulley for a suit of 3 Chicago. -1,4,00. clothes not more than $25 and he was to go to some tailor and order them himself. Mr. McCulley however went round in civilian's clothes for a fortnight or more doing little or nothing, when the committee discovered that his appointment as marshal was not The committee then directed the order to be recalled and ald. Watt went and Ald. Gallivan explained that his reason cancelled it. Ald. Watt had wanted Mr. for nominating ald. Watt was to secure McCulley appointed a policeman and he. McIntosh, objected and said if he wasn't fit for marshall he wasn't fit for a policemen. McCulley was however appointed marshall at $400 and then Scott Act inspector at $500. There was a slate that time and no mistake. He didn't think ald. Watt deserved much credit for that appointment, and he dropped out of it. McCulley was a failure as Scott Act inspector and it cost the ratepayers something to get rid of him. The transaction reminded him of the blacksmith's boy who, in his employer's absence, decided to attempt some work on his own account. He took a piece of iron and said he would make a plough-colter, but after heating and hammering at it he failed; then he said "You're no good for a colter but I'll make a sock out of you." So he tried that and having burned the iron he failed. Then he said: "You're no good for a colter and no good for sock, but I know what you'il makeyou'll make a fizz when I throw you in the tub." He, McIntosh, knew McCulley wouldn't make a marshal and also that he wouldn't make a Scott Act inspector, and whether he made a fizz or not when Ald. But it is incredible. In respect to one bridge von have the shop labor where the weight is only 4,000 pounds lighter about one-third the cost of the labor in the heavier bridge.
